New Strikes In Steel Mills Held Likely; Riots Flare

Unionists Attack U. S. Mail Truck

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, May 13.—Chairman Philip Murray, of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, said tonight strikes were "inevitable" at four of the country's largest independent steel producers "because of their continued refusal to sign an agreement with the union."

Murray named the Republic Steel Corporation, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Crucible Steel Co. of America. Together they employ 178,000 men.

He made this statement at a recess in his conference with Chairman H. E. Lewis of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation in an effort to reach an agreement ending the walkout of the company's 27,000 workers.

Murray asserted at the end of the conference that the discussion with Lewis was in a very friendly spirit, and added:

"We will resume at 10 o'clock tomorrow." Neither he nor Lewis would disclose what progress had been made toward a settlement.

Affects 5,900 Men.

While picket lines shut down the vast Jones & Laughlin mills in Pittsburgh and Aliquippa, Pa., local union leaders called out their men at the Pittsburgh Steel Co.'s plant in Monessen and Allenport, Pa.

Approximately 5,900 men are employed in the two mills.

Company officials had asked the union to delay until tomorrow the deadline for their decision on union demands for a collective bargaining contract.

Stating he was "perfectly well satisfied" with the Jones & Laughlin situation, Murray said of a possible strike at the four other big independents outside the U. S. Steel Corporation:

"I cannot say whether that will be tomorrow, Saturday or Sunday, but it is inevitable."

[The United Iron and Steel Workers of Aliquippa, an independent union not in sympathy with the current strike called by the steel workers organizing committee, sent a telegram to President Roosevelt tonight threatening "to take the law into our own hands at 10 a. m. Saturday," the United Press reported. The telegram said the union would act unless the President forces the National Labor Relations Board to hold an election to determine who shall represent Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation employes in collective bargaining.—Editor's note.]

Police Hurl Tear Gas.

While Federal Labor Conciliator James F. Dewey conferred with Murray and H. E. Lewis in a peace move, violence was reported among the picket ranks at Aliquippa.

Police threw tear gas into a crowd of 500 shouting pickets in the first outbreak of disorder.

Another group of pickets surrounded a United States mail truck, broke the windows of the truck, but permitted it to enter the plant after a half-hour's delay.

Union members said they thought the truck was carrying food mailed to management representatives and clerical workers who had remained inside the mill.

Police Chief W. L. Ambrose, of Aliquippa, said he was forced to summon reserve police and use tear gas to disperse a crowd of pickets who, he said, refused to let him and Burgess Morgan Sohn leave the company property where they had gone to make a routine inspection.

Union members said the tear gas attack was unprovoked. Clifford Short, financial secretary of the local union, said two men were struck by tear gas cartridges.

Woman Picket Arrested.

A third man, Frank Lasic, 60, was cut on the head. Short said police struck him.

Quiet returned to the picket lines later in the day after Chief Ambrose arrested a woman picketer on a charge of assault and battery and inciting to riot.

Chief Ambrose said:

"The pickets became angry and threatened us. I called two carloads of police reinforcements and we threw a little tear gas."

He said the woman picketer struck him twice and shouted that he had

Half-Billion Restored to Relief; Woodrum Wins Limits on Use

House Group Nullifies Sub-Committee Revolt for Economy; Allocation Amendment to Stretch Fund Over Twelve Months.

By Robert C. Albright.

Under pressure of Administration leadership, the House Appropriations Committee yesterday turned back a threatened revolt on the President's 1938 WPA program and restored $500,000,000 to the beleaguered relief bill.

By a vote of 23 to 14, the committee approved the full $1,500,000,000 sought by the President, rejecting bi-partisan sub-committee recommendations for an economy slash of one-third in the fund.

Then, unexpectedly, the committee rallied behind an amendment by Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, Virginia Democrat, to block additional appropriations for WPA in the next fiscal year. The Woodrum amendment, requiring Harry L. Hopkins to make the fund stretch over 12 full months, was approved 20 to 16.

Jubilant over temporary sidetracking of the so-called rebellion, House leaders planned to call up the measure next week. But on the other side of the Capitol economy ardor broke out of Administration bounds once again, as the Senate voted a $60,000,000 reduction in the $500,000,000 sought by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for the soil conservation program. Later the Senate passed the $571,261,042 agriculture bill, with a net of $56,767,989 trimmed from it.

Restoration of the $500,000,000 to the WPA-relief bill coincided with published testimony by Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins disclosing that 525,000 persons will be dropped from WPA rolls even if the full $1,500,000,000 is approved by Congress. Hopkins said the amount will suffice only

Juror Will Join Battle to Save Jordon's Life

By Edward T. Folliard

A juror, one of the 12 that doomed Thomas Jordon to the electric chair, will appear before a House District sub-committee Tuesday to tell how he protested against the verdict after the trial, and to urge that the condemned man now be given a "square deal" by bringing to light all the evidence in the case.

He is Israel T. Good, a printer, whose shop is at 1235 New York avenue northwest, and who lives at 2656 Nichols avenue southeast.

Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), of Maryland, chairman of the special sub-committee appointed to inquire into charges that Jordon did not get a fair trial, told The Post yesterday that he would ask Good to testify.

Good said he would be glad to appear.

"If the new evidence in the Jordon case had been given us at the trial," Good said, "I never would have voted guilty. Why weren't we told about that evidence?

"Anyway, it's not too late now. There should be a new trial and both the defendant and the jury should be given a square deal."

The new evidence, now in the hands of the Department of Justice, consists of a police incidental, or lookout, and statements by persons with an intimate knowledge of the crime which, in the opinion of Jordon's attorneys, puts an entirely different complexion on the case.

The police lookout, broadcast on the night that Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes, cashier of the Garden T Shoppe, was held up and fatally shot, describes the two holdup men as 6-footers. Jordon, who is scheduled

Merrill, Lambie Take Off for N. Y.

Southport, England, May 13 (AP).—Henry T. (Dick) Merrill and John S. (Jack) Lambie sped toward the United States tonight in their silver, twin-engined monoplane, hoping to complete their transatlantic round-trip in New York early tomorrow afternoon.

While 10,000 cheered on the Southport sands, the plane roared along the beach, climbed into the air at 9:13 p. m. (3:13 p. m. Eastern standard time) and disappeared over the Irish Sea.

At 11:06 p. m. (E. S. T.) it was reported over the Atlantic 800 miles off the coast of Ireland.

Citizens' Unit To Fight D.C. Traffic Toll

Safety Council Proposed at Dinner Honoring Lieut Kreml.

Executive Committee Will Name City-Wide Traffic Group.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Official and civic Washington, in spirited discussion at a dinner honoring Lieut. Franklin M. Kreml, the Nation's leading traffic authority, last night voted to organize a citizens' safety council to combat problems behind the local toll of highway accidents.

Following suggestions from Lieut. Kreml during his outline of accident prevention methods, Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, proposed the immediate formation of an executive group as the nucleus of a city-wide traffic safety movement.

Co-operation Urged.

And on the motion of Harry Wender, traffic committee chairman of the Federation of Citizens Associations, Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Washington Post, was named to head the organization unit. Proposed to serve with him in completing plans were Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan and Col. L. C. Crawford, chairman of the traffic committee, Board of Trade.

Public support of police and city officials, combined with a general spirit of co-operation, was stressed by Lieut. Kreml as the paramount factor in controlling Washington's traffic problems.

The District, he said, can go far toward reducing its growing accident toll by aroused public sentiment. Control of the situation, he added, does not rest with the police, the Commisioners the courts, or Congress, but with the citizens of Washington.

Asks Citizens' Support.

The future of local traffic control and highway life preservation, said Kreml, depends on the willingness of District citizens to lend their support.

In proposing the citizens safety council—to operate on the basis of similar organizations in other cities—Senator King cited formation of the Washington Criminal Justice Association as an example of what can be done.

All local agencies, civic and official, interested in traffic control, Senator King proposed, should be represented on the safety body. He suggested the organizing group go forward with immediate preparations to expand, to obtain assistance from all interested quarters and to form a well-balanced, permanent council to fight the highway death rise.

A standing vote of confidence to Mr. Meyer and The Post came from the three-score guests on a motion from Edward F. Colladay, president of the Washington Board of Trade. Mr. Meyer was granted authority to expand or limit the proposed safety group at his descretion.

King Sure of Support.

Lieut. Kreml was asked for advice as to how the movement should progress. He told of other civic and official groups of its kind and how their formation had brought marked reductions in accident death rates in numerous cities.

The safety council, Kreml said, should be representative of true civic interest with a definite program or platform and adequate financial support.

At this point, Senator King arose, called attention to the presence of Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahma, and Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), Mississippi, Congressional Appropriation Committee heads, and assured the meeting of necessary money.

"I am certain my colleagues will support me," said Senator King, "and all necessary appropriations recommended will be granted."

Last night's dinner, sponsored by The Post, was prefaced with the dramatization of an auto crash broadcast over facilities of the Na-

Achilles, First Pig With Nervous Breakdown, Cracked Up Trying to Eat an Elusive Apple

Reactions Are Exactly Like Humans, Says Cornell Scientist.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, May 13.—Cornell University has a pig with a nervous breakdown scientifically induced. He is the first pig who ever had a nervous breakdown and it was given to him in the hope of discovering better means of dealing with human breakdowns.

The pig, Achilles, had his breakdown in March this year, after spending a year in a special pen solving the problem of how to eat an apple. The apple was made constantly more difficult to get until Achilles' mind gave way.

He still has his "neurosis," which was described to the American Psychiatric Association here today. When an apple is placed directly in front of Achilles, he cannot decide whether to eat it.

Sometimes he snaps and gets it, at others his jaws miss and he gives up. He has stood for as long as an hour, motionless, with the apple he wants to eat balanced on his nose.

His disposition toward other pigs has become very bad—in fact, it closely resembles many of the symptoms shown in human nervous breakdowns.

Whether Achilles will ever recover is problematical. His recovery will be attempted. It is hoped that on his somewhat simple nervous mechanism the remedies tried, which will be much the same as those for human beings, will show their values clearly.

Porker Became Boorish Toward His Fellows; May Be Cured.

In human nervous disorders, Dr. Liddell explained, there are so many complicating mental and physical features that both cause and cure are difficult to understand.

The methods which caused Achilles to crack were similar to those which Dr. Liddell previously had tried on sheep.

The sheep also had nervous breakdowns, despite the extreme simplicity and supposed quiet stretch of their nervous systems. One illuminating discovery is the fact that it was more difficult to cause a nervous breakdown in Achilles than in the sheep. The reason apparently is that a pig is more complicated in nervous organization. This would suggest that human beings have the greatest resistance of all "animals" to nervous breakdowns, despite the fact they are the only ones who have them naturally.

Rebel Submarine's Work, Leftists Say

English Destroyer and Cruiser Speed to Disaster Scene.

The Situation Abroad.

Three members of the crew of the British destroyer Hunter were killed and more than a score injured when the vessel either struck a mine or was torpedoed by a submarine 4 miles off Almeria, Spain.

Britain was warned by Italy "there is danger" in continued attacks on Italy by the English press.

Destroyer Wrecked.

Valencia, Spain, May 13 (AP).—Three sailors were known dead, four were missing and more than a score injured aboard the British destroyer Hunter today off the south Spanish coast when, Spanish sources said, the vessel either struck a mine or was torpedoed.

The vessel, a unit of the international sea patrol around Spain, was disabled by an explosion at 3:15 p. m. (10:15 a. m. E. S. T.) as she cruised between 4 and 5 miles off the Mediterranean port of Almeria.

The ministry of marine in an official statement announcing the launching of an investigation tomorrow gave no cause for the disaster, but Febus, official Spanish government news agency, asserted:

"Two versions circulate in Almeria.

"The less authorized is that the vessel struck a mine while patrolling the coast.

"The most consistent account says the disaster was caused by a torpedo launched by a German submarine."

Holes on Both Sides.

Supporting the latter theory, the agency said, was the fact the Hunter's bow showed gaping holes on both port and starboard, indicating a missile passed through the vessel.

(It was presumed the "German submarine" meant a German-built submarine in the hands of Spanish insurgents.

(An insurgent report reaching Lisbon from Salamanca said the British destroyer struck a mine, while the British admiralty in London said it did not know what occurred.)

Spanish government vessels raced to the aid of the 1,400-ton destroyer, rescuing survivors and removing bodies.

Crew Removed Quickly.

The ministry of marine reported that besides the bodies recovered, four men were unaccounted for, and the wounded, totaling more than 20, were placed in hospitals.

The missing were believed within the destroyer but darkness, it was said, prevented a further search tonight and inspection to establish the cause of the disaster.

In the van of the rescue ships were the Spanish government battleship Jaime I, the destroyer Lazaga and four other boats.

Survivors were removed quickly as the Hunter appeared to be sinking, and one vessel sought to tow her to shore for beaching.

It was seen later there was no danger of sinking and she was towed to a mole at Almeria and moored to await examination tomorrow.

Cost $1,500,000.

Authoritative Spanish sources earlier placed the dead at nine.

Witnesses on the shore at Almeria said they heard the explosion about the vessel's bow and that it was disabled immediately.

Rescue craft, including lifeboats from the Jaime I, rushed to the scene. The British destroyer Hyperion arrived off Almeria several hours later while the cruiser Arethusa set out from Barcelona.

The Hunter had a complement of 145 men. She is a destroyer of 1,400 tons and was launched in February, 1936. She was commissioned in September for acceptance for service with the Second De-

Capitol Leaders To Talk Today With President

Roosevelt Announces New Determination as Tangle Awaits.

As the President sped homeward last night with revived ardor for original New Deal objectives, a small group of Congressional leaders last night prepared to call at the White House today for advice and guidance on a badly tangled legislative situation.

En route back to Washington from his Southern fishing jaunt, the President reminded reporters of his Madison Square Garden speech and his campaign declaration that he had just begun to fight for a score of New Deal ends. He said he was going ahead in an orderly way to attain these goals, with stabilization of commodity prices his immediate target.

At the Capitol, Democratic leaders, faced with half a dozen rebellious outbursts on the judiciary program, economy and farm legislation, awaited his return. Only a select group of four last night had received word they will be called to the White House.

Four Called.

Those named last night to confer with the President following his afternoon Cabinet meeting were Vice President Garner, Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn.

The President will confront them with a "no compromise" stand on his original proposal for a six-judge increase in the Supreme Court, observers concluded from his train interview. They also are expected to meet an unyielding White House front on the President's unemployment and farm program objectives.

Associated Press dispatches from aboard the President's train last night quoted the President as saying the broad objectives of his first Administration remain the aims of his second.

Mr. Roosevelt told reporters that the objectives named in his Madison Square Garden speech, many of them not yet attained, will be fought toward achievement.

To Fight Fluctuations.

It was in the Madison Square Garden speech that the President said he hoped it would be said of his second Administration that the forces of reaction had met their master.

According to dispatches from his train, the President's immediate goal is to avoid extreme fluctuations in prices of all agricultural commodities. He said he hoped to bring this about within reasonable limits, not through price-fixing, but through applying the spirit of the old, invalidated agriculture adjustment program. Although details of the AAA may be changed, he indicated AAA objectives would not.

As an example of his AAA aims, he pointed out that the present small carryover of wheat might open opportunities for a small group to corner the market, and thus increase consumer prices. His hope would be to increase the carryover, though not enough to bring back 30-cent wheat.

On the subject of economy, the President said everybody agreed

Wallis Will Be 'Royal Highness' Automatically; Cabinet Gives Up

George Sends Stern Command to Edward on Place of Residence, Bars Austria; Regards Duke Still in Family.

By the United Press.

London (Friday), May 14.—Members of the British cabinet have resigned themselves to the fact that they are powerless to prevent Mrs. Wallis Warfield from becoming her royal highness, the Ruchess of Windsor, it was revealed today.

Government leaders who fought Edward when he tried to make the American-born divorcee his queen were said by a high authority to have been told that she will "automatically" become a royal duchess the moment she marries the Duke of Windsor.

She will rank, undisputedly, as the sixth woman in British noble precedence, ahead of the Duchesses of Gloucester and Kent.

The order of precedence is the Queen, Queen Mother, the King's two daughters, the King's sister and then the wives of the King's brothers, with the wife of the eldest brother ranking first.

Hull Acts to End 'Star Chamber' Charge in Pacts

By Franklyn Waltman.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday took action to eliminate the basis for the Republican charge that negotiation of international agreements under his reciprocal trade program constituted "star chamber proceedings"—a charge which figured in last year's Presidential campaign.

Secretary Hull announced the Committee for Reciprocity Information will be reconstituted so that in the future it will comprise practically the same personnel as that of the Committee on Trade Agreements, which—with one exception—has been in the past an anonymous group.

In the past the Committee for Reciprocity Information has held oral hearings regarding proposed agreements and has analyzed and tabulated arguments for and against changes in tariff rates for the benefit of the Committee on Trade Agreements, which made the final recommendations for changes in tariff rates to the Secretary of State and the President.

Hereafter the same trade experts who sit in the oral hearings and re-

House Group, Uninvited, Hits Security Study

By Sidney Olson.

The traditional inter-chamber jealousy of the Houses of Congress over prerogatives burst into full bloom yesterday around the proposed informal inquiry into changes in the social security act.

The 18 Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee, vexed at being without representation in the investigation being conducted jointly by the Senate Finance Committee and the Social Security Board for the inquiry, haled Arthur J. Altmeyer and Vincent M. Miles, board members, before them yesterday for a lengthy verbal spanking, it was learned.

The Ways and Means members, reports had it, assailed the proposed investigation in lusty terms, and concluded by vowing never to appropriate a cent for the inquiry.

They also swore to do vigorous battle against allowing any of the board's legal and technical staffs to participate as experts or advisers if the study gets under way.

The investigation, proposing to survey co-operatively eight possible major changes in the social security act, is the fruit of the efforts, at

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, May 13.—There was a beer bottle battle in La Jolla last night and Victor McLaglen, movie he-man, was involved. Just what role he played was still in doubt tonight.

SAMARITAN.

"All I did was pick up a woman that got knocked down," he said.

Early today a San Diego police captain, M. D. Neely, said the burly actor had sought police protection from a woman he claimed "threw beer bottles at me" during a party in a La Jolla residence. The captain said two police officers later escorted McLaglen to the house so he could get personal effects he had left behind.

But McLaglen's version of the battle, as given by his friends here, was this:

"I was down at La Jolla, see? I've got a house of my own down there, but it's being done over, so I was staying with some other people."

"Last night, a few people dropped in. Everything was very nice. The radio was going, and everybody was standing around in bunches, like ladies and gentlemen, just talking. It was just a quiet evening at home.

"All of a sudden, a fight starts. I pay no attention, because I'm used to fights and they don't last long anyway. I pretended I didn't even notice this fight.

"Then, before I know it, somebody throws a beer bottle, see? They didn't throw it at me. Anyway, it that between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 must be saved out of the 1938 budget. But he indicated unconcern with the method for accomplishing this. Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, has proposed 10 per cent horizontal reductions. Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, proposes flexible impounding of 15 per cent. The President's statement indicated he may not take sides in the dispute.

Capitol Leaders To Talk Today With President

The Supreme Court issue was not mentioned by the President, but a "no compromise" attitude was indicated on New Deal issues all along the line. He said he had not read the letter from Ambassador to Germany William E. Dodd, recommending court plan approval to offset "dictatorship" threats, and declined comment.

On the Administration's new anti-trust front, Mr. Roosevelt said he would confer next week on Attorney General Cummings' plan to revise the Sherman laws against what Cummings considers the weakening effect of fluctuating court interpretations.

Lack of perturbation over the recent so-called "revolts" in Congress was apparent throughout his interview. For example, the President said he was not concerned over House refusal to make CCC a permanent agency, as he had recommended. He said the main thing was to extend it. The House voted two-year extension.

In addition to his Texas talks with cattlemen on prices, the President disclosed for the first time he had talked with cotton exporters and fruit and oil men in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas. He told the cattlemen that prices should permit a reasonable profit, but leveled off in such a manner as to prevent wide variations up or down.

No Big Conference.

The President said he will hold no large group conference with legislative leaders. This confirmed indications that Garner, Robinson, Bankhead and Rayburn may be the only members called in today.

Leaders have many troublesome problems on which to seek White House counsel. First and foremost is the Administration's court plan, causing wide party rifts, and on which the Senate Judiciary Committee plans to vote next Tuesday. Before they go to the White House, leaders expect an unyielding stand on this issue, but there have been frequently expressed Democratic hopes for some let-up in the court pressure. These may be relayed by those present.

Other matters on which the President's views may be solicited include farm tenancy and crop insurance legislation, held up pending an economy denouement; an expected White House labor message, the Wagner housing bill, and pressure for at least a mid-summer adjournment. Legislation, which has moved slowly during the President's absence with the exception of appropriation bills, is expected to pick up more speed after today's conference, with a course more or less rigidly charted.

Rayburn Denies Delay.

The President was noncommittal on reports of coming wages and hours legislation, and the specific farm reforms that would be salvaged.

Preliminary to today's conference, House Majority Leader Rayburn took the floor yesterday to answer widely published charges of Congressional "delays." Citing legislation already passed or in progress, Rayburn said the House calendar was further advanced at this time than it has been "at any time in the 24 years I have been a member."

In support of his claim that "this is a working Congress," Rayburn enumerated passage of the neutrality, reciprocal trade, Guffey coal, Supreme Court retirement, long and short haul bills, extension of RFC and the bill expediting Justice Department intervention in lower court cases.

Cannot "Pacify All."

"Some matters have beclouded what we really have accomplished," said Rayburn, apparently referring to the court issue.

At one point he was interrupted by Speaker Bankhead, who had taken the floor.

"I am reminded," said Bankhead, "it is very difficult to pacify all critics. Formerly we were criticized for passing half-baked measures. You just can't pacify these critics on either horn of the dilemma."

Rayburn said the House was now on its last "regular" appropriation bill, and had cut debate down from the "four or five days" formerly required for each, to two. He was questioned closely by Assistant Minority Leader Martin on legislation "yet to come" and in response enumerated a few of the measures still in committee.

Republicans jestingly reminded him he had failed to list passage of the anti-lynching bill as one of the House accomplishments.

New Faces in Congress.

O'Brien Believes Court Plan Of Roosevelt Served Purpose

REPRESENTATIVE GEORGE D. O'BRIEN.

Michigan Representative, However, Favors McCarran Proposal for Two Justices; Opposes Sit-Down Strikes; Neglects Hobbies, If Any.

Gray-haired, 37-year-old George D. O'Brien thinks the President's court-reform program "served a great purpose."

The quiet-spoken, blue-eyed Representative from Detroit, who decries "pet legislation," but is interested in "good laws," said that as a member of the House Judiciary Committee he is satisfied with the McCarran amendment of adding two more justices to the bench.

"The President's proposal, nevertheless, made the country court-conscious," he said. "None of us can tell what effect it had on the recent decisions of the Supreme Court."

Thumbnail sketch: O'Brien was born in Detroit January 1, 1900; was educated at the University of Detroit, receiving his A. B. there in 1921 and his LL.B. three years later. Practiced law 12 years in his home city until his election to the Seventy-fifth Congress. Beat his Republican opponent, Clarence J. McLeod, by a vote of 63,479 to 49,910.

Representing that area of Detroit flanking broad Woodward avenue, O'Brien said his constituency is a cross-section of all classes. In it you have slum dwellers, foreign-born and middle-class residents as well as big business interests and property controlled by the church.

Admitting he had an early ambition to become a Congressman, O'Brien went on record as opposing "sit-down" technique. "It has no legal justification," he said. "I will say, though, that the auto workers had a legitimate reason to buck their bosses."

Hobbies? If he has any, he has been "neglecting them," he said. As for the merry whirl, he will gladly pass up the coat-tailed $100 dinners.

Record of Misery Traced in Freeing Of Moronic Girls

Pittsburgh, May 13 (AP).—A record of human misery and cruelty seldom equaled, growing out of what happened to 102 young women with mental troubles who were released from detention by court order against medical advice, was reported to the American Psychiatric Association here today by Leo Kanner, M. D., of Baltimore.

The record covers 26 years. Already the 102 he said have given birth to "108 children who are without question feeble-minded." He gave documentary evidence in many of the cases. Most of the girls were released on writs of habeas corpus and all of them from the Rosewood School in Maryland.

Only 13, he said, have adjusted their lives in a manner which brought no serious damage to themselves or others. Eighty-nine have been in serious difficulties; 29 became prostitutes; 6 served prison terms; 17 acquired communicable diseases.

Irish Police Seize Guns in New Riots

Dublin, May 13 (U.P.).—Free State police tonight swept through the St. Stephen's Green district, confiscating guns and ammunition, after the bombing of a 178-year-old statue of George II in protest against the coronation of King George VI.

Angry Republicans smashed the windows of two shops, one containing photographs of yesterday's coronation and the other displaying the British flag and a statue of Queen Victoria.

The wrecking of the equestrian memorial, supposedly by a powerful time bomb, climaxed a two-day wave of indignation against the new British monarch — crowned "King of Ireland" in an ancient ritual in London's Westminster Abbey yesterday.

Democratic Victory In 1940 Is Forecast

By the United Press.

Charles Michelson, publicity chief of the Democratic National Committee, last night forecast another Republican defeat in the 1940 Presidential election, and advised the G. O. P. to seek another Mark Kanna or Matt Quay to restore party discipline.

In an article, "My Advice to the G. O. P.," apperanig in the current issue of the American Magazine, Michelson urged leaders of the minority party not to despair because "stricken political parties do come back." But he warned convalescence is long and tedious and relapses have to be guarded against.

1. Select a strong man whose word would be law on party decisions.

2. Adopt either strong radical or conservative policies, and enforce them.

House Would Impeach Misbehaving Judges

By the Associated Press.

The House Judiciary Committee approved yesterday a measure that would permit trial and ouster of Federal district judges on charges of misbehavior by a special tribunal. Impeachment trial before the Senate is the only way now provided for removal of judges.

Hull Acts to End 'Star Chamber' Charge in Pacts

Brings Committee to Decide on Trade Treaties Out Into Public View.

ceive the arguments for and against changes in tariff rates will decide the issues raised, although they will continue to act as two different committees. Thus the identity of those making what amounts to the final decisions of what will be included in trade agreements will be known.

By this action, along with previous announcement that before formal negotiation of a trade agreement commences the list of articles under consideration for negotiation will be revealed, Secretary Hull has eliminated all ground for the charge of "star chamber proceedings" against his program.

These changes in procedure are of importance to the business world because the State Department apparently is about to launch the negotiation of a new series of trade agreements. None have been concluded since last fall, but in recent days the State Department has announced the initial steps in the negotiation of trade agreements with Ecuador and Czechoslovakia. The new procedure will be followed in handling both of these agreements.

In addition, the State Department is preparing to undertake the negotiation of the most important of all trade agreements—one with Great Britain. Progress has not gone beyond the making of soundings, but unless unforeseen developments occur notice that negotiation of an agreement is contemplated is expected to be announced in the near futuer.

The possibilities for trade agreements with other parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations, other European countries and Latin-American nations also are receiving consideration and may soon bear fruit.

Incidentally, Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, yesterday presented to Secretary Hull the new Australian counselor to the British Embassy, Keith Officer. He is the first diplomatic representative of Australia to be sent to this country and his appointment is regarded as an indication of the growing importance of American-Australian affairs. A reciprocal trade agreement with Australia is one of those in prospect.

Secretary Hull's announcement also indicated that Henry F. Grady, former chief of the State Department's Division of Trade Agreements and newly appointed member of the Tariff Commission, will continue to play a prominent part in the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements. He has been out of that work now for the last six months or so.

Grady, who was named several weeks ago to the Tariff Commission to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Thomas Walker Page, also will succeed the latter as chairman of the Committee for Reciprocity Information. Secretary Hull announced he also will serve as a member of the Trade Agreements Committee. In the past the only member of that group whose identity was divulged was that of its chairman, the chief of the Trade Agreements Division. At first it was Grady and more recently Harry C. Hawkins.

Under the new procedure industries and business interests favoring or opposing the granting of tariff concessions to a given country will not be shooting in the dark, as was true in the past. They will know the specific items figuring in the negotiations and thus may concentrate their arguments on those points. They also will have the opportunity of placing their views directly before the men who will make the final decisions.

The original procedure was chiefly dictated to expedite the negotiation of agreements. While one group was hearing and collating information, the other group was engaged in studying and deliberating over data previously gathered. The reason for the secrecy thrown around the identity of the decision makers was to relieve them of being harassed by person who wished to make personal appeals and arguments to them.

Jones & Laughlin Off 9½ on Curb

New York, May 13 (AP).—With Jones & Laughlin, whose steel plants are closed by strikes, leading the way, stocks in the curb market gave ground today, many for losses of 1 to 3 or more points.

The decline in Jones & Laughlin was 9½, with the final price 95½. Other active shares following the downward movement which originated on the "big board" included American Cyanamid "B" at 28⅛, off 1⅝; McWilliams Dredging 25¼, off 2; Detroit Steel down as much at 50; Apex Electric nearly 2 lower at 30⅛; Northern States Power 21¾, off 1¾; Sherwin-Williams 130, off 2½, and Pittsburgh Plate Glass 115, down 5.

One of the few customary leaders able to counter the down drift was Aluminum Co. of America, which added 2 points to finish at 135. Transactions expanded to 397,000 shares compared with 215,000 Wednesday.

Int. Nickel Profit Highest on Record

New York, May 13 (AP).—Profits of International Nickel Co. of Canada for the first quarter were $11,714,956, the largest reported for any three months in company's history.

They were equal, after allowing for preferred dividends, to 77 cents a share on the common stock, and compared with $9,836,446, or 64 cents a share in the final quarter of 1936 and $8,386,787, or 54 cents a share in the March, 1936, quarter.

Wheeler Assails Federal Judge In Rail Action

Jurist Accused of Ignoring Suggestion to Reduce Executive Pay.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, a leading foe of the President's court reorganization bill, made a fierce attack yesterday on the conduct of some Federal courts in bankruptcy and receivership proceedings.

His outburst climaxed a tense session of the Senate railway finance investigating committee, which produced testimony that Federal Judge John P. Barnes, of the northern Illinois district, had ignored suggestions for cutting executive salaries on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, being reorganized under his supervision.

"The truth is that this Federal judge refused to take the recommendations of the Reconstruction Corporation and other creditors which would have saved the road $137,000 a year," snapped Wheeler, the committee chairman.

"That is one of the reasons why a lot of Federal courts are being criticized from one end of the country to the other for their conduct in trustee cases."

The Senator condemned pending proposals for reorganizing the Illinois carrier, and declared the RFC "must be asleep" if it permits a reorganization which would "bail out" other creditors.

He submitted documents showing the vast Van Sweringen railway network—in which the C. & E. I. is a minor strand—had borrowed $78,796,000 from the Government and that less than one-third of this sum had been repaid.

Evidence laid before the committee included a letter discussing the reorganization, written by H. B. Erminger, jr., a director of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, which Wheeler accused of secretly and illegally gaining control of the Illinois line in 1931.

"I don't see why the RFC should not hold the bag on the stuff that is ahead of them," the letter remarked, referring to other debts of the road.

Wheeler then observed that the C. & O., which owns 68 per cent of the line's common stock, would not put up any money under the reorganization proposal, while the RFC would have to increase its stake in the road to $11,000,000.

Kenneth D. Steere, chairman of the line's board of directors, acknowledged that the reorganization would increase the value of this common stock by at least $12,361,000, and at the same time greatly decrease the bonded indebtedness.

Wheeler promptly accused Steere of serving as "a dummy" for the Van Sweringen interests" in many transactions."

It's Our Family's Whiskey, Neighbor

A little old-fashioned pleasure for the old timers

Every once in a while, old Tim Stiles trots that old talking machine up to our house and gets us to playing those pet records of his over and over again. Tim, he'd sit all night listening, if he had his way!

Of all the different folks making whiskey these days, I'd go so far as to say I don't suppose there's a one of them that believes in the modern way of doing things more than us Wilkens do. I mean to say the modern way of keeping everything just spic and span—keeping your mash tub clean as a whistle, polishing up your bottles till they just shine and all that. But in other things, like good old Family Recipes, we got a feeling the grand old-fashioned way of doing things can't be beat.

Our family—Grandpa Wilken, Pa Wilken and us—has been distilling now since the year 1886—and right now we're making whiskey just as mild and just as tasty as we did first off when our Family started in. And this is our own Family's Recipe. I'd sure like you to try it!

German Officer's Body Is Taken to Miami by Coast Guard; Note Found.

By the Associated Press.

Miami, May 13.—Capt. Otto Liedert, 48, master of a German freighter which ran aground in clear weather on a coral reef marked by a lighthouse, put a pistol bullet through his head today after 36 hours of vain attempts to refloat his ship.

The Coast Guard, after investigating whether any crime had been committed in territorial waters, brought the captain's body to port here pending instructions from the German consulate at New Orleans.

Capt. Liedert's body was found slumped over the desk in his cabin, a bullet wound in his right temple and a .25-caliber pistol in his right hand. On the desk were letters and a suicide note in German ordering Chief Officer Hans Festesen to take command.

The skipper also ordered that the Wiegand's flag not be flown at half mast on account of his suicide, but Festesen had it lowered.

Liedert's home was the Free City of Danzig, where his mother lives.

The Wiegand, which sailed from Philadelphia last week for Gulf ports with a general cargo, still was fast tonight on Elbow Reef, near Carysfort light, 55 miles south of here.

It grounded there at high tide Tuesday evening.

Lieut. R. L. Horne, commander of the Coast Guard cutter Pandora, said members of the crew reported the master "had been very depressed" by his vessel's plight.

"He had been up two days and nights," Horne said.

Investor Seeks Limit on Income For Executives

By the Associated Press.

Lee B. Coshland, of New York, a minority stockholder in "probably 25" large concerns, told a Senate committee yesterday there should be a law to prevent "hogging of funds by corporation officers."

Testifying on the Federal incorporation bill of Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, Coshland proposed a maximum salary of $250,000 for any such officer, with a limit of $25,000 when a concern was "in the red."

Coshland criticized the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, at whose recent annual meeting he and Lewis B. Gilbert, also of New York, another minority stockholders, played conspicuous parts. He said a "special" study he had made showed conditions in Bethlehem affairs were "not any too wholesome" from a stockholder's viewpoint.

Military Medicine Delegates Named

The State Department yesterday announced this Government had accepted the invitation to Rumania to participate in the Ninth International Congress of Military Medicine and Pharmacy, to be held in Bucharest, June 2 to 10. Five of the seven delegates named are from or near Washington.

Col. Harold W. Jones, of the United States Army Medical College, will be the chairman. Lieut. Col. Edgar Erskine Hume, of the Army Medical Corps, stationed at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., was designated as secretary. Cloyce K. Huston, secretary of legation at Bucharest, will serve as administrative secretary.

Other delegates are Maj. Gen. Harry L. Gilchrist, secretary general of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States; Capt. William L. Mann, Navy Medical Corps, stationed at Quantico Marine Barracks; Capt. William S. Bainbridge, United States Naval Reserve, retired and member of the Permanent Committee of the International Congress of Military Medicine and Pharmacy, New York; Senior Surgeon Edward C. Ernst, United States Public Health Service, and Senior Surgeon Martin Cooley, United States Public Health Service Reserve, assigned to the Veterans' Administration.

Roper Indorses Auto Test Plan

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper has indorsed the Lonergan District motor vehicle inspection bill, Senator Lonergan (Democrat), Connecticut, disclosed yesterday.

The Lonergan measure, along with a bill submitted by the District Commissioners, has been referred to a sub-committee of the Senate District Committee headed by Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas. No hearing has been scheduled.

Secretary Roper, in his letter of indorsement, declared that every community should have compulsory inspection laws, adding that it is the cheapest form of insurance.

Citing statistics which showed that in some States as high as 70 per cent of the automobiles involved in accidents had faulty equipment, Roper said that the number of defective cars is much greater than the record of accidents would indicate.

Ex-Convict, 23, Wanted for 3 Killings, Seized

Fugitive From 3 States Arrested With Girl in N. Y.; Confesses.

Brewster, N. Y., May 13.—Lester Brockelhurst, 23-year-old Illinois ex-convict wanted for holdup killings in Illinois, Arkansas and Texas, was captured near here today with a girl when a State trooper noticed a license plate was missing from his car.

Brockelhurst admitted committing the three crimes, in Rockford, Ill.; Little Rock, Ark., and Fort Worth, Tex., but said he "did not know the man in Little Rock had died."

Brockelhurst's companion described herself as Bernice Felton, of Rockford.

Motorcycle Officer Joseph Hunt chased their car when they failed to stop, and found a loaded .32-caliber revolver in it, and blood stains on the back seat.

They were brought to the State Police Barracks here and Brockelhurst quickly admitted who he was, State Inspector Harold Nugent said, adding he had formally confessed the crimes. They were held as fugitives from justice.

"We were just riding around the country," Brockelhurst said. "I've only known Bernice a short time—she wasn't connected with any of the holdups. We were just going around having a good time."

Little Rock police said Brockelhurst was wanted in connection with the slaying there last week of Victor Gates, 57, who was shot in the back of the head and tossed in a ditch two miles out of town, the slayer taking his car.

Both the former convict and his companion disappeared from Rockford, their home town, March 31, the day Albin Theander, 47-year-old tailor, was shot to death driving to work from his home outside of town.

Brockelhurst was on parole from Joliet Penitentiary, where he served a term for a 1935 Chicago holdup.

In the killing for which he is wanted in Fort Worth, the victim was Jack Griffith, 52-year-old cafe proprietor, who went to the aid of a woman who was being held up.

3 Saddles Stolen From Mrs. Robert

Mrs. Lawrence (Chip) Robert, wife of the former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, lost $500 wroth fo riding saddles yesterday when someone broke into her saddle room at 2538 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Mrs. Robert, an ardent horsewoman, said there were three saddles taken. The thief entered by cutting a screen out of a window.

White House Drinking Assailed by Methodists

Bardner, Mass., May 13 (AP).—The New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church today adopted a resolution criticizing what it term the "serving of liquor in the White House."

"We note with since and profound regret," the resolution said, "that liquor is served within the home of the President of the United States, and that it was even served at a Ne wYear's reception to young people within the White House. We note also that the Government recently has dispatched its first shipment of rum from the Virgin Islands, where it was made as a Works Progress Administration project."

Poison-Gas Warfare Theme Of Successful New Opera

'Tomorrow, Perhaps,' With Sad Ending, Appeals to Budapest Auditors; Lover's Rose Finally Kills Hero.

By the Associated Press.

Budapest, May 13.—The Royal Hungarian Opera has turned to a theme of future war with gas masks, air raids and gas proof cellars in modern ballet which is a sensational success this season.

"Tomorrow, perhaps" is the significant title.

The opening scene is a square with a schoolhouse displaying posters of a course in defense against air attacks. Soldiers march through the plaza with military music, followed by a girl in love with the regimental officer.

Children sit in the school listening to a lecture on gas-raid defense in the second episode. They put on gas masks and dance, until a newsboy runs through the streets crying that war has been declared.

The action reverts to the square. Sirens sound. Bells ring. The populace takes refuge in cellars. A bomb falls and buildings collapse. The girl and officer are last to flee, the girl placing a farewell rose in the soldier's gas mask.

Later he dies of the gas, because he cannot put on the mask which is choked by the flower of which he is unaware.

The people emerge from the cellars after the raid in the final scene. The girl sees her dead lover, and the ballet closes on a sorrowful note of a funeral march.

Julius Harangozo, ballet master, and Eugen Kenessey, the opera's orchestra conductor, wrote the work.

Indirect Pension Granted by House To Reading Clerk

While Patrick J. Haltigan, veteran House reading clerk, was being rushed to a hospital, the House yesterday voted him an indirect pension in a unique maner.

As Haltigan has been ill for several months, it became necessary recently to employ a substitute reading clerk.

Upon motion of Chairman Warren, of the Accounts Committee, the House voted to continue to pay Haltigan his $5,000 a year salary by creating an additional assistant's post at $3,600.

The latter job, now filled by the active reading clerk, will be abolished when the substitute succeeds Haltigan.

Legislative employes now have no recourse to pensions, as have civil service workers, regardless of how long they have held their jobs. A bill to extend the benefits of the retirement act was passed by the House this year, and is now before the Senate.

Jury Throws Out District Woman's $100,000 Balm Suit

Detroit, May 13 (AP).—A recorder's court jury of six women and six men decided today there was "no cause for action" in the $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought against Miss Laura Strittmatter, of Detroit, by Mrs. Hallie Cullinan, of Washington.

The plaintiff's husband, Charles H. Cullinan, became acquainted with Miss Strittmatter when he worked for a short time in the Home Owners Loan Corporation's Detroit office, where she is a clerk.

Miss Strittmatter and Cullinan were married at Washington June 1, 1935, although he had not divorced Mrs. Cullinan, and Miss Strittmatter had the ceremony annulled in July, 1936. She testified Cullinan told her he was divorced.

Empire State Deal Loss of 4 Million Disclosed by SEC

By the Associated Press.

Securities Exchange Commission counsel declared yesterday an investment trust lost $4,425,000 in connection with financing of the Empire State Building, New York's 1,248-foot skyscraper.

The Chatham Phenix Allied Corporation, an investment trust sponsored by the Chatham Phenix National Bank, bought second mortgage debentures at a net cost of $5,925,000, Counsel David Schenker brought out.

He elicited testimony from Louis G. Kaufman, then president of the bank, that Kaufman purchased the debentures from the investment trust, paying for them with 48,000 shares of Chatham Phenix bank stock, which at that time had a market value of only $1,500,000.

The counsel is directing an inquiry into practices of investment trusts in general.

France Is Guarded Against Terrorists

Paris, May 13 (AP).—Police suspicions that terrorists are active again in Europe threw a tight guard around France today to protect statesmen coming to the country for political talks.

Special precautions were taken to safeguard dignitaries arriving from the coronation of King George VI in London.

The secret service of three nations—the French Surete Nationale, the British Scotland Yard and the Yugoslavian Surete—co-operated in shadowing at least 100 persons who were understood to have been placed under watch after the arrest here of Stefan Marusic, said to be a terrorist leader.

Escaped Home Trio Captured, Fire at Officer

Policeman Escapes Injury; Three Accused in Housebreakings.

Three youths, the oldest 17, completed a four-day practical application course in lawlessness in the arms of the law yesterday.

The four-day freedom period began with their escape from the Industrial Home School on Wisconsin avenue, Saturday night and extended to several shore resorts and Rockville, Md.

Early yesterday, with the shout of "let him have it," they opened fire on a policeman who surprised them stealing gasoline from a parked car at Eighteenth and Harvard streets northwest.

One of the youths opened fire with a rifle at Private L. M. Francis, Tenth Precinct, after he told them he would have to take them to the station house.

On the pretext of getting a key from the car, which later was discovered to have been stolen, the youngster grabbed the rifle and fired at the policeman.

Escapes Injury.

Although he was only 5 feet away, Francis escaped injury and returned the youth's fire. The boys fled and he fired five shots after them, none taking effect.

A short time later, Policemen H. R. Hammersla and Luther E. Allen arrested one of the boys while he was walking near Park and Klingle roads northwest.

The car abandoned by the youths contained a shotgun and a pistol, 20 boxes of shells, food, motor oil, a radio, a pair of binoculars, disinfectant and gauze bandages. Francis said the automobile was stolen Thursday from Frank Flaherty, of 2320 Chester street southeast.

Several bullet holes were found in the back of the machine.

Taken to the Tenth Precinct Station, the captured youth identified his companions.

About 11:30 a. m. yesterday both of the fugitives were surrendered to police by their parents. No charges have been placed against them.

Police said the youths admitted pilfering several beach cottages at Bay Ridge and Beverly Beach Saturday night and Sunday. They returned to Washington and went to Rockville, where they acquired the shotgun and pistol from another house.

The automobile they were driving when discovered by Francis bore Kansas tags, which the boys admit stealing from a parked car.

All the boys will be questioned about recent robberies and will be placed in a police lineup.

Body of Canoeist Found in Potomac

Two youths fishing in the Potomac late yesterday afternoon found the body of Robert Venables, 21, who was drowned Sunday while shooting the Potomac Rapids in a canoe.

The boys, Marshal Carpenter, of 4019 North Twenty-first street, Arlington, and Calvin Collier, of 3263 O street northwest, were rowing idly in the river, trawling fishlines, when they saw the body, for which police and relatives had been searching four days.

They towed it to Fletcher's Boathouse, at 4958 Canal street, and there notified harbor police. The body was removed to the morgue, where it was identified by H. G. Rakemann, a cousin.

School Children Must Salute Flag, Says Court

Atlanta, May 13 (AP).—The Georgia Supreme Court ruled today school boards have the right to expen a pupil who "absolutely and continuously refuses to salute the United States Flag."

It made the ruling in upholding the Atlanta School Board's expulsion of Dorothy Leoles, 12, for refusal to salute the Flag.

Artful Canine Wags His Way Into Hearts of Legislators

'Seeing Eye' Dog Wins Right to Accompany Master in Pullman Compartment; Rex Makes Friends With House Subcommittee.

By the Associated Press.

A 13-month-old dog named Rex, fully wagging his bushy tail, lobbied a bill through a House sub-committee yesterday.

The legislation would allow the Nation's railroads to let the trained canine companions of the blind accompany them free of charge on coaches. Rex, abandoning the suave tricks of veteran lobbyists, simply stretched at the feet of his blind master, Dr. H. E. Claus, of Arlington, Va., fixed a brown eye on Chairman Bulwinkle (Democrat), North Carolina, and swished his tail across the green plush committee room carpet.

R. V. Fletcher, counsel for the Association of American Railways—fascinated by the pup on the floor—moved his chair to get a better look.

He's Quite at Home.

Representative Smith (Democrat), Washington, author of the bill, interrupted himself with a chuckle as Rex shattered the dignity of the committee room by rolling on his back.

Dr. Claus was the only witness.

Explaining that Rex was one of the famous "seeing-eye" dogs, trained at Morristown, N. J., to lead the blind, he said most railroads allow the dog to travel in his compartment.

"But once," said Dr. Claus, his voice rising, "they wouldn't allow it."

Dog Lobby Clicks.

The dog stiffened at the change in his master's tone.

"Rex and I," said the blind man, "rode in the baggage car that day."

None of the railroad attorneys present opposed the bill, although Fletcher suggested the regulations could be worked out without legislation.

Adjourning the hearing, Bulwinkle walked over and eased into a chair before the dog.

A moment later Rex had his paws in the chairman's lap.

"Oh, yes," announced the lawmaker, "the sub-committee will favorably report this bill to the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee."

Thus ended the first dog lobby.

Reported Dead, Veteran Loses His $410 Bonus

By the Associated Press.

A false death report cost Arthur L. Taylor, of near Chester, Va., his $410 bonus money yesterday.

R. N. Elliott, acting Comptroller General, reviewed the case and decided that Taylor was "not free from faults of negligence," and that his first wife, who got the money when he was reported dead, could keep it.

Identified in the records as Mrs. Nora Taylor, of Akron, Ohio, she got the money in 1934 after the Veterans' Administration received certification that Taylor died May 7, 1934, in Columbus, Ohio.

Elliott's ruling indicated the Veterans' Administration believed Taylor knew in 1935 that Nora Taylor had claimed his bonus and said Taylor's negligence to act then, coupled with other factors, made it impossible to pay him now.

$5,000 Loot Taken From Wood Home

Silverware, clothing and jewelry valued at more than $5,000 was stolen from her home during the last week, Mrs. Laura Wood, 4531 Twenty-eighth street northwest, reported to police yesterday.

Mrs. Wood, daughter of former Police Chief Richard Silvester, discovered the theft when she returned to the city after a week's vacation. The house was ransacked completely, she said.

Apparently taking advantage of Mrs. Wood's absence the burglar entered through a basement window and jimmied a door leading to the first floor.

Hoover Asks Boys To Battle Crime

New York, May 13 (AP).—Former President Herbert Hoover, in an address here tonight, called on leaders of the Boys Clubs of America to raise $15,000,000 for a ten-year program "to stop the manufacture of criminals."

Hoover was the principal speaker at a dinner which marked the close of the organization's thirty-first convention.

He said approximately 3,000,000 American boys lived in congested sections of the larger cities, barred from normal expenditure of their energy and curiosity in competition with nature.

"If he doesn't contend with nature he is likely to take on contention with a policeman," said Hoover, chairman of the organization.

Fresh Strikes Draw Attention Of Labor Dept.

C. I. O., A. F. L. Rift Widens as Green Attacks Lewis' Speech.

By William V. Nessly.

Fresh strikes last night engaged the attention of the Labor Department as the rift widened between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, following Wednesday's address by John L. Lewis, C. I. O. head, killing a new proposal for peace between the embattled factions.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L., issued a statement charging Lewis with making false statements in his address, delivered before the Atlantic City convention of the Ladies' Garment Workers Union. Green asserted that one of the statements attributed to the C. I. O. leader "might well be made by an avowed enemy of labor."

The Department of Labor had Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary, endeavoring to settle a sit-down strike at the Apex Hosiery Mill in Philadelphia when word came that the General Motors Fisher body plant at Cleveland had been closed by a similar stoppage.

Secretary of Labor Perkins also had James F. Dewey, conciliator, at the Jones & Laughlin steel strike in Pittsburgh. She received telephone reports from him twice during the day, but announcement as to what action the department planned was withheld.

Green "Amazed."

Green said in his statement:

"I was amazed when I read the report of the address delivered by President Lewis of the United Mine Workers * * * which quoted him as saying that I had demanded that Gov. Murphy of Michigan 'not permit any settlement of the strike with the C. I. O. or the United Automobile Workers.

"That statement is false, and because it is false I prefer to believe that Mr. Lewis lacked proper understanding of the telephone conversation I held with Gov. Murphy when he made it. I most emphatically deny that charge and resent with all the power at my command the other allegation made by Mr. Lewis, as reported in the press, that General Motors could probably get the support of the president of the American Federation of Labor."

Pleads for Unity.

He added a protest against a statement attributed to Lewis that "the lack of unity in the labor movement did not seem to be a bad thing."

Declaring that such a statement might be expected from an enemy of labor, Green said that he himself pleaded for "unity, solidarity and cooperation within the ranks of labor."

The Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, affiliated with the C. I. O., had been considering selection of a committee to seek peace between the Lewis and Green organizations, when Lewis declared:

"If the federation wants peace, let it issue some statement that it is willing to concede the principles on which the C. I. O. was founded."

no right to leave the company's property.

Union workers at the Johnstown (Pa.) plants of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, largest of the producers outside the United States Steel Corporation, established a ten-day deadline for signing of a union contract.

Murray also included union workers and organizers of the Crucible Steel Co. of America in an announcement of an executive committee meeting Saturday to plan the strategy for open warfare against the big independents.

Jones & Laughlin's plants at Aliquippa and Pittsburgh, with a yearly production capacity of 3,600,000 tons of steel, was shut tight except for a few maintenance men permitted by the union to keep fires lighted in the furnaces.

These plants were the scene of the Nation's first major steel strike in 18 years, ordered by Murray last night following a two-hour conference with Chairman Lewis, of the corporation.

Murray, chief lieutenant of John L. Lewis, whose Committee for Industrial Organization sponsored the steel union campaign, entered the conference room today without commenting on the company's statement that it had offered to sign a contract with his union, provided an identical contract was granted to its nonunion employes.

Earlier he had made a strike threat against Republic and Youngstown Sheet & Tube, declaring:

"There is every reason to believe that these companies and certain other independents have formed an alliance for the purpose of combating the signing of further union contracts."

Contracts Flatly Refused.

He said he had reports that the companies were stocking their plants with tear gas and munitions and set forth that they had "flatly refused" union contracts such as signed by the U. S. Steel Corporation Steel units and more than 100 other smaller independents.

Gov. George H. Earle flew to Pittsburgh to look into the strike which broke upon the vast Pittsburgh steel center at a time when mills reported a record peacetime backlog of orders.

The Governor earlier sent 25 State highway patrolmen into the Pittsburgh district to aid municipal police in preserving order.

Half a dozen nonunion workers were beaten in attempts to run the picket lines drawn about the three main entrances at the 5-mile long works at Aliquippa, and at least three pickets were injured in one clash with police.

Scoff At Vote Reports.

Hollywood, May 13 (AP).—Union leaders scoffed today at reports a vote has been called to decide whether to continue the strike of movie craftsmen who walked out of major Hollywood studios two weeks ago.

"Absolutely nothing to it," said Ward Hamilton, of the central committee. "The strike is going on until we win. We're not slackening."

Rumors have persisted for more than 24 hours that the unions would suspend strike activity, allowing the National Labor Relations Board to investigate differences between them and the producers, as well as with other unions.

Meanwhile, Bert Offord, secretary of the Costumers Union local, announced this group signed an agreement with the producers that does not include a closed shop, one of the major demands of the striking craftsmen.

Transport Strike Ends.

Akron, Ohio, May 13 (AP).—Akron's 31-day-old transportation strike was settled tonight when Bus and Street Car Operators Union members voted to accept an agreement drawn up jointly by the union committee and the Akron Transportation Co. Transportation service will be resumed Saturday morning, union officials announced.

Refuse to Resume Jobs.

Saginaw, Mich., May 13 (AP).—Striking employes of the Chevrolet Grey Iron Foundry overrode recommendations of United Automobile Workers of America organizers tonight and rejected a proposal that they return to work pending negotiations.

The plant, employing 5,500 men, was one of five General Motors factories in Saginaw, Cleveland, Ohio, and Janesville, Wis., closed by strikes or lack of parts, leaving a total of 16,500 employes idle.

Ellen Mussey Is Paid Tribute By 30 Groups

Leader's Memory Honored on 87th Anniversary of Her Birth.

Thirty national patriotic, legal and educational organizations were represented last night as friends and admirers of Ellen Spencer Mussey gathered at a memorial celebration in D. A. R. Memorial Continental Hall to honor a pioneer leader of women's rights.

Meeting on what would have been the eighty-seventh birthday of the founder of the Washington College of Law, 350 persons heard Mrs. Mussey praised for her "humanitarian and unselfish" work.

The speakers included Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education; Dean Grace Hays Riley of the Washington College of Law, Mme. Cantacuzene, national president, Dames of the Loyal Legion of the United States of America; Walter Davidson, of the Red Cross; William Clark Taylor, local attorney, and Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, chairman of the House District Committee.

A life of service, success and accomplishment was accredited to Mrs. Mussey by Mrs. Doyle, who paid tribute to her as "a pioneer of woman's rights and an inspiration for all women to carry on the work started by early champions of woman's rights."

Davidson read from the Red Cross records of heroic work done by Mrs. Mussey in co-operation with Clara Barton during the Galveston, Tex., disaster at the turn of the century and then praised her as a "practical idealist."

Praising her courage in the face of obstacles of another generation, Mrs. Norton expressed her desire to "live up to the ideals that her life were built upon."

"We can pay no greater tribute," she continued, "than to say that those of us who most benefited by her work are striving to do the things she wanted us to do."

Speeches were preceded by a massing of colors by organizations to which Mrs. Mussey, who died in April, 1936, belonged.

Danube Countries Seek Economic Aid

Vienna (Friday), May 14 (U.P.).—A number of Danubian countries were reported today to have informed Britain and France that they would be willing to conclude military alliances with these two great powers in return for economic assistance.

To prevent such alliances Premier Benito Mussolini and Chancellor Adolf Hitler will confer at Berchtesgaden, Germany, during the week-end, one report said. A new Italo-German accord might result from the conference.

Czechoslovakia, Hungaria, Yugoslavia, Rumania and even Austria were ready to turn away from Italy and Germany if Britain and France promised export markets and a new basis for peace to insure prosperity, a diplomat said.

German Duty Slumps Rubber

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, May 13.—Germany imposed a special import duty today on foreign rubber to assist domestic manufacturers of synthetic rubber and bolster the third Reich's "four year plan" for self-sufficiency. The levy will be the equivalent of a little more than 22 cents a pound. (It was set at 125 marks, about $50, per double hundredweight).

Revenue from this special tariff will be used for building synthetic rubber factories, a costly process in which the government, considering "Ersatz" rubber vital to the four-year plan, is giving private manufacturers public assistance.

New York, May 13 (AP).—A new slump in the rubber futures market today followed word from Berlin of imposition of a special import duty on the commodity to aid Germany's synthetic rubber activities.

The London market was similarly affected, breaking sharply before the opening here. On the New York commodity exchange futures opened .16 to .35 of a cent lower and then descended under heavy selling to levels about ¾ of a cent under previous closings. The July and September contracts sold under 21 cents a pound.

United Brethren Re-elect Board

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chambersburg, Pa., May 13.—The board of five bishops of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ was re-elected today. The bishops are H. H. Fout, Indianapolis, Ind.; A. R. Clippinger, Dayton, Ohio; A. B. Statton, Kansas City, Mo.; G. D. Batdorf, Harrisburg, Pa.; I. D. Warner, Portland, Oreg.

On recommendation of a committee, headed by Dr. F. Berry Plummer, Hagerstown, Md., the conference voted to defer for four years decision on proposed merger of foreign and home mission boards, the Christian education board and the board of administration.

Curley Advises Son To Quit Harvard

Cambridge, Mass., May 13 (AP).—A "slur" former Gov. James M. Curley said a professor cast upon his reputation cost Harvard Law School a student today, Curley's son, Leo Francis Curley.

The former Governor, thrice Mayor of Boston, explained his son resigned after the incident "and I advised him to do so."

Curley said the "slur" occurred during a class discussion of a former Midwestern mayor. He said the professor told his class that the mayor in question was corrupt, but nevertheless the people kept electing him.

"He went on to say in much the same fashion the people would elect Curley Mayor of Boston next November.

"He did not assert that I am or was corrupt, but there was a nasty implication in his words."

Leo Curley, graduated from Georgetown University last year, was a first-year student at the school.

"Economy nothing short of amazing . . . miles per gallon 18¼"

Washington, D.C.
February 24, 1937.

Ford Motor Company
Alexandria, Va.

Gentlemen:

When one is deriving the pleasure and satisfaction from an automobile that I am getting from my Lincoln-Zephyr it is difficult to fully express his appreciation.

I have found the economy of the Lincoln-Zephyr to be nothing short of amazing. Recently my wife and I took a trip to Florida. We drove a total of 2,489 miles. I kept an accurate record of gasoline purchases, which totaled 135 gallons. No attempt was made at any time to build up the economy showing of the Lincoln-Zephyr by driving at slow speeds, and yet the average miles per gallon figure for the trip was, as you will see, over 18-1/4.

Anyone who has ridden in a Lincoln-Zephyr will agree, I am sure, that the car gives unmatched comfort. I have never driven a car that handled so easily.

Very truly yours,
John H. Hunter

A few reasons why we urge you to see and drive the Lincoln-Zephyr V-12 for 1937:

Smooth-flowing 12-cylinder power . . . with 14 to 18 miles per gallon!

New body-types, now 4 in all . . . with large built-in luggage space, opening from outside.

Americans Pay High in London But Like Show

U. S. Battleship to Lead Foreign Vessels in Naval Review.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 13.—American visitors to the coronation agreed today it was a rather costly show, but worth it—once.

They were not disgruntled at the high coronation prices, though many had to dig deeper than they had expected.

James W. Gerard, head of the official United States delegation, called it "the most wonderful spectacle I have ever been privileged to witness." Others were eually lavish in their praise.

Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, retired, another member of the delegation, disclosed the United States battleship New York would have the honor of heading the line of foreign vessels at the great naval review scheduled off Portsmouth May 20.

Not a few United States tourists found they had underestimated their expenses, whether they had budgeted for a $500 maximum or had planned to spend thousands.

James Cromwell, globe-traveling husband of the former Doris Duke, the tobacco heiress, called it "the finest show I've ever seen."

Even more impressed were Mr. and Mrs. David A. Edgar and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Johnson, of Milwaukee, Wis.

"The pageant took my breath away," Johnson said. "It showed just what great things this country can do."

"We've willingly paid expenses above what we'd budgeted," Edgar commented.

E. M. Anson, of St. Paul, Minn., who saw the procession with his wife and son, Peter, had no regrets.

"The precision of the troops was wonderful," he said. "The trip is costing us from $2,500 to $3,000 and we're glad to pay it—once—but you can bet I wouldn't pay it again if there were another coronation next week."

Torrent of Rain, High Wind, Cools Sweltering City

A 48-mile-an-hour wind swept a torrent of rain over Washington last night, bringing immediate relief to a city that had sweltered through an excessively warm and humid day.

Immediately before the storm, which broke with tropical force about 6 p. m., the Weather Bureau's thermometer registered 79. Ten minutes later the reading was 63, a drop of 16 degrees.

Bandit Quartet Stages 4 Holdups

Richmond, Va., May 13 (AP).—State officers and police of two Virginia cities, Richmond and Petersburg, searched today for a quartet of bandits who shuttled back and fourth across six counties last night to stage four holdups of individuals.

In the last three robberies the men stole the automobile belonging to their immediate victim and left the car taken in the previous holdup.

They moved from Richmond to the Charles City-Hopewell ferry some miles away, then back to Richmond and finally to Petersburg. They were last reported headed back to Richmond, and police watched the highways.

Two Bandits Take Merchant's $1,250 In Rear of Home

In a twilight holdup, two armed bandits yesterday afternoon robbed John J. Swagart, of 34 Randolph place northwest, proprietor of a grocery and liquor store in the 1500 block of Seventeenth street northwest, of $1,250.

The robbers were waiting for the merchant when he parked his automobile in the rear of his home.

As the robbery was going on, Swagart's son, John Swagart, jr., came to help his father with the groceries. The robbers frisked him and took his money, also, before they fled.

Lucille Pearson, of the Roosevelt Hotel, told police as she was starting her automobile, in a parking lot near Walter Reed Hospital, a thief snatched her pocketbook containing $70, and escaped.

Barnyard Hen Heroine Of Agriculture Movie

By the Associated Press.

The barnyard hen is the heroine of the latest Government movie, a three-reel sound production of the Agriculture Department.

Scientists decided a talking picture would be a good way to teach farmers how to raise healthy hens that would lay more eggs and result in better and more fried chicken.

Royal Romance Details Hidden, Group Advised

Arlington Woman Declares Britons Were Ignorant of Edward's Affair.

By the Associated Press.

Westminster, Md., May 13.—Mrs. Victor Charles Woodbridge, of Arlington County, Va., said today she spent six months in England at the height of the Wallis Simpson-King Edward furore and heard not a word of the famous romance until she set foot again on her native shores.

Speaking before the spring gathering of the Caroline County Council of Homemakers Clubs here, Mrs. Woodbridge, a past president of the group, described her tour in England. She said she and her husband made the trip in celebration of their forty-ninth wedding anniversary.

Landing in England early in May, 1936, Mrs. Woodbridge said she and her husband traveled throughout rural England, and spent considerable time in London and other cities. Everywhere they were impressed, she said, by the affection of the British people for their then sovereign, Edward.

But not a word did they hear of the romance that has occupied the American imagination for many months, said Mrs. Woodbridge, until they arrived home and were astonished to be queried by their friends "what do you think of the Wallis Simpson reports?"

Earlier the Homemakers heard Mrs. Fred G. Holloway, wife of the president of Western Maryland College, urge them to oppose war in every way.

Speaking on world peace, Mrs. Holloway said everything Homemakers work for and build up is destroyed by war.

Reports of committee chairmen were heard, a talk was given by Miss Marguerite Gaither, county nurse, and women and children affiliated with the club gave a fashion show.

Aerial Map of Virginia To Be Finished This Year

Richmond, Va., May 13 (AP).—A complete aerial map of Virginia made from photographs taken at an altitude of 15,000 feet, will be completed this summer by the State Highway Commission in cooperation with the State planning board and Federal agencies, Maj. Charles J. Calrow, State engineer, reported today.

On the basis of the composite photograph of Virginia's 42,627 square miles, highway maps and other Virginia route maps will be corrected, the planning division of the highway department discloseed.

Maj. Calrow said the work is about 25 per cent complete.

forming him that the royal family will have something to say about where he and Mrs. Warfield may live after their marriage.

Edward was told, politely but firmly, that his royal birth still binds him fast to some of the restrictions that led him to abandon his throne so that he might find happiness with "the woman I love."

King Exercises Power.

The King, a happy monarch with the adulation of his coronation day still ringing in his ears, turned from the glory to the power of his crowning to send the stern message to his headstrong brother.

Edward and his American-born fiancee have leased a honeymoon villa in the Austrian mountains, but neither the King nor the government intends to let them live there because Central Europe is regarden as a potential trouble spot.

On the other hand, the King was involved with Edward's critics within the government who insist that the wedding ceremony by which Mrs. Warfield will become the Duchess of Windsor be ignored by the royal family.

The King, in graciousness to the brother whose romance thrust him upon the throne he had "understudied" but never expected to occupy, wants to send some member of the royal family to the wedding, if it is a church ceremony.

The peals of joyous shouts in London's rain-bedraggled streets continued, tonight as a state dinner and the coronation costume ball at Royal Albert Hall carried on the brilliance of the coronation festivities.

Rides Among Masses.

The King and his Queen rode among their people, accompanied by 11-year-old Princess Elizabeth, the "darling of the empire," to receive tumultuous demonstrations of fealty from the masses who were unable to glimpse them along the coronation route.

Not since the silver jubilee of his father, the late George V, in the summer of 1935, had a king been to these sections where poverty is no stranger.

London's newspapers, their columns exultant in descriptions of "the greatest coronation in the empire's history," virtually ignored "the uncrowned king in exile." A few devoted a couple of paragraphs to him, tucked away on some inside page; many ignored him completely.

The King spent most of the morning reading and answering many of 5,000 congratulatory cablegrams and telegrams which same from all parts of the world.

A slight recurrence of a heart ailment was blamed today for keeping J. P. Morgan, United States financier, away from the coronation ceremonies. He was to have attended as a guest of the royal family.

Dominion prime ministers and statesmen who gathered from the far corners of the world to cheer the crowning of their king, turned to the more serious problem of defending the Empire in event of war.

At 10 a. m. (5 a. m., E. D. T.) the representatives of the self-governing countries which comprise the world's greatest realm meet in Queen Anne's room of historic St. James' Palace for the plenary session of the twelfth imperial conference.

With Great Britain, "the mother land," already embarked on a $7,500,000,000 rearmament program, and Australia committed to the highest defense expenditures in war history, members of the "Empire cabinet" will hold long deliberations on their roles in the next great war.

Monts, France, May 13 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor, friends said tonight, has appealed to Queen Mother Mary to aid his fight for British government consent to royal representation at his marriage to Wallis Warfield.

"We can all be happy once more," he was said to have told the aging Queen by telephone from his chateau retreat here—if the government will approve his wish to have the Duke of Kent as best man for the wedding. Edward also wishes his bride to become "her royal highness," a title to which the government is opposed.

The government was represented as determined the wedding should be a private ceremony, but the Queen Mother was believed willing to aid her son's cause on the contention Britain owed its former King much for service in bygone days.

A spokesman at the chateau said wedding plans would be made public Monday or Tuesday, indicating hope that the matter will be settled by then.

Both the duke and Mrs. Warfield remained within the chateau today, their police guard strengthened because of an influx of threatening "crank" letters.

Windsor May Be Bidder.

New York, May 13 (AP).—Reports that an English syndicate, possibly representing the Duke of Windsor, would enter a bid tonight increased general interest in the auction sale tomorrow of William B. Leeds' $450,000 estate at Cove Neck, Long Island.

Arthur C. Sheridan, who will conduct the sale, said agents of the English group made an offer yesterday which he rejected with a request that it be renewed at the sale.

Aboard his yacht in Miami Harbor, Leeds, son of the "tinplate king," said he knew "nothing whatever" about reports that the English syndicate planned to purchase his estate. The estate is well known, he said, to the Duke of Windsor, who, as the Prince of Wales, was entertained there during a visit to the United States, by its former owner, Rodney Wanamaker.

Press Attitude Is 'Dangerous,' Ciano Declares

Warning on Anti-Italian 'Campaign' Viewed as Blow at London.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, May 13.—Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, warned London today that a press "campaign" against Italy is "gravely dangerous."

He did not mention Great Britain by name when he brought up press relations in a foreign policy discussion before the Chamber of Deputies, but said:

"I believe it my duty to call attention to the grave danger represented by the periodical offensive of a certain international press which with regard to Fascist Italy continues to be inspired only by resentment, hatred and falsehood."

Italy recalled her correspondents from London when she became irritated by British press jibes at Italians fighting in Spain, and followed the action by carrying only a brief, one-line announcement of the coronation of Kinge George VI. All but three London newspapers have been banned from Italy.

May Leave League.

[Premier Benito Mussolini will announce Italy's withdrawal from the League of Nations as soon as he concludes an economic and military alliance with Germany, it was reported tonight in Geneva, according to the United Press.

[The report that Il Duce will follow Chancellor Adolf Hitler's example in breaking off League collaboration jolted European diplomats as they prepared for two important League sessions—the council on May 24 and the assembly on May 26. The League assembly is scheduled to decide whether Ethiopia remains a member of the League and whether the delegates of Haile Selassie are to be permitted to sit in its deliberations. If Italy withdraws from the League many diplomats believe he will renounce his British agreement regarding the Mediterranean.—Editor's note.]

Count Ciano, however, reiterated an invitation to other European nations to join the Italo-German line-up. He declared also that Italy was in favor of a return to the old Treaty of Locarno. His government, he said, formally told Belgium on March 12 that Italy was ready to guarantee her neutrality.

Italy, he told the deputies, is willing to give "active contribution" to American efforts for world-wide economic reconstruction.

Premier Benito Mussolini looked at his foreign minister intently as Count Ciano declared: "The Fascist government has followed with sympathetic attention efforts of American statesmen directed toward facilitating world economic reconstruction and is ready when the occasion presents itself to give active contribution thereto."

He said "we would be pleased if greater understanding of our ideals and our works" prevented the American public from "letting itself be so frequently led astray by propaganda whose origin and pretensions can easily be recognized."

Not Too Hopeful.

The foreign minister said his nation's attitude toward League of Nations reform was not too hopeful, but not "dogmatically skeptical."

He denied that British rearmament had led Italy to assume her present position.

He asserted also that Italy had not asked anyone to recognize the empire set-up following the conquest of Ethiopia.

Turning to Spain, the foreign minister said his government would respect the aims of the nonintervention control plan. He said, however, that Italy was a "little skeptical" about the effectiveness of the system.

Virginio Gayda voiced warnings to Britain similar to those of Count Ciano in an editorial in the Giornale d'Italia. "It is evident," he wrote, "that agitation in the British press is attempting—but in vain—to attack the Rome-Berlin axis and divide its vital parts."

British Destroyer Hits Mine; Three Sailors Killed

Reports from Gibraltar stated three sailors were killed and about 20 injured when the British destroyer Hunter presumably struck a mine or was torpedoed off the Spanish coast near Almeria. The blast tore a hole in the warship near the water line, but did not sink it.

stroyer Flotilla in the Mediterranean Fleet.

Lieut. Comdr. B. C. Scurfield is her commander.

The Hunter is a sister ship to the Hyperion, built under the 1934 naval program.

The Hunter cost about $1,500,000. She carries four 4.7-inch guns with seven smaller guns and eight torpedo tubes.

London Startled.

London (Friday), May 14 (AP).—News of an explosion which disabled the British destroyer Hunter off the southern coast of Spain startled London early today as the admiralty acted quickly to learn the cause and determine the exact number of dead and injured.

The admiralty said the blast tore a hole in the warship near the waterline while she was cruising 5 miles off Almeria, Spain.

Reports received from Gibraltar naval authorities said 3 sailors were killed and 12 injured. The admiralty reported "we still have no confirmation as to exatly what occurred or how many casualties were involved."

Authoritative sources declined comment.

The crew of the destroyer Hardy in Gibraltar was recalled to duty at once and the Hardy was made ready to go to sea. Authorities gave no reason for the preparation, but it was presumed it was connected with the Hunter incident.

Bilbao, Spain, May 13 (AP).—The town of Munguia shook with the explosions of insurgent bombs today while Gen. Emilio Mola's army moved closer to refugee-jammed Bilbao from north and east.

(Government lines were pushed back along a 15-mile front and at some points the insurgents advanced to within 5 miles of Bilbao, said accounts from insurgent-held Guernica.)

The air attacks on Munguia, only 7 miles north of Bilbao, threatened to make the town "a second Guernica," government reports said.

(Guernica, the "holy city" of the Basque country, was wrecked two weeks ago, and an estimated 800 persons were killed. The government asserted German bombers ruined the city. The insurgents declared the Basques destroyed it as they retreated.)

Basque authorities reported a German pilot who admitted participating in bombing Guernica had been captured.

The airman, said to be Joachim Hans Wandel, 23, was quoted as declaring he was recruited in Berlin February 22, the day after the international agreement banning foreign volunteers went into effect. Germany subscribed to that accord.

Food Short at Madrid Embassy.

Mayrid, May 13 (AP).—Residents of the United States Embassy took stock of fast-dwindling food supplies tonight and looked to American authorities at Valencia, temporary seat of the Spanish government, for help.

New Rules to Cut Academy Failures, House Group Says

By the Associated Press.

A special House Naval Affairs sub-committee reported yesterday that new regulations being adopted by the Navy should eliminate a high percentage of rejections of Naval Academy midshipmen as a result of annual eyesight examinations.

The sub-committee, headed by Representative Patrick H. Drewry, of Petersburg, Va., was named several weeks ago by Chairman Carl Vinson (Democrat), Georgia, to investigate the cause of the high percentage of failures at the academy due to poor eyesight.

"Hereafter all candidates for admission to the Naval Academy will be refracted and those showing defective eyesight will be considered not physically qualified," the report said.

The report added the committee felt midshipmen in the first class should be permitted to graduate though not commissioned in the Navy due to defective eyesight. It said the Navy Department has agreed to this.

Half-Billion Cut To Relief Loses In House Group

Appropriations Committee Turns Back Revolt for Economy.

if private industry absorbs the half million dropped.

It was Representative Woodrum, chairman of the sub-committee handling the relief bill, and ardent supporter of the President on other matters, who led the unsuccessful committee fight to reduce relief appropriations to $1,000,000,000

Battle Going to Floor.

Woodrum said last night he will carry his fight to the floor. He will be in a strategic parliamentary position, because his sub-committee bill, with the $1,000,000,000 relief figure, will be the immediate legislation before the House. Yesterday's committee recommendation from $1,500,000,000 must be offered as anamendment.

The House will be faced with the unique situation of a divided committee leadership. Woodrum, opponent of the increase, will be in charge of the bill, but Representative Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, ranking Democratic member, will marshal Administration strength for the $500,000,000 increase. Besides Cannon, aligned against Woodrum will be the entire Democratic leadership.

An attempt at a $1,250,000,000 compromise will be made by Representative William B. Umstead (Democrat), of North Carolina. Woodrum will support this if his $1,000,000,000 plan fails. Umstead offered his $1,250,000,000 compromise in committee yesterday, but was voted down, 20 to 15.

Woodrum told reporters he regarded his amendment denying Hopkins the right to incur deficiency relief obligations as more important than a slash in the relief figure.

This provision reads:

"The funds allocated hereunder to the Works Progress Administration shall be so apportioned and distributed over the 12 months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1938, and shall be so administered during such fiscal year, as to constitute the total amount that will be furnished during such fiscal year through such agency for relief purposes."

200 Million Segregated.

This requirement, if approved by Congress, would prevent Hopkins from spending the full $1,500,000,000 he seeks, as only about $1,300,000,000 of the amount would be strictly available to WPA. About $100,000,000 of the total is sought by the Resettlement Administration, while an additional $100,000,000 would go to the National Emergency Council, the National Resources Board and other agencies.

The bill itself sets these limits on spending, coupled with authority for the President to make 15 per cent transfers between classifications:

Construction of public buildings, parks, recreation facilities, airports, transportation aids, flood control and conservation projects—$630,000,000.

Highways, roads and streets—$415,000,000.

White collar and women's projects—$379,950,000.

National Youth Administration—$75,000,000.

Funds in Hand.

About $100,000,000 in WPA funds, and $123,000,000 additional in other funds heretofore made available for relief would be unexpended, and could be used in the next fiscal year, Acting Budget Director Bell told the committee.

Among the amendments written into the relief bill by the committee yesterday was one by Representative J. Burrwood Daly, Pennsylvania Democrat, cutting off pay in administrative or supervisory relief positions, where these officials accept pay for personal services "from any other source."

In addition, the Daly amendment requires that persons holding executive positions outside the District under the act must be "actual and bona fide residents" of the States in which projects or offices are located. But officials could be assigned outside of their locality for periods up to 60 days.

$3,000,000,000 Asked.

As a pitched battle on the floor to return the relief appropriation to the $1,000,000,000 figure appeared imminent, so-called House liberals launched plans for a fight to more than double the amount. At a conference yesterday, they discussed plans to seek an increase to $2,500,000,000 or $3,000,000,000.

Representative Alfred F. Beiter (Democrat), of New York, will lead another bloc fight to earmark $300,000,000 of the total for the extension of the PWA program.

Meantime, printed hearings of the committee disclosed that both Hopkins and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace testified the Government must remain indefinitely in the relief business.

"I think Federal relief is a permanent function of the Government," Hopkins said. Wallace said he was "afraid that Federal aid to the destitute farmers will continue to be accentuated except in years of unusual prosperity," and warned against "sudden economies."

2,225,000 on Relief.

Hopkins estimated there are now between 7,000,000 and 9,000,000 people unemployed, and even in normal times between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 would be without jobs. There are now approximately 2,225,000 persons on relief rolls. Hopkins said he would not "arbitrarily drop people who are in need of relief and have no employment. The best you can anticipate at the present time is that economic conditions will permit this. No one can be sure of that."

Vigorously opposing the proposed $500,000,000 relief slash, Hopkins said it would mean "dropping arbitrarily 1,150,000 people who are in need of relief and who have no other means of getting any livelihood."

Wallace urged a study of taxation and expenditure from the standpoint of "net income in the hands of the average businessman in the small towns of this country."

Backing up Hopkins and the President, the United Conference of Mayors issued a statement declaring reduction in the Administration's estimates "unthinkable," and holding cities now are "paying up to the limit of their ability." The mayors' statement said cities and States had increased their outlay for relief from $338,793,000 in 1933 to $1,244,953,000 last year.

The $60,000,000 Senate cut in the Administration's $500,000,000 1938 soil conservation estimates followed heated floor debate, in which Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, charged there is an "element of racketeering" in administration of the soil-conservation program.

Secretary Wallace had opposed the cut at a recent press conference, contending it would mean a reduction of from 10 to 15 per cent in soil-conservation payments to individual farmers.

"Subsidy" Attacked.

Vandenberg in the Senate raised the question of whether these payments are not being used as an excuse for "a great many benefit payments, which have no relationship to soil conservation whatever and which are virtually subsidy gratuities of one kind or another."

He said in many instances checks are paid to farmers "who have never signed a contract, who have never reduced an acre." He cited published accounts of such instances.

Fears that flood control blocs in House and Senate may make further inroads on the budget meanwhile were raised by unexpected developments.

Announcement by Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, that the Army appropriation bill will be held up in the Senate until the bill carrying nonmilitary war appropriations is passed by the House, prompted this concern. Army circles were reported worried lest the $416,413,382 Army bill may be cut in the Senate to permit inclusion of flood control funds. Copeland has been urging $60,000,000 for flood control.

In the House, Chairman William M. Whittington of the House Flood Control Committee urged the Appropriations Committee to raise Budget Bureau estimates of $52,500,000 for flood control projects to $95,000,000 and to increase the omnibus flood control appropriation from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000.

Berry Sued by TVA For Mineral Rights

Knoxville, Tenn., May 13 (AP).—The Tennessee Valley Authority filed suit against United States Senator George L. Berry and others in Federal court today to condemn their mineral rights on 32 tracts of land in the Norris Reservoir area.

Owners of the property filed claims against the Authority several months ago for $1,633,000.

Before his appointment as junior Senator from Tennessee last week, Berry issued a statement in which he said he and associates owned valuable marble in land purchased by the TVA and now covered by Norris Lake. He charged the TVA "confiscated my property without compensation or effort to settle the matter."

Sales Tax Urged To Replace D.C. Income Levy

Counsel of Corporation Doubts Legality of Assessment on Salaries.

Because doubt has been cast upon the constitutionality of the proposed District income tax, Elwood Seal, corporation counsel, yesterday said he would "like to see a sales tax substituted for it."

"According to the Board of Trade's figures, last year's retail sales in the District totaled $335,000,000. A 1 per cent tax would yield $3,350,000, and if we exempted necessities, the tax would still yield $2,850,000.

"Moreover," he said, "there would be absolutely no doubt about the constitutionality of the sales tax."

If the income tax is abandoned, he added, "we might substitute for it along with the sales tax a tobacco tax. A 2-cent tax on each package of cigarettes sold in the District would produce about $1,000,000 annually."

The constitutionality of the income tax, which would raise about $3,000,000, was questioned Tuesday in a hearing before the House District Committee. At that time, Seal pointed out, no State has ever been able to tax the salary of a Federal employe. Such a limitation on taxing power, he said, might conceivably apply to the District.

Neither, he said, would it be possible to exempt from the tax all Federal employes in the District, because the tax would then become discriminatory on the remainder of District residents. Courts do not permit, he said, discriminatory taxes.

I. C. C. Closes Hearing On Expansion of C. & O.

Methodists Assail White House 'Rum'

Gardner, Mass., May 13 (AP).—The New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church today adopted a resolution criticizing what it termed the "serving of liquor in the White House."

"We note with sincere and profound regret," the resolution said, "that liquor is served within the home of the President of the United States, and that it was even served at a New Year's reception to young people within the White House. We note also that the Government has recently dispatched its first shipment of rum from the Virgin Islands, where it was made as a Works Progress Administration project."

to die a month from today for Mrs. Jaynes' murder, is 5 feet 6.

Three police officers—F. J. Haack, Thomas F. Heide and M. J. Mahaney—questioned Mrs. Jaynes after the shooting on the night of Good Friday, 1931. They have recently made statements to the Department of Justice that Mrs. Jaynes described the two holdup men as 6-footres. They were not called as witnesses in the trial.

Mrs. Frank J. Bell, who was manager of the Columbia road apartment house in which the Garden T Shoppe is located, told the Department of Justice that she talked with Mrs. Jaynes directly after the shooting. Mrs. Jaynes did not know she had been shot, Mrs. Bell said, and was able to talk. She quoted Mrs. Jaynes as saying about the man who fired the shot:

"He was a thin, tall man, gray eyes and light hair * * * He was in the cafe in the afternoon. He had lunch there and sat at the third table from the cashier's desk."

Jordon has dark eyes and black hair.

Mrs. Bell said she gave her name to the police the night of the shooting, but that she was never called for the trial.

Described as Short.

Commenting on this evidence last night, Good said:

"I don't recall that there was any testimony about two 6-footers. All I remember was that one of the bandits was described as a tall man and the other as a short one. The prosecution said that Jordon was the short one.

"Nobody ever identified Jordon as I remember it. The whole case was built around his confession. The circumstances around that were mighty strange. Jordon said he was going to marry a girl up in Mount Vernon, N. Y. He said he told her he had been questioned about the T-Shoppe murder and was released, but that she was worried and so he wrote to District Attorney Garnett to ask if he had been cleared. Then they sent a detective up there to arrest him. Jordon says he confessed so that they wouldn't drag the girl into it.

"Case Called Strange."

"There's a lot of strange things about this case. I made a mistake when I voted for first degree murder, and I told Judge Letts that I did. I was one against 11. I only had slept 45 minutes all night, and we were locked up in the jury room. I didn't want to hold the 11 any longer. It was a mistake, and it worries me more now than ever."

Some of the other jurors feel the same as Good does about the evidence in the case. They feel that they should have been given a complete picture, including the testimony that Mrs. Jaynes had described the bandits as six-footers.

It was the discovery of the police lookout and the statements gathered recently by the Department of Justice that led President Roosevelt to interrupt his fishing in the Gulf of Mexico and wireless a message to postpone Jordon's execution for 30 days. Had the President not done that, Jordon would have gone to the chair this morning.

The jury in Jordon's trial was out for 25 hours. It brought in its verdict on a Friday. The following Monday, Juror Good appeared before Judge F. Dickinson Letts, who sentenced Jordon to the chair.

Instructions Misunderstood

Good told Judge Letts that the jury had not understood his instructions; that all except him believed that they had one of two choices—a verdict of first-degree murder or a verdict of not guilty. Good said that he wanted to vote for a verdict of second-degree murder, but that the others said there could be no such verdict. Good said the evidence indicated that the bandit's gun went off accidentally after he had the money, and that, therefore, it would not be more than second-degree murder.

Good told Judge Letts that he was blocked whenever he tried to have the jury go into court and have the instructions repeated.

Described as Hopeless.

"You understood my charge, did you not?" Judge Letts asked Good.

"I think so."

"And you understood from my charge that if a robbery was committed by this defendant and others, as charged, and that while perpetrating the crime he accidentally discharged his gun, he was entitled to no more than a second-degree verdict?"

"Yes."

"You knew that?"

"Yes."

"Why did you violate the instructions then?"

"It was hopeless the next day to arrive at anything else. I was the only one left, but I did not want to set him free."

As Traffic-Conscious Citizens Honored Lieut. Kreml, Safety Expert

times single-handed, of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, who seeks to put the act's operations on a pay-as-you-go basis, obviating the much-feared $47,000,000,000 reserve fund to be built up years hence.

Learning of the action of the Democrats of the House Ways and Means, Vandenberg said last night:

"The investigating commission is just a group of voluntary experts who know a little something of what they're talking about. Maybe that makes them persona non grata with the Democrats of the House Ways and Means Committee."

Suggests Ignorance.

"These experts were generous enough to consent to serve for nothing, which again may outrage the whole theory of these Democratic gentlemen, in going to the bottom of the complex and highly important problem—which I seriously doubt these gentlemen of the House committee understand.

"If it is lese majeste to inquire into the findings of intelligent citizens, we have moved not into fascism, but to nonsense.

"There is only one thing I'm sorry about and that is if Mr. Altmeyer and his board find themselves embarrassed because of their willingness to co-operate, in a constructive way, to find a sound solution to a difficult problem."

There was nothing in the statement made by Senator Vandenberg that was calculated to soothe the already outraged sensibilities of the House committee members, observers agreed.

Vandenberg Asked Inquiry.

It was further noted that Vandenberg's formal resolution for an inquiry into the operations of the act—a resolution which was never agreed to, but out of which grew the present informal investigation—is still before the House Ways and Means Committee, in a bill sponsored by a Republican committee member, Daniel A. Reed, of New York. It has never been acted on by the committee, on which there are 18 Democrats and 7 Republicans.

The Social Security Board actually is making the study. A special Senate committee of three, composed of three conservative Senators, each sympathetic with the act's objective, is acting jointly in conducting the survey into proposed changes.

These three are Chairman Pat Harrison, Mississippi, of the Senate Finance Committee; Harry F. Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, and Vandenberg.

The board and this committee jointly selected a 24-man advisory council, six respectively for industry and labor and 12 for the public. The objectives of the study are whether to commence monthly benefit payments sooner than January 1, 1942; whether to increase monthly benefits for those retiring in the early years; whether to extend benefits to persons incapacitated prior to age 65; whether to extend such benefits to survivors of those entitled to benefits; whether to increase taxes less rapidly than outlined; whether to extend benefits to groups now excluded—servants and farm workers, and whether the size, character and disposition of the reserves, as now operated, is sound.

Nowhere is the House, and especially the powerful Ways and Means committee, represented in the study. This motivated the off-the-record appearance of Altmeyer and Miles yesterday before the committee, which was said to have raked the survey fore and aft before declaring a policy of revenge.

Council of Citizens Will Fight Mounting D.C. Auto Death Toll

tional Broadcasting Co. Lieut. Kreml, youthful enforcement officer and traffic analyst, who came here from Detroit yesterday, lauded those present for their sentiment and willingness to combine for a single purpose—saving lives.

"The conservation of lives on public highways," said Kreml, "is the most important work of modern times. We can't go at it too strongly nor too thoroughly."

He then cited the Nation's toll of 37,000 lives last year and predicted, at the present rate, the highway death list would increase to 40,000 this year.

"The worst months are before us," Kreml said. "Approximately one-half of the total number of deaths and injuries occur during October, November and December. If we are to act, now is the time to do it."

Accidents, Kreml explained, can be prevented. They don't just happen—they are caused, he added. The word "accident" gives a false representation to the picture, because auto crashes are the fault of some person or thing, he said.

With present control methods, similar to ones he has established in leading cities throughout the country, we can prevent many of these needless mishaps, Kreml declared. Numerous accident causes are known, while others still remain a mystery, he pointed out.

Accurate Records Urged

Accurate reporting and records of accident types, said Kreml, are important factors in determining what must be done. He stressed the need of "the whole picture" before remedies can be applied."

"A planned program of traffic control is necessary," said the young officer. "There must be nothing haphazard about it. We, the people, have determined the problem can be corrected; and we, the people, must see that corrective measures are carried out."

Public responsibility in motoring is another important factor in the problem, Kreml asserted, and in many instances the citizens themselves have placed selfishness above this responsibility, he said.

The three "E's" of traffic control—enforcement, engineering and education—were stressed by the speaker as major weapons in the fight against driving recklessness. No one of these factors, however, is an efficient means of control—they must be combined, Kreml declared.

There is a definite need for additional traffic control facilities in Washington, Kreml warned. More policemen, he said, and improved equipment must be secured before the city may expect to win its battle.

More Investigation Cars.

The police department now has but two accident investigation squad cars, operating with antiquated equipment. There should be, Kraml declared, similar cars in each of the 12 police precincts.

He urged District residents to support Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, in his efforts to improve conditions. He lauded the work of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, but at the same time pointed to the need for increased financial aid and personnel in handling traffic control matters.

In less than three years Lieut. Kreml reduced the Evanston death rate from 29.3 per 100,000 population to 2.9 by using systematic methods of accident prevention. Trained officers, he said, now tour Evanston streets under orders for strict enforcement and accurate investigations.

Urges "Proper Penalties."

Squad cars in his city, said Kreml, are especially equipped to investigate accidents. Efforts are made to determine whether a law violation caused the crash, and if so, prosecution is pressed.

"In addition to public support," Kreml declared, "it is necessary to secure the backing of the courts and prosecutors. Arrests alone will not do the job unless those arrests are followed by proper penalties under law."

After Lieut. Kreml concluded his talk, Meyer called for questions.

Mrs. George Thorpe, chairman of the women's traffic committee of the American Automobile Association, asked about schools for drivers and was told such classes are now being conducted throughout the country under municipal leadership.

Pedestrian Control.

In answer to another question of pedestrian control, Lieut. Kreml referred the answer to Burton Marsh, safety director of the A. A. A. Marsh pointed out that it is difficult to control pedestrians in outlying sections, where the majority of fatal accidents occur. Control of pedestrians, said Marsh, rests largely with a change in their viewpoint.

Senators Vote To Set Aside Dodd's Letter

Billionaire Dictator Note Arouses Ire of Borah.

By the Associated Press.

The Senate displayed an intense disinterest yesterday in the identity of the billionaire who, Ambassador Dodd says, is ready to establish a Fascist dictatorship in the United States.

To the accompaniment of some light-hearted banter that did not get into the record, it readily squelched an effort to demand that the envoy to Germany name his man.

At the suggestion of Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, it referred to the Foreign Relations Committee "for study and inquiry" a resolution by Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, directing the State Department to obtain the billionaire's name from the ambassador.

Dodd's statements were made in a letter to several Senators urging support of the Roosevelt court reorganization plan lest fascism and dictatorship spread to this country.

Senator Nye was one of those who took it seriously. He was indignant at the action of the Senate and saw no possibility of wringing the billionaire's name from Dodd "unless some members of the committee is willing to force the thing" through.

Envoy's Generalization.

Berlin, May 13 (AP).—United States Ambassador William E. Dodd, informed of the Nye resolution calling on him to "name the billionaire," said tonight altogether too much stress was being laid on a single paragraph of his letter to Senator Robert J. Bulkley—that referring to dictatorship.

He said he had no intention of revealing the names of his informants or the name of the billionaire who, he said in his letter, is ready to establish a Fascist dictatorship in the United States. He spoke today of "some multi-millionaires."

"The fact is, three well-informed Americans talked to me in 1935 and 1936 about certain powerful men who were thinking of a dictatorship.

"I did not say all that was said focussed in the same direction and of course I cannot report to anybody the names of the people who made the statements."

Borah Aroused.

Chicago, May 13 (AP).—A letter in which Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, wrote that he felt certain advocates of fascism living in America "will not be permitted indefinitely to sail under two flags" was made public here today by Salmon O. Levinson, attorney and friend of Borah.

P.-T.A. to Stage Benefit Tonight

The District Parent-Teacher Association will stage a magic show tonight in Anacostia High School as the opening event in its campaign to raise money for the organization's student aid work this year. All proceeds will go to provide lunches and clothing for needy school children.

Charles W. Townsley, Washington member of the American Society of Magicians, will be master of legerdemain tonight. Mrs. William A. Moyer, chairman of the P.-T. A. ways and means committee, is in charge.

Tonight's show will be the first of a series planned to boost the fund. Others are Mondey night, John Quincy Adams School; May 21, Taft School; May 25, McKinley High School; June 2, Eastern; June 4, Western; June 7, Roosevelt; June 9, Paul; June 10, Steuart, and June 11, Central.

P.-T.A. Student Aid Fund Drive Opens

Its annual campaign for funds necessary to carry through the next school year the work of its student aid organization will be launched tonight by the District of Columbia Parent-Teacher Association.

The meeting will be held in Anacostia High School. It will be in the form of a "magic show," profits from which will go to the fund, out of which lunches and clothing are provided for underprivileged children.

Charles W. Townsley, a member of the American Society of Magicians, will be the master of ceremonies. The show will be repeated in several of the high school and grade school auditoriums of the city.

didn't hit me; it hit the wall or the window or something.

"Pretty soon the air is so thick with beer bottles you can't see across the room. They seem to have chose up sides for it. I'm still in one corner, acting as though nothing has happened at all. I didn't want to embarass the hostess.

"The next thing I know, a woman falls down at my feet. I guess she got hit by one of the bottles, or somebody shoved her or something.

"Well, by that time, of course, I had to take some notice. I picked up the woman and carried her out of there. There was no other place to take her, so I took her to the police station. I know all the boys there and I knew everything would be all right.

"Then I went back to the house to get my things. I thought it would be better that way."

He spent the rest of the night at a hotel, he said. He declined to give the name of anyone at the party.

Zeppelin Blast Laid to Mishap In Maneuvers

Schroeder Voices Opinion After Board Hears Survivors' Stories.

By the Associated Press.

Lakehurst, N. J., May 13.—A member of the Commerce Department board of inquiry said tonight "undoubtedly a landing maneuver accident" led to the destruction of the German Zeppelin Hindenburg a week ago.

Maj. R. W. Schroeder, assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Air Commerce, made the statement after three days of testimony on the air disaster which cost 39 lives.

Members of the crew of the dirigible during the day told publicly for the first time their stories of what they saw and heard aboard the ship before and during the flaming plunge to the ground.

But it was apparently the previous testimony of persons on the ground which supplied the basis for Schroeder's expressed conviction as to the cause.

Discussing the day's hearing which brought out testimony about airplanes flying near the Zeppelin, Schroeder, former holder of the world's altitude record, said the board had no information that planes had crossed above the Hindenburg but it was following up every possible angle, "even to the dropping of a bomb or the firing of an incendiary bullet."

A 14-year-old mess boy, three cooks and four stewards, each a survivor of the Hindenburg, were witnesses during the afternoon.

They told of flames raging overhead, of desperate leaps from a falling airship, of heroic plunges back into the inferno for others.

But they added little or nothing to aid the investigators.

Meanwhile, the German commission to investigate the disaster arrived in New York tonight on the Europa. Its chairman, Dr. Hugo Eckener, veteran airship designer, will be asked to testify as an expert, the Commerce Department board announced.

Cumberland Tax Rate Increase Is Proposed

Cumberland, Md., May 13.—Previous indications that the Cumberland tax rate for 1937-38 would increase from $1.02 to $1.10 was borne out yesterday when Frank A. Wolfhope, city auditor, submitted a tentative budget to the Mayor and City Council.

Using a $1.10 rate the estimated revenue from all sources is $546,300 and the budget submitted yesterday calls for the expenditure of that amount. It is an increase of $37,122 over last year.

Building Boom Setting Record In Page County

Luray Activity Marked by Erection of Two Large Properties.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Luray, Va., May 13.—Luray and Page County are enjoying the biggest building boom in their history. Permits issued at the office of the town council, and prospective permits approximate $250,000 for a six-month period, it was said.

At present on Main street in Luray two large brick business buildings are being erected at an approximate vost of $25,000, one by J. T. Campbell, tinner, and another by Henry Huffman, druggist. Two others are in prospect, to be built by A. L. Waye, who expects to tear down the old Rhodes property, and another to take the place of the recently burned Hershberger property.

Recently completed are a large brick building by E. N. Hershberger, county treasurer, valued at $15,000, and another in which a 5 and 10 cent store is housed by Maurice Waters. The Luray tannery has just completed a large addition.

At least 20 residences are going up.

On the outskirts of the town additional buildings are going up, and in Stanley and Shenandoah unusual activity is noted.

Wealthy Matron Cleared of Taking Gardener's Love

New Haven, Conn., May 13 (AP).—A superior court jury decided late today that Mrs. Elsie B. Hooker, wealthy New Haven society matron, did not steal the love of her handsome former gardener.

Out of the courtroom a scant 22 minutes, the jury found for Mrs. Hooker on all issues in the $50,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Frank Sylvester, whose husband was employed on the Hooker country estate in North Madison from 1931 to 1936.

Opposing counsel pictured Mrs. Hooker alternately as a "she wolf" who held Sylvester enthralled and a kind-hearted employer made the victim of a "blackmail case." Her husband, Clarence R. Hooker, is a wealthy retired investment broker and socially prominent yachtsman.

Sylvester testified to intimacies with his employer and secret rendezvous with her beneath a hemlock tree on the estate.

Garbage Plant Chicken Sales Under Inquiry

Plaints Collectors Asked to Aid 'Aunt Mary' Are Investigated.

With half a dozen policemen and detectives scattered about, the District garbage plant yesterday afternoon became the scene of an investigation into complaints that garbage collectors were being asked to buy chickens from the superintendent, William R. Wood.

The investigation, conducted by Assistant Corporation Counsel Stanley De Neale, J. B. Gordon, director of sanitary engineering, and William Xanten, superintendent of city refuse, also heard complaints that collectors every pay day were contributing to the support of a woman known as "Aunt Mary."

Stoley McCrae, colored, the first witness called, asserted he had never seen "Aunt Mary," but believed she was an old colored woman who lived across the street from the plant.

Two other collectors, both colored, testified they had each bought two chickens from Wood. The first, James Wells, said he had paid $1.50 apiece for his. He had bought them, he said, because he "saw the other men do the same thing."

William Bullock, the second, said he had paid 80 cents apiece for his, but "I thought that was too much, because they were too small." Bullock also stated that Wood on pay days stood near the cashier's window and reminded the collectors not to "'forget Aunt Mary."

Wood will testify in two weeks, when, it is expected, the investigation will be resumed.

Funeral services for George E. Weed, 64, of Seabrook, Md., retired chief clerk of the District of Columbia Postoffice, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the Glenn Dale Episcopal Church. Burial will be in the family burial plot at Glenn Dale.

A resident of Seabrook for 50 years, Weed died Wednesday night at Casualty Hospital after a month's illness. He was born at Fort Duncan, Tex., November 9, 1872. His father, a physician in the Army during the Civil War, later served in the office of the Surgeon General.

Weed, who retired from the postoffice in 1935 after 42 years service, was prominent in civic affairs at Seabrook.

He is survived by his wife, Gertrude Weed; one son, George E. Weed, jr., of Landover, Md., and six daughters, Mrs. George Brant, Coral Gables, Fla.; Mrs. Roselle Coleman, East Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Ruth Johnson, Lakewood, R. I.; Mrs. Alice R. Morgan, Seabrook, and Misses Jennie and Alberta Weed, of Seabrook.

Red Rider Repeal.

Senate and House conferees are reported to have ironed out their differences over the "red rider." The pressure seems to have come entirely from representatives of the Senate. House delegates plainly caved in under it. And this is as it should be.

The House, it will be recalled, voted to change the rider from "red" to "pink." That is to say, it agreed to revise the clause in the District appropriations act so as to forbid the use of funds to pay "any person advocating communism or any other un-American doctrine." Moreover, it was willing to end the requirement that District school teachers sign pledges before obtaining their salaries. The Senate, in refreshing contrast, twice during this session voted for outright repeal of the measure.

House leaders explained weakly that their equivocating measure was needed to protect members from possible misapprehensions. A vote for absolute repeal of the "red rider," they pleaded, might be construed as an indorsement of communism. Senate conference delegates now appear to have settled this fear by proposing that the repeal bill include an express proviso setting forth that the action should in no wise be construed as an approval of communism.

In effect, then, the Senate's sensible attitude on the matter has prevailed and Washington should soon be rid of an embarrassing insult to its public school system.

The Imperial Conference.

For the fifth time since the end of the World War a great conference of the British Commonwealth of Nations is meeting in London for a comprehensive discussion of joint problems.

The coronation, attended by the premiers of all the self-governing dominions, with the conspicuous exception of the Irish Free State, undoubtedly has helped strengthen the sentimental ties binding the nations of the Commonwealth to one another. Yet none knows better than the statesmen of Britain and the dominions how fragile these ties are, in many particulars, and how easily they might be disrupted.

It is the basic purpose of the present imperial conference, therefore, to make the British Commonwealth of Nations more than a legal concept or a banquet phrase—to make it a truly vital entity in the sphere of world affairs.

That explains why the first subject on the agenda at London is the problem of foreign affairs and imperial defense. For the centrifugal tendency within the empire is already great, and that tendency would be enormously accelerated were Great Britain plunged into war. In the absence of any common policy regarding world affairs, and with the cohesive element hitherto provided by common membership in the League of Nations greatly weakened by recent events, such a war might see the United Kingdom going one way and one or more of the dominions quite another.

Against such a possibility British statesmen are trying to erect safeguards. But whether they can succeed in winning the consent of the dominions to the formulation of an integrated foreign policy for the Commonwealth as a whole is still very much open to question.

From the American point of view the subject of greatest importance before the Imperial Conference is that of trade. The present gathering coincides with the impending expiration of the Ottawa agreements, except the Canadian-British renewal pact that has already been concluded.

The fate of these agreements will also determine the fate of the long-hoped-for Anglo-American commercial accord. If Great Britain and the dominions decide to give new life to the policy adopted at Ottawa four years ago, of increasing inter-imperial trade even at the expense of trade with the outside world, the conclusion of an Anglo-American trade pact will be out of the question. If, on the other hand, a decision is now made to enlist the Commonwealth on the side of freer world trade, the Hull program will be given an enormous stimulus.

It is by no means certain what Britain's course will be, and it is the London government which will have to make the crucial decision. The Anglo-Canadian agreement modified the 1932 pact between the two nations to the extent of permitting an expansion in Canadian-American trade. There are those in Australia and New Zealand who also believe that a general lowering of trade barriers, both within and without the empire, is urgently needed. But it is not so clear that the majority of the present British cabinet favors any such trend. The protectionist fever in Great Britain has by no means run its course. It may manifest itself anew, with the result of increasing rather than reducing preferences within the empire. In that case the present hopeful tendency toward freer trade would be dealt a serious blow.

A Test Of The Wagner Act.

The strike which has closed the plants of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation appears to be due entirely to the refusal of the management to recognize representatives of the union (a C. I. O. organization) as an exclusive bargaining agency. There is no quarrel over wages, hours, or conditions of work.

The company declares its willingness to sign a contract with the union, provided an identical contract may be offered to its non-union workers. But an arrangement of this sort is naturally opposed by organized labor. In any case it would be contrary to the provisions of the Wagner act. That law clearly states that the individuals selected by a majority of the employes shall be the exclusive representatives of all the workers in the unit for purposes of collective bargaining.

It is extremely important, therefore, to determine whether the accredited spokesmen for the organized steel workers in the Jones & Laughlin plants represent a majority of the employes. The company evidently believes they do not, since it has offered to grant an exclusive contract to the group obtaining a majority vote at an employes' election supervised by the National Labor Relations Board. That is obviously the procedure which ought to be followed to avoid conflicts over representation. If organized labor resorts to direct action whenever the outcome of a supervised election seems doubtful, the course of collective bargaining will certainly not be smooth and peaceful.

In the present case, it looks as if the C. I. O. labor leaders wished to avoid a test of their strength at this time. If they could coerce the company into signing an exclusive agreement, the question of their representative character would cease to be important. They would then be in a strategic position to extend their organization and establish their claim to speak for the majority. Hence, despite the Wagner act, they prefer the tactics of industrial warfare to the peaceful procedure which the law contemplates.

The situation is plainly one that warrants investigation by the National Labor Relations Board. Under the provisions of the Wagner act the board is empowered to investigate any controversy concerning the representation of employes. For that purpose it may take a secret ballot of employes or "utilize any other suitable method to ascertain such representatives." In view of the serious disturbances involving one large unit of the steel industry and the threat of others to come, prolonged inaction on the part of the board would be difficult to explain. Certainly the board cannot maintain a passive attitude in these circumstances without destroying public confidence in the value of the Wagner act as a means of furthering peaceful collective bargaining.

The Abattoir Controversy.

It is strange that the packers planning an abattoir for the Northeast section of the city do not withdraw. They are mistaken if they believe that opposition to their project comes only from the National Capital Parks office and the Public Works Administration which is building a residential project in this neighborhood. Dependable gauges of public opinion show that the dominant sentiment of the city is against a slaughterhouse here.

Any number of nearby industrial centers would welcome a slaughterhouse. But not Washington. Enormous sums have been spent here to make this city a pleasing seat for the National Government. Elaborate Parks Office and the Public Works Administrative buildings and residences into a community toward which every citizen of the land can turn with pride. If now an important section of Washington is to be subjected to obnoxious odors and noises, the whole Nation will resent it.

Protests that modern slaughtering techniques do not produce noises and odors are unconvincing. Still less persuasive is the argument that the city already has several industrial plants in its midst. Washington must have a certain minimum of furnaces and chimneys to live; meats, however, can be conveniently imported from outside as they have been for many years.

The King-Norton bill now before a Senate sub-committee would definitely block the abattoir. It would prevent existing nuisance industries from increasing capacity more than 25 per cent over the average operation of recent years. And it would direct the Zoning Commission and Health Officer of the District to make certain that existing industries be not unduly injurious or offensive by reason of noise, smoke, odor, gas, etc. A further requirement would limit all such plants to services solely for residents of the city and immediately adjacent territory.

It is plain, however, that the bill is aimed primarily at the proposed abattoir and thereby hang the principal objections to it. By arguing technicalities, however, these objections may be overridden. Nor would this be amiss, for the packers utilized technicalities to proceed thus far in their plans.

If the bill fails at last, still the District will not be utterly frustrated. For the controversy has stirred much interest in zoning. And one certain result will be the tightening of local regulations so that in the future no industry in any way obnoxious will be able to settle within the Capital's limits.

Dodd Vs. Dodds.

Senators who are opposing the bill to reorganize the Supreme Court have good reason to resent the dissemination of propaganda from Germany by Ambassador William E. Dodd. The function of an ambassador is to represent his country in the capital to which he is assigned, not to attempt to influence the votes of senators on domestic questions. If Mr. Dodd had deliberately set out to discredit the practice of making political appointments in the Diplomatic Service, he could scarcely have done so more effectively.

It is not surprising, of course, that bugaboos should be conjured up in Germany. That is the method commonly used by the Nazis to control public opinion. The disconcerting aspect of this incident is that an American Ambassador should fall in with that technique.

In Germany it was a series of emergency measures which paved the way for national socialism. The German republic was not trying to destroy itself, but the gradual surrender of democratic principles was nevertheless devastating. By use of fear psychology the Nazis undermined one institution of popular government after another until dictatorship became inevitable. If Ambassador Dodd had carefully analyzed this descent into totalitarian rule, it is difficult to believe that he would be advocating short cuts to greater executive power in the United States.

No one will be excited, however, by Mr. Dodd's fantastic belief that an unidentified billionaire stands ready to finance a dictatorship here. It is on a par with Dr. Wirt's charges of a Red plot in Washington shortly after the New Deal took over the reins of government.

If it were true that wealthy interests are waiting for an opportune moment to set up a dictatorship, the creation of a subservient Supreme Court would be a signal for them to intensify their preparations. President Harold W. Dodds of Princeton has pointed out that "if democracy fails with us, it will be through a war of attrition involving a chain of emergencies which at the moment could be made to justify authoritarian rule." Short cuts by executives who insist on having their own way, he rightly says, are the beaten path to dictatorship.

Ambassador Dodd's bugaboo thus serves to illustrate President Dodds' point. The Ambassador has unwittingly emphasized the dangers of the scheme he set out to defend. When the full significance of this bungling is realized, the President may be inclined to back up senatorial demands that the Ambassador to Germany concentrate on his assigned job, which, by all accounts, he has been handling none too well.

Rights And Privileges.

One of woman's rights overlooked, or at least slurred over, by some emancipators of the sex is her right to retain her privileges. There was a silly notion abroad for a time that because the rights and privileges seemed to conflict they were therefore incompatible. As a matter of fact, a feminine right and a feminine privilege work as naturally and as smoothly together as a pair of scissors.

Despite surface social differences man's attitude toward women today, when she is his equal before the law, is fundamentally what it was when she was wholly dependent on his whim. He remains her protector. And, though advanced feminists may fume, the fact is recognized by most men and women.

And so both normal and proper seems the action of the New York Legislature in approving a bill which, while giving women the right to serve on juries, permits them to claim exemption from duty. Man's duty as a citizen is paramount. With woman it is not necessarily so.

More men have been skinned for fur coats than any other species of dumb animals.

"Economy is the only thing that will save civilization," declares an editor. Well, so long, Civilization; in some respects it was nice to have known you.

The Voice Of Miami?

From the Louisville Times.

O. Henry wrote, in the "Voice of the City:" "Chicago says, unhesitatingly, 'I will;' Philadelphia says, 'I should;' New Orleans says, 'I used to;' Louisville says, 'Don't care if I do;' St. Louis says 'Excuse me;' Pittsburgh says, 'Smoke up.'"

He didn't include what Miami says, but, as a student of urban America, he'd be interested if he were alive in hearing that, whatever Miami says, she thinks she is developing a distinctive way of saying it—in short, an accent. For the Miami Herald predicts that not long hence "the Miamian will be marked by his manner of speech. It will be as personal and as much to his honor as the accent of Harvard or Oxford is to their sons."

And it will also be "a rich voice of great beauty, enriched by the blending of the myriad notes on which it is based." These notes, according to the Herald, are:

"The Yankee twang, the peculiar intonation of the Nation's metropolis, the sharpness of the great industrial centers of the Midwest, the softness of the Southern tongue, the clipped headtones of the British and Canadian pitch with its commingling of the manner of speech of the Scotch, Irish and English . . ."

So, altogether, it promises to be quite a remarkable synthesis. Possibly the winter visitor of the future will return North not only to excite the envy of his friends with a lovely Miami sunburn, but also to soothe them with a rich voice of great beauty.

We Can Settle It Out Of Court, Judge!

Letters to the Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the Editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, brevity is requested. Letters are subject to condensation.

The Personal Tax.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The local personal tax is indeed a "cockeyed" levy, as was pointed out in letter signed "E. K. G.," and should be abolished immediately.

There is not a vestige of justice in this tax, as those with small estates composed of stocks and bonds are "soaked" as much on their scant holdings as those rolling in wealth (viz., ½ of 1 per cent).

By way of illustration to those unfamiliar with this particular tax: take the case of an elderly woman with dependents, who inherits $20,000 in Washington bonds, with market value of $23,000, which she wishes to retain on account of their safety. Income yield on these securities amounts to $1,000. Personal levy totals $115 (over 11 per cent of income), which leaves but a scant $885 on which to subsist.

This stupid and unfair tax should no longer be tolerated, although nothing, in all probability, will be done about it. The sleek, self-satisfied politicians that are really enjoying the abundant life are not in the least concerned regarding the plight of the indigent taxpayers.

MRS. M. B. C.
Washington, May 12.

Court Reorganization.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The advocates of the reorganization of the Supreme Court contend that their program is more democratic than the present judicial system. In reality, however, it is not, for that tribunal as now constituted more completely safeguards popular government and those personal rights—religious liberty, free speech, trial by jury, immunity from unreasonable searches and seizures—without which democracy would become an empty sham.

We have been told that a President can veto acts of Congress but that no power on earth can veto acts of the Supreme Court. A superficial glance might incline one to believe this, but a little reflection on the workings of our constitutional system will show it to be fallacious. The sovereign people themselves may not change a particular decision, but they can change the Constitution by a constitutional amendment through a popular referendum, thereby making it necessary for the Supreme Court to decide future cases according to the Constitution as amended.

On the other hand, if the President were enabled to enlarge the Supreme Court by appointing six new justices, he and the Congress together would have absolute power to enact any law even though it violated the Constitution, thus leaving between the elections no safeguard against arbitrary government. How could unconstitutional acts of the Executive be prevented if Congress were his willing tool and the Supreme Court his rubber stamp?

The independence of the judiciary is the foundation of our constitutional liberties. Placed as they now are beyond the influence of sectional or class interests as well as pressure from the President and Congress, the courts dispense equal justice to all without fear and without favor. The Supreme Court has recently protected the constitutional rights of Communist agitators and has upheld the Federal law permitting collective bargaining. It has always sanctioned those laws which have been correctly drawn and constitutional. A people jealous of their hard-won rights should not jeopardize the independent power of the courts to strike down statutes which invade those rights.

Philippine Dilemma.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While President Manuel L. Quezon is perambulating in the war-clouded countries of Europe possibly studying their military tactics and farm tenancy, other deep thinking and equally patriotic Filipinos are in a dilemma as to the future of the Philippine Commonwealth. Too much politics in the present scheme of things is rapidly depriving the common tao his inalienable right to substantial food, clothing and shelter. Thoughtful Filipinos now realize the mockery of poverty brought about by expensive and chaotic bubbles of political demagogy. Legislative spending is obviously soaring high while misery hovers over many helpless and voiceless millions of our people. The lawmakers have their own ways, and theirs is usually the healthy and aristocratic circle, but laborers and toilers of the earth struggle in vain to bring prosperity among themselves and their families.

A little while ago the outlook of the Filipinos who have no voice in our administrative chapter was different. It was full of trust and confidence in the ability and powers of our representatives and leaders.

Now, suddenly approaching the end of easy life and harassed by the burden of multitudinous taxes which they cannot possibly meet without wrestling against hunger and starvation, they face the dilemma whether they really want independence within two or three years, or whether they should urge further indulgence of the American people to help them build up their economic security before they ever brave the challenge of self-protection.

SYLVESTER SATURDAY.

Pro And Con On Daylight Saving

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to protest against the proposed daylight-saving time for the summer months in the District of Columbia. In my opinion, an added hour of intense sunlight is a serious consideration to the stay-at-home, besides the interference with the normal hours for sleep that would be interrupted by the proposed change of time.

Furthermore, it works a hardship upon the housekeeper who has to make an entire change of schedule for meals, thereby causing great inconvenience as well as suffering from the long, hot hours of indoor work.

I urge the press to give the opportunity for a popular vote before imposing daylight-saving time upon the citizens of Washington.

MRS. M. EDDY YOUNGMAN.
Washington, May 12.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: May I register the votes of my wife and myself in favor of daylight-saving time for Washington?

The opposition to D. S. T. says that an hour's sleep will be lost. Where, and how? I believe that most people go to bed by the clock and arise by the clock, especially those that contend they will lose an hour's sleep. If one goes to bed at 10 by the clock and rises at 6 by the clock, one receives eight hours of rest whether it is Eastern Standard, Central Standard, Daylight-Saving Time or what have you. Furthermore, after dark you can't tell the difference anyway, unless you look at a clock.

Of course if a person lives in Maryland, as I do, and retired by E. S. T. but had to rise in time to be at work on daylight time, he would lose an hour's sleep.

I recall a recent letter in which a mother complained of the inconvenience daylight time would cause in caring for the children. We have only five children, so our experience is limited, but to the best of my knowledge none of our babies (one is just 6 months old now) ever looked at a clock to see if it was time for the next bottle, or time for dry panties.

Many of us wish that extra hour of daylight after returning home in the afternoon, for gardening and other diversions. Do I hear it said that I already have that extra hour of daylight in the morning under present Eastern Standard Time? May I answer that by stating that through several years of experience I have never been able to utilize that hour in the morning as successfully as I could an extra hour at the end of the day. I have discovered that one cannot handily undertake a big job before leaving for the office. It is only small chores that can be handled successfully.

W. C. H. AND D. E. H.
Glenn Dale, Md., May 12.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I heartily agree with those writers to The Post who oppose the daylight-saving plan. Like the one-man street cars I suppose it will be put over upon the citizens of Washington, whether or no. Years ago the office I was in voted it down and out, and we escaped the nuisance.

To many it means this: Go to bed while it is still light, an hour before your usual bedtime, and be unable to get to sleep till the accustomed time—one hour or more wasted! Get up one hour earlier and breakfast one hour before your usual appetite comes for any breakfast! Lunch one hour before your usual time of hunger! Get out of office in about the hottest time of the day—but in time to avoid the 4:30 thunder shower! The third meal of the day—dinner—also one hour before the usual time! This whole line of altered habits upsets the previous living habits of the family and is a nuisance.

Can't someone else think up something more to make the Federal employe's life more disagreeable?

A WORKER.
Bethesda, Md., May 12.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you not listen to the voice of one of many thousands of office workers crying for the glorious opportunity afforded by daylight-saving time to enjoy to the full God's sunshine and fresh air before the last robin has tucked in his head for the night?

If some of the objectors would get out after work and take in a ball game, go golfing, play tennis, or engage in one of the thousand outdoor activities, they would "hit the hay" early with a sigh of content and be ready for a peppy day on the morrow instead of breathing cigarette smoke until 1 a. m. in a night club and making the alarm clock shake itself off the dresser the next morning.

Give the outdoor folk a break!

G. M. R.
Washington, May 12.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Regarding the question of whether the District is to adopt daylight-saving time, we, the undersigned, are opposed to the proposed change. So many people are located a long way from the scene of their employment and even as it is now, find it extremely difficult to reach their work in time and it will be more difficult if we have to arise an hour earlier.

S. E. WELKOR,
MARY P. WELKOR,
MARY BROWN,
LAURA BLACKWELL,
OSWALD THEE.
Washington, May 12.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Are we not all in danger of getting rather mixed up in this country if we keep "monkeying" with time? Why change the clocks twice a year, anyway? To save an hour of daylight? Why does an intelligent person have to change his clock to do this?

Most people today do not know that in the early '80s there were 70 different kinds of time in the United States. We got away from that confusing situation by a very hard effort. And now the move for daylight-saving time is getting us again into confusion.

There is no reason why a group of merchants or a number of Government or other offices may not start their daily business an hour earlier; but it is not necessary for the hands of the clock to be set back. It will soon be known that opening begins at 8 a. m., instead of 9 a. m. But why add to the Nation's confusion as to time itself? Or to force others to the extra hour?

What's the sense in turning the hands backward? It seems to me that's an acknowledgment of a personal mental deficiency, or at least laziness.

$20 And A Prospectus.

SOME Friday—it may, and probably will, be a long time from now—I am going to start a new magazine. It is to be a magazine of light verse and will bear the dignified title of the Magazine of Light Verse. It will appear quarterly, or bimonthly at the most, for there mustn't be too much of a good thing. It will eschew smartness, esoteric sophistication and imitations of Ogden Nash; but will strive for reputable but not overdone technique, gusto, spontaneity, the spirit of comedy and unashamed enjoyment. Its province will be to achieve humor in its subtlest and highest sense.

* * * *

No less a poet than Robert Frost, who has just received his third Pulitzer Prize, says that the way is almost rigidly prescribed for a poet's style "to be at all charming or even bearable. If it is with outer seriousness, it must be with inner humor. If it is with outer humor, it must be with inner seriousness. Neither one alone without the other under it will do." Any poet who can wholeheartedly subscribe to such a dictum would be eligible for admittance to the new magazine.

Neither impossible nor unlikely would it be that a surprising proportion of the entries could be classed as real poetry as well as light verse. The two overlap. Out of the approximately 160 English (not American) poems in Mark Van Doren's "An Anthology of World Poetry" there are 16 that appear also in the Modern Library's "An Anthology of Light Verse."

From this it might be concluded that 10 per cent of the great English poems are also light verse and that the estate of light verse is not a lowly one, since the poets represented in this 10 per cent include Sir Philip Sidney, William Shakespeare, George Wither, Robert Herrick, Edmund Waller, Sir John Suckling, Richard Lovelace, Matthew Prior, Alexander Pope, Robert Burns and Thomas Love Peacock. These are by no means all the great names that appear in both collections, though not with identical entries. There are also Edna St. Vincent Millay, Walter de la Mare, Rudyard Kipling, Thomas Hardy, A. C. Swinburne, Lord Byron, Thomas Moore and Andrew Marvell.

* * * *

Thus there is an ancient and honorable tradition of light verse that will have to be maintained. The poets just named, it will be readily noticed, are not those usually thought of as writers of light verse. Who, then, are they? A listing of the entire galaxy would more than fill a column, but there are a few whose very names are remembered with a glow: Oliver Goldsmith, whose account of the strange demise of a mad dog is a classic; Oliver Wendell Holmes, who dared not write as funny as he could; Edward Lear and Lewis Carroll, the great purveyors of metrical nonsense; the inimitable librettist, Sir William S. Gilbert; our own Eugene Field, Henry C. Bunner, who gave us that classic "Shake, Mulleary and Go-ethe;" Bert Leston Taylor, whose "The Dinosaur" is a philosophical as well as paleontological masterpiece; Oliver Herford, wit, poet, and artist; Ben King, who wrote that fatal piece "If I Should Die Tonight," and the ruthless Capt. Harry Graham, who wrote also under the name of Col. D. Streamer, and whom I shall forever remember for his poem "Unselfishness" (i.e., of his children), which ends with the telling couplet:

Yet I should love them more, I know,
If I did not dislike them so.

* * * *

These, rest their souls, have all gone; their sparkling pens are stilled. There is another group, still alive, from whom we now hear little in way of light verse: Gelett Burgess ("The Purple Cow"), Hilaire Belloc ("The Yak"), Carolyn Wells, the prolific anthologist, and Samuel Hoffenstein, who praised practically nothing. Who are they, then, that are really keeping up the good work today? Well, there are many on the list and some of them are real poets: Arthur Guiterman, Dorothy Parker, E. B. White, Franklin P. Adams (at least until March 2, 1937, when he folded up his famous Conning Tower), Christopher Ward (the sublime parodist), Christopher Morley, Don Marquis, Ogden Nash, Phillis McGinley—to name but a few.

In spite of this eminent and abundant talent, augmented, of course, by those who only dabble in the field, but whose dabblings are often rich and worthy of recognition, the outlet for the publication of light verse is regrettably meager. A few unpaying newspaper columns still print contributions; and a few magazines accept light verse, but lucky indeed is he who is able to "meet their needs at the present time."

* * * *

What we need is the Magazine of Light Verse—not a high-pressured laugh sheet but a dignified periodical that would print, promote, perpetuate and perhaps pay for the best light verse being written. Gorham Munson said recently that "lacking a patron, you can start (a little magazine) with $20 and a prospectus." Assuming that it might be possible to meet these minimum requirements, would anybody like to contribute material for Vol. 1, No. 1? It is high time, I think, for another reincarnation of our old friend Euphrosyne—"so buxom, blithe and debonair."

Poor Professions.

OF ALL THE OCCUPATIONS that lure young men, I can think of none offhand which take more and give less than prize fighting and wrestling. Most fighters and wrestlers do not make as much as a fair living in their active years—a fact which is obscured by talk and publicity regarding big gate receipts at the few important productions.

They live in cheap hotels or rooming houses when they are on the road, they suffer great pain from broken bones and other injuries, and many of the fighters become feeble-minded from blows on the head which injure their brains. The great majority of them wind up broke and unfit for common working jobs, and have nothing to show for their careers but a few old and brittle newspaper clippings and their scars.

Blindness is an occupational disease of both fighting and wrestling, and even those stars who collect fortunes usually lose them one way or another—although that, of course, cannot be held against the professions themselves. These fortunes are exaggerated, however, for people think of them in large, round numbers and forget that a champion or near champion pays a manager from one-third to one-half of his earnings and is subject to the Federal law and, in some cases, State income taxes.

He also is expected to give away money in proportion to his reputed earnings, and in recent years has been dragged into politics and litigation which absorbs his income. The income taxes cut deep, because the gladiator makes all his money in a few years, and the law allows no spread for those after years when he has lost his earning power.

• • • •

HIS WHOLE CAREER is compressed into a brief time, usually in his early 20s, whereas a man in some other line of work makes a gradual rise and thus pays less income tax on an equal amount of earnings. I recently saw a reference to a former little fighter named Joe Demelfi, once known as the young Zulu Kid, a nice litfle Italian from Brooklyn, who fought Jimmy Wilde for the flyweight championship of the world during the World War. Wilde knocked out the Zulu Kid in 11 rounds, and the Zulu nearly choked on his tongue until a medical officer of the British army hopped out of the audience, and, with some expert hitch, dragged it out like a Garibaldi necktie.

The Zulu and his manager, Joe Sarno, got $2,500, and that was the best purse they ever received, although the kid was always fighting and was almost a champion. He fought for eating money for himself and Sarno, and, barring his two-thirds of the $2,500 purse, never had much more than enough for his current expenses in third-class hotels. The Zulu is now a bootblack.

Last fall when Jack Dempsey was out with Jack Curley and a troupe of heavyweight wrestlers campaigning New York State for Franklin D. Roosevelt, a graduate of Fordham University wrestled 30 minutes for $20, and the pay of the athletes ranged between $15 and $25, plus railroad fare, a few mediocre meals and a room for one night. Some of the wrestlers were rather well known, all of them fairly skillful and the work, though decidedly frivolous, was hard and painful.

• • • •

THE CUSTOMERS THINK that because the wrestlers nowadays go in for clowning they suffer no pain. Yet there is no man who can be hoisted aloft and slammed to the floor half a dozen times or dive through the ropes into a tangle of chairs on a concrete floor without some wear and tear. The wrestlers are always bruised and scuffed, and their wounds often become infected, in addition to which they all fear and many catch a disease of the eyes which is supposed to come from dirty wrestling mats.

The career of the average fighter or wrestler is a succession of gummy hotel rooms, poverty, dirty dressing rooms in dirty fight arenas, hard, painful competition, injuries and victimization at the hands of all manner of cheap and brutal swindlers who have a hundred schemes for stealing money which he has earned with the sweat of his brow and the blood of his veins.

He sees his name in the papers occasionally and enjoys a little prestige in his home neighborhood, but he can't eat old clippings, and when his hands or his eyes fail or he finds himself lurching in his stride and mumbling in his speech from the effects of the head punching he is worse off than he would have been if he had avoided the ring in the first place to take that job as wagon helper.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

After the Coronation.

The scene is the royal boudoir in Buckingham Palace. It is several days after the ceremonies. The Queen is up, but the King is still in bed, looking ghastly white and obviously in a state of exhaustion.

George (talking in his sleep)—Easy over those cobblestones! . . . Ouch! . . . Easy, please! . . . Mind the bumps, man!

Elizabeth (looking at him sympathetically)—Poor dear! It was a terrible ordeal.

George (still asleep)—Take it away! . . . Take it away!

Elizabeth (as the King suddenly sits up in bed)—Take what away, dear?

George (not quite awake yet)—The horses! . . . The coach! . . . The bands . . . The Archbishop! . . . Everything! . . . Take 'em away!

Elizabeth (consoling him as he comes out of it)—They've all been taken away, George!

George—You can't fool me . . . I can still hear 'em! . . . Look out! There's another bump! . . . What a coach this is! . . . No springs or anything!

George (now fully awake)—Can we get that in writing?

• • • •

Elizabeth—It was terrific, wasn't it?

George—Awful! I thought it would never end. How do you feel?

Elizabeth—If it had lasted five minutes more, I would have screamed.

George (rubbing his forehead as if trying to recall something)—I thought you did scream . . . Right in the middle of everything! . . . You jumped up, threw off your crown, and yelled like an Indian . . . Then you grabbed me by the hand and ran out of the Abbey . . . We must have knocked down a dozen peers.

Elizabeth (as George sinks back on his pillow)—You've been dreaming, George.

George—Then you didn't really scream? . . . We didn't really run out of the Abbey?

Elizabeth (laughing)—Of course not.

George—Everything went off as rehearsed?

Elizabeth—It was perfect.

George (sitting up again)—Heavens! I must have had a terrible nightmare! Did you sleep peacefully?

Elizabeth—Like a rock.

George—No nightmare?

Elizabeth—I had a little one . . . something about the coach ride . . . It seemed it was drawn by eight enormous white rabbits . . . Suddenly a greyhound broke from the crowd at Piccadilly and started chasing 'em . . . We were dragged across country at terrific speed . . . Then the coach collided with a wagon full of Italian newspaper men . . . it was the fifth load recalled by Mussolini . . . Then we landed right in the middle of the street with no clothes on.

George—Oh lord!

Elizabeth—But that wasn't the worse of it . . . We weren't us at all.

George (getting out of bed)—Not us!

Elizabeth—No, there had been a mistake and we were Edward and Mrs. Simpson!

Sato's Foreign Policy in Japan

New Foreign Minister Urges Moderation For China.

By Frank H. Hedges.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Tokyo.

EVEN IF Naotake Sato should resign as Japan's Minister of Foreign Affairs tonight, his brief tenure of office will have done this country great good. His moderation in foreign policy, his genuine and sincere belief that this empire can better its international position by diplomatic and friendly means rather than by any other method, has come as a clean breath of air in the troubled situation that has so long existed in eastern Asia.

Mr. Sato's proposed policies in regard to China, to Soviet Russia, to Great Britain and, in a less important way, to other nations, will not be carried out in full. Yet they have made a permanent impression and cannot but influence to a degree the diplomatic course of the Tokyo government for some time to come.

Since the Mukden incident, and more particularly since its withdrawal from the League of Nations, Japan has shaped its foreign policy primarily from the standpoint of eastern Asia, disregarding largely the rest of the world. Unfortunately, this brought with a myopic, introspective view, and the empire lost touch with some of the realities of the world situation. The more extreme element among the Japanese reached the conclusion that the Far East could live to itself alone and could, in a sense, close the Far East to the world at large as once Japan was closed.

Sato Well Informed On European Thinking.

MR. SATO returned to Japan after 30 years of service in Europe. He returned with a full knowledge of the intricate European and the world situation, with a consciousness of world realities, with a realization of the comparative strength of the nations in a military, an economic and other fields.

He was at once offered the post of Foreign Minister by Premier General Senjuro Hayashi, and he accepted. He was not welcomed in many quarters. It was charged that he was out of touch with the Far Eastern situation, and, in certain quarters, his liberal views were looked at askance. Even in the Foreign Office itself he did not get the complete co-operation from the entire staff which is due the head of that ministry. Here, this group both in and out of government service reasoned, comes a man imbued with Western liberal thought stepping into a situation that must be handled along Asiatic lines. That, of course, is true, but they apparently failed to realize that the Asia of 1937 is not the Asia of a century or a half-century ago, not even the Asia of a decade ago, and neither is the world at large what it was in the past.

Addressing the Diet, Foreign Minister Sato declared that henceforth the Republic of China must be treated as an equal by the Empire of Japan. This statement roused a storm of protest in many quarters, and Mr. Sato gave two explanatory statements which toned it down somewhat, but he refused to retreat from the principle he had enunciated. Recently, an American friend called his attention to the three statements and said they seemed not to harmonize entirely, asking which most nearly represented his real views.

"What do you think?" replied Mr. Sato.

"It seems to me," said the American, "that the first statement is the real Sato."

The Foreign Minister smiled his acquiescence.

China Has Emerged Into Form Of Nation.

IT IS TRUE, of course, that during very recent years China has emerged as a nation instead of the chaotic mass of petty military feudatories which it was for so long. The Japanese ambassador to China recognizes this and is now telling his countrymen that Japan must deal with China accordingly. His two predecessors, as they remained in China and studied affairs there at first hand, also reached this conclusion and also told of it to the Japanese people. Both resigned, and it is probable that Ambassador Kawagoe will not remain in office much longer.

Nevertheless, the mass of the Japanese people are awakening to the reality of China as a real power. The press, on the whole, is frank in stating this and in demanding improved relations with China on something closely approaching a basis of equality. An article this correspondent wrote for publication in Japan last summer was rejected as being "premature." It was accepted and published immediately after Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had been captured by the Young Marshal.

Soviet Ambassador Has Conferred With Sato.

THE SOVIET AMBASSADOR has been in conference with the Foreign Minister several times recently. The contents of their discussion, as is customary in Japan, were not disclosed, but the Japanese press never fails to make guesses anent them, frequently very shrewd guesses indeed as revealed by developments later. In this instance, the Miyako boldly states that the Russian ambassador and Mr. Sato are working out some scheme which "will emasculate the German-Japanese anti-Comintern agreement."

This is speculation at present, but certain it is that the Foreign Minister is striving to remove the friction and tension between this country and the Soviet state, which is a positive handicap and a potential menace to both nations. With the conclusion of the ideological pact with Berlin on November 25 last, a pact which Moscow can only interpret as aimed directly at itself, the U. S. S. R. has pursued a policy of non-co-operation and even of petty but harmful annoyances toward Japan.

The signature of the new fisheries convention was refused, Japanese residents and business interests in Vladivostok were none too well treated, shipments of iron and other raw materials from Russia to Japan were mysteriously "delayed," threats have been made to cut off the rail service from Europe to Manchoukuo over the trans-Siberian line, and other and similar measures taken, measures against which Japan is helpless except as it adopts a more conciliatory attitude toward the Soviets.

Improvement Noted In British Relations.

THE THIRD POWER with which friction has been greatest for more than a year past is the British empire, although in this case the relations have not been nearly so aggravated as with China and Russia. A distinct improvement in Anglo-Japanese relations has come under Mr. Sato's regime at the Foreign Office. The vexatious Keelung incident, involving the mistreatment of some British sailors at that Formosan port, has been amicably settled, and Japan is becoming reconciled to British financial aid in the development of South China.

From time to time one or another of the Tokyo newspapers comes out with a story that England is seeking Japan's aid in the economic development of China. So far as known, there is no tangible basis for these stories, but they are significant in that they indicate a state of mind favoring such co-operation is growing in many Japanese circles.

The dispatch of economic missions to the United States, Great Britain, Germany, China, South and Central America is another clear indication of Japan's desire to co-operate rather than dictate. These missions were decided upon by Premier Hayashi before Mr. Sato had returned to Japan, but he has given them his full endorsement and has done much to increase their importance.

Policy Of Sato Will Require Time.

THIS, in broad outline, is the foreign policy favored by Mr. Sato and being put into practice as far as he is able to do so. It is a most salutary development in Japan, one which, if carried out, will do much to restore this nation's prestige abroad and regain for it some of the confidence that it has lost in other capitals of the world. It would be asking too much at this moment for the whole of Mr. Sato's policy to be adopted and enforced by the Tokyo government. That will require time, and until it is actually put into operation a certain amount of skepticism is justified.

This skepticism is justified because not all of Japan is at one with Mr. Sato's views by any means. There are sections in Japan, some of them powerful and influential, which believe that the course Mr. Sato seeks to pursue will prove harmful to the empire. They will do what they can to block it and return to the methods practiced during the first half of the present decade.

Whether these reactionary elements will succeed in their attempt only time can reveal. Unless a foreign war should break out, the odds are against them for the simple reason that their methods have failed heretofore to produce the results desired, that the Japanese public at large is aware of this and is dissatisfied with them and ready to try some alternative. That alternative is offered by Mr. Sato. He would return, in effect, to what is known as the Shidehara policy in Japan—a policy of peaceful and friendly co-operatoin in all phases of international relations on a basis of equality.

Ideas Have Filtered Into Many High Circles.

MR. SATO certainly cannot be expected to attain a 100 per cent victory, but neither can he be given a 100 per cent defeat, always providing no foreign war takes place. Already his ideas and his principles have penetrated the Japanese mind, have infiltrated Japanese society, including even some of the highest government and army circles. That being true, Japan cannot go back to exactly where it stood in foreign policy prior to his assumption of office.

Premier Hayashi, who is at heart a moderate, although a military man by career, must be credited with having done his country genuine good by naming Naotake Sato Foreign Minister. He has brought a breath of clean, fresh air into a situation that had become dangerously stalemated, that cannot forever remain stalemated, but that must swerve in one direction or the other. The direction Mr. Sato points out is that of sanity and genuine progress, improvement.

Reich Fortifies Baltic Shore; Builds Air Base

By the Associated Press.

London, May 13.—Germany is constructing great new fortifications along the Baltic coast, it was disclosed tonight, to speed completion of a vast network of defenses at every border.

The new line centers about Lubeck Bay north of Hamburg and the fortifications look northward toward the Nordic countries.

Building of the fortifications was revealed by Germans who related that workers had jammed Travemuende, popular spa near Hamburg, and rooms were at a premium for that reason.

They recounted:

The Priwal, a section of Travemuende, where there are both sea and land plane facilities, has been designated a submarine harbor.

Summer dwellers at Eckernfoerds have been refused further lease of their little shacks, but the shacks have been left standing. Cannons lurk behind them, residents of the district say.

Fortifications on the Island of Fehmarn, flanked by Kiel and Lubeck bays, can dominate the belt of Langeland which is Danish water, one reliable informant said.

Germany has been busy fortifying her borders since Chancellor Hitler voided the Locarno security pact by marching troops into the demilitarized Rhineland zone in 1936.

Advices in past months have told of "pill-box" defenses on the west along Franco-Belgian borders; reconstruction of the marine harbor at Helgoland, destroyed by order of the Allies after the World War; of gun emplacements on that North Sea island; of eastern emplacements, particularly along the Czechoslovakian frontier.

Spectator Fires Pistol, Terrifies Czech Legislators

Praha, Czechoslovakia, May 13 (AP).—The Czechoslovakian House of Deputies was thrown into tumult this afternoon when a man suddenly arose in the spectators' gallery and fired a pistol at the ministerial bench.

"Half of the members of this house are Communists and rascals!" he shouted.

Panic ensued until it was learned that all of the bullets had missed their mark.

The man was overpowered by guards and jailed. Later he was identified as a country flour mill worker, Josef Sebec.

Madison Memorial Sought by Plumley

Although the Thomas Jefferson Memorial dispute is still unsettled, a proposal was made in the House yesterday that another commission be established to provide a memorial in Washington for James Madison.

Representative Plumley (Republican), Vermont, introduced a bill to set up a commission of nine which would recommend a suitable memorial.

Three members would be named by the President, three Senators by the Vice President, and three members of the House by the Speaker.

New Irish Constitution Wins Second Approval

Dublin, Irish Free State, May 13 (AP).—President Eamon De Valera's new constitution for Ireland moved closer to adoption today.

The Dail, by a vote of 69 to 43, approved second reading of the measure after the president, in a two-hour speech, denied opposition charges that he aimed at dictatorship. Labor members voted with the government. The constitution proclaims all Ireland a "free and sovereign democratic state."

Train Of Mercy

By E. O. Deeble

Wounded Arrive In Barcelona.

Barcelona.

THE TRAIN pulled slowly in. Engine and tender, mailcar converted into emergency operating-room, stretcher car, sleeper (not made up), first class coach, baggage car. On the sides, white circles about 2 feet in diameter, containing a yellow cross, symbol of the Spanish Medical Corps. These are pretty well grimed over with the smoke of soft coal, and nobody has bothered to clean them. It seems sufficiently sure that they give no protection in this war.

Out of the sleeper and one end of the first class pour walking cases—bandaged heads, arms in slings, arms on wire frames, dark glasses, canes. A few lucky ones are met by their families.

There is a brief pause in everyone's activity. Policemen in blue uniforms, members of the famed Assault Guards, lean out of the windows at the other end of the first class, the end that did not disgorge walking cases. Medical Corps officials, and other policemen on the platform, discuss with them at some length. The rest of us peer at faces dimly seen inside the compartment behind them. Prisoners, Spaniards. Not a single foreigner among them. This in itself makes an event.

Finally the largest ambulance rolls majestically up the platform, and two stretchers are taken out of this compartment. Policemen follow, rifle in hand, though this is only a form in these two first cases, anyway. Into the ambulance, carefully handled. There isn't anything wrong about those bandages, either. Here is the proof of what we had heard, that enemy wounded get exactly the same treatment as wounded friends.

• • • •

THE WALKING CASES are guarded in their descent from the train, and now the hands on the rifles are firm, but there is no need. These may once have been dangerous opponents, but they are no longer so. Nor are they young. I see only one boyish face among the ten of them, and at least one of the others shows bristling hair, above the bandage, that is more nearly white than gray. They look apathetic. We are not allowed to speak to them, but a pitying murmur runs through the little group of onlookers. Surely these must have been conscripted by Franco; they have none of the look of volunteers. They step into the ambulance. An orderly and three of the policemen get in with them, and another policeman sits beside the driver. Off they go to the hospital and the military prison.

Next come more of our own stretcher cases. Slowly and gently they are moved from car to ambulance, for they are precious freight, and all too fragile now. They joke, of course, for a Spaniard who did not would be a contradiction in terms, but sometimes the jokes are rather feeble, and the lips through which they come are rather pale. There are two blond boys, pink-cheeked, the type one instinctively associates with the tales of Hans Andersen or the Brothers Grimm, but neither speaks a word of anything but Catalan and Spanish, to my surprise. And there is a girl—a tiny, pretty creature, who jokes like the boys. She was nursing, far out toward the actual front lines, when a plane swept down in a great arc using its machine guns. She will not be disfigured to the eye, but she will never walk again.

All the ambulances have been filled now, and gone. Men are cleaning and disinfecting the train, while orderlies bring up fresh supplies of bedding and dressings. The train of mercy will start back again before daylight, but its passengers, even the prisoners, will rest tonight in comfort and safety.

• • • •

ONE OF THE FEW THINGS that can ever be said in favor, or at any rate in defense, of war is that medical science usually discovers some new alleviation of human suffering when confronted by so staggering an amount of it. This Spanish war has been no exception to the rule, and I was fortunate enough to have the blood transfusion system explained and demonstrated to me by some of those chiefly concerned in its development. As luckily I know no technical language in the matter, they had to put it in simple terms, which boil down to this:

At the outbreak of the war, it was known that a Russian doctor had been experimenting with a system of drawing blood from the veins of those just dead, cooling it to a temperature near the freezing point of water, keeping it on ice until needed, and injecting it, after re-heating, into the veins of patients who need blood transfusion. The Russian had proved the theory sufficiently for the Spaniards to put it at once into practice.

In the first hours of the rebellion, calls on the radio for donors of blood alternated with military instructions. This blood from living veins was of still more value than that of cadavers. It was sterilized, and stored in ordinary electric refrigerators, those with a thermostat or other automatic regulator of temperature being preferred as maintaining a more nearly constant temperature. Meantime Dr. Frederic Duran Jorda and Dr. Dutren, of Barcelona, worked frantically to make the idea practical.

• • • •

THE FIRST specially equipped cars were able to take the road to the fronts in August. Not many are needed, but every one of their simple details must be absolutely perfect. Once the blood is given and reduced to suitable temperature, any hospital possessing an up-to-date electric refrigerator can receive the service, since with the co-operation of the manufacturing laboratories of Pujol y Cullell, also of Barcelona, an apparatus has been developed which is self-contained, and may be sterilized as an unit and kept in storage until needed. Two cars with this apparatus can and do serve the entire northern front. The central and southern fronts do not employ certain automatic features of this service, and, therefore, need more cars to take care of their service. A Canadian Red Cross unit, headed by the distinguished Dr. Bethune, was in this service on the central front from November to January, and rendered brilliant service.

The names of Drs. Jorda and Dutren will surely go down in medical history with those of Carrell and Dakin, of the World War, and many others. For my own part, I feel that the laboratory of Pujol y Cullell should have its share of the fame, the more so as they have given the benefit of a valuable trade secret, absolutely gratis, to the doctors. The laboratory's co-operation has gone so far as to make no charge for any of the materials used in supplying apparatus to the military hospitals, while the corps of amazingly pretty girls who do the work also donate their services. Thus, an unselfish collaboration of inventors, workers, and donors of blood has given the world another immense step forward in an humanitarian direction.

Thermometers

By William Lyon Phelps

Fahrenheit's Birthday.

Today is the birthday of Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit, who was born in Danzig, Germany, on May 14, 1686. Did you know our thermometer had its origin so many years ago?

Fahrenheit died in Holland on September 16, 1736, so that he lived only half a century, but his name has been for two centuries among the best known among men; and through his thermometer he is an inmate of family houses, public buildings, railway trains—he is indeed (if you will forgive the pun) a familiar spirit.

• • • •

The curious thing is, that although Fahrenheit's thermometer is almost universal in Great Britain, America, and in all English speaking countries, he, although a German, would find it difficult to discover any specimen of his work in the country of his birth or in any continental nation. There Centigrade is the rule.

On the continent the thermometer used nearly everywhere is the Centigrade, sometimes called Celsius, after the Swedish gentleman who invented it in 1742. This is more logical than the Fahrenheit, because zero is the freezing point of water and 100 the boiling point. Celsius made zero the boiling and 100 the freezing point, but eight years later they turned it around.

• • • •

Reaumur, a French physicist, invented his thermometer in 1730; it is interesting that all three of these men, Fahrenheit, Celsius, Reaumer, were living at the same time, early eighteenth century; those were great days for thermometers.

Reaumur took his ice point at zero, and his boiling point at 80, and he seems to me to be even less popular than he was 50 years ago.

Centigrade is certainly more logical than Fahrenheit, but how the English do hate logic! They will not give up their irrational Fahrenheit thermometers, and in the last book that Herbert Spencer wrote (and he was not conservative) he advised the English never to give up their pounds, shillings, and pence, for any decimal system of money.

Mackay Radio Appeals to Gain Line to Norway

Alleges R. C. A. Monopoly in Complaint Against F. C. C. Ruling.

Appealing from a recent decision of the Federal Communications Commission denying it a direct radio-telegraph circuit between the United States and Norway, Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co., Inc., yesterday petitioned the United States Court of Appeals to reverse the ruling and order F. C. C. to grant the license.

In its complaint, Mackay Radio said denial of its application for a license left the field wholly under the control of R. C. A. Communications, Inc., which was described as having a monopoly.

The Appellate Court was told the F. C. C. opinion denying the license was arbitrary and capricious in many respects and as such was subject to review by the higher courts. It was announced the case would be taken to the United States Supreme Court in the event the Appeals Court does not direct the commission to grant the permit.

Listing more than a score of reasons wherein the commission had erred, Mackay Radio, through Donald Richberg and associated counsel, asserted the company had exhausted all its remedies before the commission and had to seek "relief" in the courts. The final ruling from the commission was entered April 24 and it is from that the appeal is being sought.

Princess Rasputin Accused of Libel In Suit by Monk

New York, May 13 (AP).—Princess Maria Rasputin, who won a $125,000 verdict in a suit following release of a motion-picture based on the life of her father, the assassinated Russian monk, was herself the object of a $100,000 suit today.

It was brought by Sergius M. Trufanoff, once famous as the Czarist Monk Iliodor. He claims he was libeled by a passage in Maria's book, "My Father," which said he attacked a woman who had come to his monastery of the Tsaritsin prior to the Russian revolution.

The passage complained of said Iliodor, trapped by other monks attracted by the woman's screams, made it appear that it was she attempting to force herself on him, and that the monks tied her to a horse's tail to be dragged across the cobblestones in atonement, causing her to become insane.

100 Persons Benefit From Mrs. Ochs' Will

White Plains, N. Y., May 13 (AP).—The wil of Mrs. Adolph Ochs, wife of the deceased publisher of the New York Times, filed for probate today, leaves the bulk of the estate to Mrs. Iphigene Ochs Sulzberger, a daughter, living in New York.

There was nothing in the will to disclose the amount of the estate.

Nearly 100 persons were left bequests of $1,000 or more.

Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937.

My Uncle Hod use'ta be station agent at Sycamore Junction and early one Monday mornin' when he went down to open up, he found a city man there jest stormin' and ravin' because the waitin' room wasn't open. The man said he was waitin' for the north-bound train and he demanded the right to go in where he could sit down until the train came.

Uncle Hod didn't say nothin'. He jest unlocked the waitin' room door. Along towards the middle of the afternoon the man started to get impatient and to pace up and down in the waitin' room and then when it got along about dark, he couldn't stand it anymore.

He went up to Uncle Hod and he says, "For goodness sakes, what time is that north-bound train due here?" Uncle Hod says, "Well now, it usually gits in here along about Wednesday."

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Warren M. Schoonmaker, chief of the mail and file division of the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, retired this week after 37 years of service. His career is long, varied, interesting, but not so interesting as is the hobby of Schoonmaker.

His hobby was uniforms, any sort of regalia that man puts on to designate his rank, his service or even his employment. On these Schoonmaker was authority of the first sort. The Navy almost recognized him officially as the authority on the subject. In disputes he was the court of appeals. He was grounded in it; he knew.

He knows how many stripes the admirals wear and why, and he knows the insignias of the service, past and present. He knows the uniforms of all the navies of the world. He was an extremely valuable man around the place.

His career: In 1920 he was detailed with the Joint Congressional Commission on reclassification of salaries. After passage of the classification act in 1923, he assisted in the work of classifying positions in the Bureau. In 1923, when the filing system of the Department was undergoing revision, he was designated a member of the committee on Navy Filing Manual. In December, 1928, he was detailed to the Personnel Classification Board in connection with the survey of positions in the Field Service of the Government. He was appointed to Government service on April 9, 1900, from Marengo, Ill.

Notes.

The secretaries and clerks of Congressmen will hold another meeting at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday to inquire further into the possibilities of affiliating with some organization which would give a push to their aim "of securing for ourselves some of the rights and privileges enjoyed by other Government employes" . . . They were frankly discouraged in their attempt to affiliate with the A. F. G. E. by Col. Stengle, A. F. G. E. president, who said that his organization's policy did not permit the enrollment of temporary employes . . . Maybe they will join the C. I. O.; they have a committee inquiring into it . . . H. Fiedler, chief of the Division of Fishery Industries, has accepted an invitation from Grover Whalen to serve as a member of the advisory committee for the Fisheries Exhibition of the New York World's Fair, to be held in 1939 . . .

Some pleasant evenings of dancing are ahead for employes . . . Tomorrow night Agriculture's Athletic and Recreational Association gives its long-prepared-for dance in the beautiful patio of the Administration Building . . . The hours are 9 to 12 . . . H. Lyman is chairman of the dance committee . . . On Friday evening, May 21, the National Archives Association, composed of executive officers and employes of National Archives, will dance in the Broadmoor Apartment

Eugene Black, chairman, Board of Tax Appeals, has appointed three members of the board to serve with three members of the staff of the chief counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue as a joint committee to consider the rules and procedure of the board toward making recommendations to expedite the disposition of tax cases pending before the board . . . The committeemen are: Logan Morris, J. Edgar Murdock and C. Rogers Arundell, of the board, and Russell Ryan, P. C. Alexander and Stanley Surrey, of the Chief's Counsel's Office . . . Morris is chairman and Surrey is secretary of the joint committee . . .

Thirty-seven Internal Revenue agents in charge from all districts of the United States and Alaska are here in conference with officers of the Treasury Department and the Bureau of Internal Revenue . . . They are seeking to improve the efficiency of the field audit of income tax returns . . . They have been greeted by Secretary Morgenthau and addressed by Undersecretary Magill, Commissioner Helvering and Deputy Commissioner Russell . . . Among topics under consideration are further decentralization and improved methods of field investigation, field conference and review procedure and field settlement of claims . . . Said Commissioner Helvering: "The field forces under the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue agents in charge have performed a notable feat in bringing their work up to date and at the same time discovering revenue available for collection amounting to $222,099,314.64 in the last fiscal year . . .

All the sparkle and fandangles of the American 1890's went into that program the Department of Agriculture's Chorus offered the other night . . . Directed by Robert Frederick Freund, it was called "A Gay Nineties Picnic," and afforded such old-time and tripping things as "Daisy Bell," "The Bowery," "The Girl on the Pink Police Gazette," and most melodiously 'Sweet Adeline"

Odor-Proof Abattoir Is Gobel's Aim

D. C. Health Chairman Continues Battle on Project.

The abattoir which Adolf Gobel, Inc., plans to operate at Benning road and Minnesota avenue northeast will be "smell-proof" at a distance of 200 to 300 feet, the architect for the structure promised yesterday.

In the third day of hearings being conducted by a Senate sub-committee on the King bill to control "nuisance industries" here, H. Peter Henschin, of Chicago, doggedly maintained under relentless questioning that the proposed slaughter house and rendering plant will not be the nuisance charged by its foes.

The remarks of Henschin, who described himself as a specialist in the designing of abattoirs, and an excoriation of rendering plants by Senator Royal S. Copeland featured the session. The Senate District sub-committee, headed by Senator Pat McCarran, will continue the hearings at 2 p. m. today.

Few Lively Outbursts.

Due to the brief presence of Senator Millard E. Tydings, whose lawyer-like examination of Wednesday's witnesses produced an almost continuous round of oral pyrotechnics, the hearing yesterday had few lively outbursts.

He was in the room long enough, however, to bring out that "meat scrap," which would be one of Gobel's by-products, is now sold in Washington stores for pet food; that no residences are located inside the 200-300-foot "odor zone" pledged by the architect, and that the fish wharves of Water street have a smell which is not pleasant.

Witnesses heard yesterday in support of the King bill, which presumably would prevent the Gobel company from going forward with its plans, were Dr. Charles B. Campbell, chairman of the public health committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations; Miss Harlean James, executive secretary of the American Planning and Civic Association, and Francis P. Sullivan, chairman of the public works and National Capital committees of the American Institute of Architects.

Observers in the crowded hearing room attached significance to the fact that Senator Copeland, a member of the District Committee, did not mention the King bill, much less urge its passage, but confined his statement to the nuisance propensities of rendering plants.

Covering much the same ground as last week when D. Edward Clarke, local lawyer for Gobel, appeared before the Senate District Committee, the former health commissioner of New York City said it would take a miracle to make the rendering plant odorless, notwithstanding Henschin's citation of the latest machinery.

"I have a fossilized mind on this subject," Copeland began. "That's why I refused to serve on this subcommittee. I'm concerned with rendering plants, understand, not slaughterhouses. (The Gobel plant would be a combination of both.)

"There is as much difference between a slaughterhouse and a rendering plant as there is between attar of roses and a livery stable."

Described His Experience.

The New Yorker went on to tell of his experience, as health officer, with a reduction plant on Staten Island whose aroma made him sick. Later, under examination by Clarke, he admitted that the factory dealt only in long-dead horses and other animals rather than freshly killed ones.

"You cannot render dead animals without creating a nuisance," he said. "I can't believe that the District Committee is justified in approving the building of this plant, no matter how legitimate the enterprise. The site in question simply is no place for a rendering plant."

If it becomes necessary, he said he would gladly be a party to compensate the New York firm for its preliminary investment should it be prevented from completing construction and starting business. Miss James and Sullivan also stated their willingness to "pay off" Gobel, the former with the reservation that the Federal Government should share the cost with the District.

In reply to questions by Clarke, Henschin said he has been designing packing houses over 30 years and has built more than 100 of them in the United States. He spent two years in Russia doing the same work for the Soviet and in 1916 wrote a book on the subject of abattoir design.

Henschin said the architectural plans for the proposed Gobel plant were approved by the Bureau of Animal Industry on September 26, 1936, and also have been passed by the District. The Benning road abattoir would be as up to date as any now in operation, he said, with odorless rendering equipment featuring sealed vats.

At the request of Senator Austin, sub-committee member, and Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, he detailed the process of hog slaughtering, casing manufacture and the disposition of the blood and viscera. He said that the completed plant will be worth "no less than $1,250,000" and that $500,000 is being spent on alterations and additions.

Dr. Campbell asserted that his chief concern is the public health peril which would be presented by the plant, arguing that foul odors have an injurious effect on the skin and respiratory system. He pointed out that Gallinger Hospital is only a mile from the site and that its entire staff of 132 doctors oppose erection of the abattoir.

Mountain Musicians, Singers Bring Folk Songs to Capital

J. B. Chrisholm and his violin.

Auditorium of Wardman Park Resounds With Ancient English Numbers Preserved Over the Years; Group of Seven Includes Blind Man.

The fresh air of mountain music blew across the auditorium of the Wardman Park Hotel for something like two hours yesterday afternoon.

It was not the wild, swinging, break-down mountain music of the popular notion. The songs were those quieter things they have sung in the Appalachian coves and hollows since the first English settlers cleaved habitation places among the rocks in the dogwood setting of the hills.

It was the folk songs that, in recent years, have become a popular innovation in the most highbrow musical circles. John Powell, of Richmond, internationally famous pianist and composer, brought the musicians, seven in number, here to appear before the American Federation of Arts convention.

The songs they played on their banjos and fiddles and sung were the native folk tunes of England of several centuries ago. These songs were brought to this country by the early settlers and have lasted, uncorrupted, in the hills of the Southern Appalachians.

Cherished in Hill Country.

Powell hastened yesterday to explain the songs have not been preserved entirely in the mountains. They have been heard wherever the English tongue is spoken, in Canada, and as far away as Australia. But they have been very closely cherished in the hill country and handed down from father to son.

Seven picturesque figures sang or played the folk music yesterday. One was J. B. Chisholm, of Mirador, the estate of Lady Astor, in Virginia. He is a sharp-faced elderly man with a mustache that he constantly twicks at. Sometimes down there he takes his fiddle and absents himself for a fortnight. At such times he is visiting at the homes of his friends and joining in the music at mountain dances.

J. M. (Sailor Dad)) Hunt was there. He lives now in Marion, Va. the small Southwestern Virginia town where Sherwood Anderson, the author, lives. Hunt is elderly, short as a stump and as active as a mountain whippoorwill. He was born in Liverpool, England, and sailed the seas for years on the clipper ships. He sang some wild, rollicking sea chanties yesterday. He pleased President Roosevelt with these during a White House concert several years ago.

Offered Blind Singer.

Horton Barker, of Love Mill, Va., who has been blind from birth, sang; Jess Johnson, of Wolfs Pen, W. Va., played his fiddle; Mrs. Victoria Morris, of Mount Fair, Albemarle County, Va., sang some songs; Lloyd Fitzgerald, of Waynesboro, Va., sang, and C. B. Wohlford, of Marion, played his banjo.

Such songs as they played and sang have been collected by the hundreds in all parts of the world. To the ear they seem tuneless, but technically are of such purity of form that musicians the world over are seizing upon them for preservation. The finding of one of them causes great excitement among the folk collectors.

The mountain musicians simply played them—a little bashfully, some of them—and then took their seats to the applause of a highbrow audience.

French Minister Awards Medals To D. C. Students

The prizes, presented by the Ambassador, consisted of engraved silver and bronze medals, given by the French government.

They were distributed as follows:

Third year, private schools—First prize, Cathelene Crane, Maret School; second prize, Marie Louis Aldudin, Georgetown Visitation Convent.

Second year, private schools—first prize, Eileen Francis, Immaculate Conception Academy; second prize, Evelyn Downs, Immaculate Conception Academy; second prize, Evelyn Downs, Immaculate Conception Academy.

Public junior high schools—first prize, Barbara Baer, Gordon; second prize, Margaret Kays, Gordon.

Following the conferring of the prizes, Ambassador Bonnet spoke briefly in his native language. The winning papers of Miriam Childress and Cathelene Crane were read.

Arrangements for the competition and the selection of students were made by the Washington Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French, of which the president is Mrs. Corrington Gill and the secretary, Mrs. Undine L. Fitzgerald.

NLRB Will Hear Hindrance Charge By Bus Workers

Baltimore, May 13 (AP).—Bennet F. Schauffler, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, today ordered a hearing in Washington May 24 on charges of company interference in the union activities of employes of the Washington Virginia and Maryland Coach Co.

The complaint said the charges concerned the recent organization of the Northern Virginia Coach Operators Association for the employes, a large number of which are affiliated with the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric and Motor Coach Employes of America.

Schauffler said "investigation raises a substantial question whether the new organization is instigated and fostered by the management in order to frustrate strongly revived organizating activity in the amalgamated."

He asserted that the new organization is being promoted by John Paul Jones, a Washington attorney. He said the question to be presented at the hearing is that of company interference in the domination of the new labor organization.

In one of its labor decisions, the Supreme Court recently ruled against the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. in a complaint which originated in the regional office of the National Labor Relations Board.

D. C. Jobless Lacked Food, Says Hopkins

Employables', Condition 'Miserable,' WPA Head Tells House Group

Jobless employables went hungry in Washington last winter, Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, told a House sub-committee on deficiency appropriations, a transcript of the inquiry disclosed yesterday.

Commenting on the Federal policy of eliminating employables from WPA rolls, Hopkins said:

"In cities like Washington and other cities which provide no help for any employable persons, it simply meant that these people were not helped."

Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, inquired: "What did they do?"

"Lived Miserably."

Hopkins replied:

"They were hungry, they did not have money to pay their rent, and they lived very miserably. That happened right here in the District of Columbia, where conditions were shocking."

Social welfare organizations and the District welfare department have been making a fight for an appropriation to care for jobless employables since the first of the year.

A request for a $130,000 deficiency appropriation has been pending before the Budget Bureau for several weeks.

The House sub-committee on District appropriations rejected pleas by welfare organizations for an extra $1,000,000 to aid employables during the next fiscal year.

12,000 on Rolls.

WPA workers on Federal and District rolls now number close to 12,000, but many applications for WPA jobs are ending. The WPA rolls were cut last winter at the instruction of the Federal WPA.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said yesterday the District heads will not press the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations for the $1,000,000 item for employables.

"If the welfare people are interested in the matter, let them go to the Budget Bureau," he said.

The situation will be explained to the Senate sub-committee, but no effort will be made to persuade the Senators to grant the additional relief appropriation.

May Celebration To Aid Children Opens in Capital

Children in Maytime costume disported on the lawn at Neighborhood House yesterday afternoon, singing, dancing and winding the Maypole as the institution at 470 N street southwest celebrated its thirty-fifth spring fesival.

The observance will continue through Saturday with the high peak of the celebration coming Saturday afternoon when children will dance and wind the ribbons on six Maypoles in a street festival.

Evening parties will feature an operetta, "The Magic Beanstalk," presented by more than 100 children, members of girls' and boys' clubs, the music classes and the classes in folk dancing of Neighborhood House.

Proceeds of the celebrations are to be used to maintain vacation classes and to send children to the country for outings during July and August.

1,200 Will Attend TradeBoard Picnic

Setting a record for the event, the forty-third outing and shad bake of the Board of Trade at Bay Ridge, Md., tomorrow was assured of 1,200 guests.

In announcing the suspension of ticket sales, Robert W. Davis, chairman, said the supply had been exhausted at noon yesterday.

Persons without transportation are reuested to report at the District Building at 8:45 a. m. tomorrow, when arrangements will be made. The motorcade will leave the District Building at 9.

Gov. Harry W. Nice, of Maryland, will attend. Diller B. Groff, chairman of the dinner committee, has arranged dinners for 11:30 a. m. and 2:05 p. m., with a lunch at 4 p. m.

D. C. Residents to Get Vote, 'Lady Mayor' Tells Kiwanians

Donning the robes of the prognosticator, Washington's "Lady Mayor" yesterday predicted the early demise of the "red rider" and eventual granting of the voting franchise to residents of the Capital.

Addressing the semiannual "Ladies Day" program of the Washington Kiwanis Club, Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House District Committee also denounced plans to build an abattoir in Northeast Washington and promised that her committee will recommend no more additional taxation than is necessary to meet the impending deficit.

Mrs. Norton said the membership of her District group this year is the best in years. So far at this session it has reported 28 bills favorably, of which 19 have been passed, she asserted.

The other nine bills are on the House calendar and 21 more have been or are now being considered by sub-committees.

When she said, somewhat plaintively, that the racing bill which she introduced seemed to be dead, there was loud applause from one Kiwanian.

Turning to him, the New Jersey legislator, slightly piqued, said the defeat of the measure didn't bother her particularly and she had been to a race track only twice in her life anyway.

Man, Blinded in Accident, Constructs House on Wheels

John Martie and his wife.

Elevator, Inspector, Given Up for Dead, Now Enjoys Life on Road, Tired of Monotonous Life of Sightless.

A man who apparently has found the answer is in town. He didn't find happiness, which all mankind is seeking, on the road of fame and wealth, but on the rarest road pursued, philosophy.

His name is John Martie and he is blind. In 1910, as Washington inspector for the Otis Elevator Co., his head was crushed in an accident at Cumberland, Md. The admitting nurse at a hospital told the ambulance drivers to take him to the morgue. But he was not dead.

Yesterday he sunned himself on the back porch of "the only" house on wheels in America, at the Washington Tourist Camp, and told of adventures, fun and travel which he and his wife have enjoyed.

"After I recovered for 12 years," he began, all the while stringing tiny beads and multicolored shells, "I was a touch typist in the Otis Co. offices in New York. I left my home in Washington and learned to type. But 12 years day in and day out, doing the same thing, got too monotonous.

Started Life Anew.

"So I quit, to start life again. There isn't much one can do in business when blind. I sold candy, cigars and newspapers in the stand in the Municipal Building in New York City. Then in 1929, I married here. We drove to the West Coast on our honeymoon, camping all the way. I got so tired putting up and taking down the tent, I told her I was going to turn in the car and get a truck chassis and build a house on it."

His wife didn't believe him, but he fooled her and set to work in the back yard of their home in Astoria, Long Island, to build a house on wheels. Every bit of the carpentry and steel-fitting, he did himself. The next winter they lived in the perambulating house in Florida. It's as tight and solid as an egg.

"To me, it doesn't seem so much," he said. "Nothing remarkable. I just went ahead and did it. I imagine that was the only house in history started in New York and finished in Florida."

Mrs. Martie obviously has to drive—"and I drive under 40," she laughed, "because there's a governor on the car. He's the governor."

Likes Life on Road.

"This house took me eight weeks to build," the blind man said. "It rides nicely. When we're rolling along, I step out on the back porch and have a smoke. We eat well, live in healthful climates and make a livelihood from manufacturing novelties out of shells, such as bracelets, earings, and my wife makes goofies—little penguins, birds, turkeys, flowers."

"We are happy," they beamed, with what seemed utter sincerity. "I swim all winter, do little odd jobs and have grand summers in places like the Berkshires or Yosemite," she said. To which he added, "Everyone respects me. I never have any trouble. During the depression I might have had to go on relief, but I went on the road. It's the best life ever."

General Accounting Office Group to Confer With Personnel Heads.

Alarmed by the announcement that between 250 and 300 emergency employes wil be dismissed by the General Accounting Office on or about June 30, G. A. O. Lodge, No. 8, American Federation of Government Employes, will confer with the personnel office and offer three three recommendations. They are:

Where lay-offs are necessitated, those affected shall be given at least two weeks' notice, plus their accrued annual leave.

That lay-offs shall be made on the basis proposed by the office—of efficiency ratings, plus seniority.

That furloughs be given, rather than outright dismissals, with the understanding that in the event of any rehiring those laid off will be recalled in order to seniority before new personnel is engaged.

The lay-offs will be necessitated by lack of funds, officials stated. A few dismissals are being made now, and others may be expected after the end of the fiscal year.

The General Accounting Office at this time is employing about 2,700 workers of an emergency nature. There are distributed through 15 buildings in Washington and one in Alexandria. The office is the third to announce a lay-off in the current governmental economy drive. First was the AAA, then the PWA.

The results of the G. A. O. lodge conference with the Personnel Office will be given at a meeting of all G. A. O. employes at 8:15 o'clock Monday evening, in the Hamilton Hotel.

Boys' Club Compaigners Give Report of Progress

A drive-report luncheon, first in the campaign to raise $75,000 for the year's activities, was held by officials and workers of the Police Boys' Club at the Willard Hotel yesterday.

Four new members were named to the collection committee. They are Hilleary G. Hoskinson, John Reilly, E. C. Baltz and E. S. Johnston.

D. C. May Get Church Unit Headquarters

Episcopal Delegates Consider Transfer From New York

Parish delegates to the annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington in St. Paul's Church, Rock Creek Parish, voiced interest in transferring national headquarters of their church from New York to Washington, but voted to condition their wishes on the decision of the national convention next fall in Cincinnati.

Representatives of 75 local parishes passed two resolutions stating that local Episcopalians will be "glad to consider any proposition" that the national body recommends.

Speaking before the resolutions were discussed the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, who presided at the sessions, said:

"Washington is the logical place for the national headquarters of the church, but we ought not to anticipate nor unduly try to influence the judgment of the church as a whole. The general convention meeting at Cincinnati in October may decide."

Bishop in Rhode Island.

National offices of the denomination are now located in a New York City office building, while the Right Rev. James DeWolf Perry, Bishop of Rhode Island, the presiding bishop, resides in Providence, R. I.

Should the headquarters be moved to Washington, plans under consideration call for erection of a separate building.

One of the resolutions passed yesterday authorizes Bishop Freeman, "if and when requested by the general convention so to do, to appoint a committee of nine" to confer with any committee named by the convention in respect to the relationship between the Diocese of Washington and the general convention.

A second resolution resolved "that the convention of the Diocese of Washington is entirely sympathetic with the resolution of the general convention in 1934 looking to the residence of the presiding bishop in Washington."

The convention at its business session yesterday voted to allow two missions in the diocese to become parishes. Ascension Mission, which has been a part of the Silver Spring, Md., parish, will be organized now as Sligo Parish. And Nativity Mission, near Lincoln Park, which has been functioning as a section of the Washington, will be changed to a parish in its own right.

Autoist Convicted As Drunk Despite Plea of Frame-up

Despite a contention that he had been "framed," James Henry Harker, 28, of Glenn Dale, Md., was found guilty of a charge of driving while drunk yesterday by a Police Court jury. Sentence was reserved until next week.

Harker was arrested several weeks ago while he was driving on Bladensburg road northeast. The policemen testified that Harker was heartbroken over the loss of his sweetheart and "was trying to forget it all."

Taking the witness stand Harker told the jury he had been watched by the police since he aided the Government in a case against two policemen who were sent to jail on assault charges several years ago.

Harker was a witness in the case against Privates William R. Laffin and James A. Mostyn, who served a year in jail for allegedly using "third degree" methods on a housebreaking suspect.

Mark Twain's State to Honor His New Film

Many Notables Will Lend Presence to Eminence of 'Pauper.'

Representatives of Mark Twain's native State—Missouri—will honor the memory of that beloved American author by attending the premier of "The Prince and the Pauper" at the Earle Theater tonight.

This Warner Bros. production stars Errol Flynn and presents the Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby, in the title roles.

The group of Missourians will be the guests of the Missouri State Society and of John J. Payette, Warner Bros. general zone manager.

Senator Clark Heads Group.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark heads the list of invited guests. Others include Dr. O. E. Reed, president of the Missouri State Society; Senator Harry S. Truman, vice president; Mrs. Charles Keyser, vice president; Representative Orville Zimmerman, vice president; W. W. Badgley, treasurer; Craig L. Reddish, secretary; Representative John J. Cochran, Representative Richard Duncan, the Hon. J. L. Barty and John B. Gordon.

Fourth Twain Story Filmed.

One of the best loved stories by Mark Twain, "The Prince and the Pauper" is the fourth of his works to come to the screen. "Huckleberry Finn," "Tom Sawyer" and "A Connecticut Yankee" having been filmed before.

Warner Bros. spared no expense to make the new production outstanding, not only in cast but also in backgrounds, music, direction and production.

7 Ex-Policemen Freed In 'Third Degree' Death

Hot Springs, Ark., May 13 (AP).—A circuit court jury late today acquitted seven former Hot Springs policemen accused of fatal use of the "third degree" in the death last Christmas Eve of John Dickson, 32-year-old city jail prisoner.

Delegates Leave Today.

Manassas, Va., May 13.—Delegates from Prince William County will leave tomorrow for Harpers Ferry, W. Va., where the annual youth conference will be held.

They Play Leads in Mark Twain Classic

Presented for one night only as opening attraction upon the occasion of the recent dedication of the new Warner Brothers' Calvert Theater, "The Prince and the Pauper," the picturization of the famous novel by Mark Twain, comes to the screen at the Earle Theater this week as chief feature of the bill. The principal roles are played by Errol Flynn and the Mauch Twins—Billy and Bobby. If you can tell which is which between the twins, you are good.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Close co-operation between defenders is often not enough to defeat a contract; sometimes they need a bad guess by declarer in addition. But in order to have any chance at all they must present declarer his guess before he has a chance to obviate it.

The play in the hand below is one of the most widely used in Bridge. Yet, as the result testifies, it is none the less effective.

West opened the King of hearts, East signaling with the discouraging deuce. West promptly shifted to the fourth-best diamond, and South had to guess which card to play from dummy.

The lead had demonstrated that West had the Ace and King of hearts. To South that seemed to suggest the Ace of diamonds was more likely to be in the East hand. In addition, East's discouraging deuce of hearts had indicated readiness to support some other lead. South, therefore, gave East credit for the Ace of diamonds, and hopefully played dummy's Jack. Naturally, East won with the Queen, and returned a heart to West's Ace. The Ace of diamonds then defeated the contract.

The point to the defense was that each defender could see that no tricks could be won in the black suits and only two in hearts. Two diamond tricks, therefore, had to be won by the defense in order to defeat the contract.

North, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, May 13.—Mutterings: I'd like to tie a rope to Edward G. Robinson's ankles and break him of backing away from cameras until only the napes of other players' necks show. Diabolical thought: To invite Mae West to speak before a convention of amalgamated censor boards. Wonder if Grace Moore sings false notes in the bath tub when soap gets in her eyes? Ambition: To take Eleanor Powell to a Main street dance hall and have a go at the truckin' contest.

GRACE MOORE.

Wondering muse: Where will Joan Crawford turn when her career, which is her life, goes the way of all? Has Robert Montgomery's supercilious air commenced to bore you too? Imaginable hilarious evening: To referee a debate between Mary Astor and George Kaufman on the subject: Resolved, the diary is an institution. My idea of consternation: Adolphe Menjou, at realization that the tip of his breast-pocket handkerchief is slightly soiled. What pathos to hear Betty (Peter Pan) Bronson and Charlotte (Alice in Wonderland) Henry compare their careers.

• • • •

Frantic urge: To say to Shirley Temple's mama: "They mixed babies in the hospital. Shirley belongs to a Mrs. McGillicuddy." (Then run like hell for Little America.) How long since you have heard a good, old-fashioned, theater hissing of a screen villain? Growl: Actresses who confide headline news to reporters, then cry when the reporters do their duty. Job I'd like to hold: Movie talent scout (with unlimited expense account) in Parisian cafes.

One of the strangest effects of reflected glory is the case of Dr. Joel Pressman. When the good doctor married Claudette Colbert, there were not many of us who failed to tab him a singularly fortunate fellow. As for the business reaction; well, we thought he would immediately grab all the movie trade, thanks to his wife's widespread popularity.

• • • •

But I am wondering if the situation has not taken a turn for the worse, professionally speaking? To begin with, Dr. Pressman was already famous and well-to-do when he met Claudette. And here is an almost ridiculous happening that has occurred since: When Dr. Pressman was awarded one of the highest honors in the medical world for his researches in cancer, he went to New York to receive his just deserts. His arrival was heralded in most dailies in this fashion: "Husband of Screen Star Wins High Honor."

Among other honorary titles conferable on Greta Garbo might be that of "Back Seat Driver Extraordinary." She never handles the wheel herself; in fact, I recently reported that she cannot drive. But she sits in the recesses of the back seat and directs her chauffeur. The man who used to pilot her limousine says Garbo rides a great deal, and she knows more back streets and alleys into which she can scurry to seclusion than a second-story man.

• • • •

Most amusing of all her motoring eccentricities is this: When it becomes necessary to make stops because of congestion or traffic signals, Garbo slides to the floor and remains hidden until her car is permitted to proceed. I cannot stifle a chuckle at thought of opening the limousine door, finding Greta sprawled on the floor and saying, ever so nonchalantly, "Well! Fancy meeting you here!"

LOEW'S CAPITOL—TODAY

Blonde Boom Is on the Way, Says Anita Loos

Brunette Author Planning to Make Gents Show They Prefer 'Em.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, May 13.—Anita Loos, who once made a nice score for herself with a book about blondes, announces a campaign to re-establish the blonde business on a paying basis.

It will probably be news to most citizens that blondes are no longer doing so well, but Miss Loos—herself a brunette weighing 96 pounds—says it's so.

"Depression got 'em," she explained. "Men have little time for romance when business conditions are bad, and the cultivation of blondes takes a lot of leisure.

"Of course the depression is over, now, but blondes haven't bounced back along with rails and steel and motors.

"Gents Still Prefer."

"Gentlemen still prefer blondes, but somehow they haven't gotten around to doing anything about it. I'm going to make them express that preference, and soon."

First step in the Loos campaign was to ship Jean Harlow, former prominent blonde who relapsed to "brownette," back into the peroxide line.

She accomplished the coup by writing the Harlow part in "Saratoga" expressly for a blonde.

"You'll see," she said. "Nobody could play that part as a brownette or any other kind of an 'ette. The role requires blondness just like ham needs eggs."

Mr. Kibbee Explains.

Guy Kibbee, 51, announces he intends to live to be 103.

"I was a little worried about it until I took it up with my doctor," Kibbee said. "But he tells me I'm in perfect health. My son and daughter are 2 and 6 years old, but I expect to see them grown up with children of their own. I'm already planning to attribute my old age to the fact I spend all my spare time fishing."

Somebody asked why he plans on 103 instead of an even century. "The extra three," he explained, "is for State tax."

Completing what may be the "perfect crime," Robert Taylor will croon in "Broadway Melody of 1937." Producer Jack Cummings heard the schoolgirls' favorite helping Eleanor Powell rehearse "Yours and Mine," one of her numbers, and announced the Taylor low moaning is in the show. To cap it all, Taylor will also dance.

Blondell Can Punch!

Joan Blondell lined Warner Bros. up for a dentist's bill by putting too much follow through on her film face-slapping routine. "Insulted" by heavy Walter Byron in "Angel Shooter," Blondell let him have it shoulder and all, and knocked three fangs out of his front bridge work.

Hands across the sea stuff isn't working so well for Germaine Aussey, imported French actress, so she's having to invent a sign language to get her gardening done. Japanese gardener can't make sense of her English a la Francaise, and she has trouble enough with plain English, to say nothing of American delivered in the Banzai manner.

Federal Air Experts To Test Blind Landing

Technical observers from the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, Department of Commerce and the Federal Communications Commission will fly to Indianapolis from Washington early this morning to inspect a demonstration of the Lorenz blind-landing system for airplanes.

The Lorenz system, which uses radio markers and a radio glide path, has been under test at Indianapolis for some time. Similar equipment is installed at principal airports in Europe. The trip today is being backed by the International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Girard College Alumni To Mark Anniversary

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

'Follies' Show Today for Actors' Fund Benefit Offers Complete Broadway Musical, Vaudeville Bill

Cast of Shubert Revue at National Giving Charity Performance for Indigent Stage Performers; Hugh Cameron, Veteran Comedian, One of High Lights; Circus Coming to Town Monday.

IT STILL seems to this column that the worthiest theatrical activity available to Washington theatergoers today is the special Actors' Fund Benefit performance to be given this afternoon by the "Ziegfeld Follies" in the National Theater—regular prices and no amusement tax, since the enterprise is wholly on the side of charity.

BELL.

Regardless of the worthiness of the cause for which this matinee is to be given, the amusement-seeker should bear in mind that he is going to see the same bill for which night customers are paying up to $3.85 a seat—Fanny Brice, Bobby Clark, Hugh Cameron, Leota Lane, Harrison and Fisher, Cass Daley, Marian Martin, the successor to the disrobed preeminence of Gypsy Rose Lee; the Preisser Sisters, June and Cherry; Marvin Lawler, Stan Kavanagh, the best of the jugglers; Ben Yost's Varsity Eight and all the rest of the effulgent cast that is building a week of imposing box-office proportions at the National.

As I have said before, the Actors' Fund of America, under the presidency and active directorship of Daniel Frohman, dean of the American theater, is one of the most efficiently and most economically administered relief funds known to the world. Practically everything that is taken in goes out for the relief of the indigent of the profession who have not been able to keep up. Not a penny is lost.

When thought is given to the willingness with which theatrical performers always agree to appear at any benefit whatsoever, it seems only fair that the public should manifest the same spirit when they ask for a bit of monetary help. Many of them need it, although they would be the last to admit it.

* * * *

There comes card from that intrepid young publicist, Ray Bell—no relation—of the Loew interests in Washington, postmarked in Rome, Italy. This is what it says: "Another day and I'll be joining the ruins. 'Butch' (ed. note: that would be Mrs. Bell) says when it comes to the Romans, she's all forum."

Always clowning, this fellow, but what is there that can be done about it?

* * * *

One, of course, has to be disturbed by these cryptic things that keep coming to the drama desk. I told you yesterday about that June 14 business that nobody seems to understand.

Well, today there come three cards—the U. S. Government one-cent style—saying in turn: "1906: On June 14, W. K. Vanderbilt's colt, Northeast, won the Grand Prix de Paris, with a purse of $60,000. More than $340,000 was bet at odds of 10 to 1. That was news 29 years ago."

"1917: On June 14, the campaign for subscriptions to the first Liberty Bond issue closed. That was news 20 years ago."

"1918: On June 14, Walter Williams, colored, was fined $500 or 180 days in jail, in Police Court, selling liquor, in violation of the 'new' Sheppard dry law for the District of Columbia. That was news 19 years ago."

It would be interesting to know what this "blind" business is all about. I am probably being a monumental sucker for having gone for it at all, but having been a press agent once myself, I find my curiosity piqued no little.

I still don't know what we are shooting at—if anything worth while.

* * * *

There has not been enough said in the public prints about the capability of Hugh Cameron, in "The Follies," as a comedian of the first rank. Hugh has been around our major showshops now for a long time and never, within the knowledge of this department, ever has turned in an indifferent performance. His present assignment to some of the most important sketches in the Shubert revue marks no recession from his former high average. He is of a type that is fast disappearing from the American stage—worse luck.

* * * *

So Mr. Frank Braden drops into the office with the purpose of bashing me on the nose or some other convenient point of attack, only to subside and say that when the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus opens in Washington on the seventeenth, of the current month, it will be the greatest show that anybody ever has seen under canvas.

I take that—as I trust you do, also—with the proverbial grain of salt, but I still am constrained to believe that maybe Mr. Braden has a show in tow.

* * * *

Signs-of-Spring Note.

Never mind about the dogs, rats and cats. The robins have come back to the umbrella tree and all is well in the matter of pets—at least, in the matter of something to look at and admire.

Costarred in Technicolor Film

This is the newest portrait study of Janet Gaynor, costarred with Frederic March in "A Star Is Born," on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. This picture is expected to do much to restore Miss Gaynor to the first rank of film ingenues and to add to the prestige of Mr. March as one of the cinema's most competent leading men. "A Star Is Born" enters its second week today.

D. C. Forum to Conduct Symposium on Taxation

Representative Herbert Bigelow, of Ohio; Prof. John H. Gray, former president of the American Economics Association; William A. Roberts, former People's Counsel, and Dr. Charles M. Thomas, of the Social Science Department of the Armstrong School, will be the speakers in a symposium on "Taxation Without Representation," sponsored by the Capital City Forum, this evening at 1502 Fourteenth street northwest.

Theme of the symposium will be the plight of the District in regard to taxation and lack of representation.

Hold Dance Program.

A spring program of dances by the children's group of the Columbia Heights Community Center will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of Powell Junior High School, under the direction of Miss Marjorie Mitchell. Dancing classes from Cooke and Bancroft Schools will participate.

Ordinance Corps Views New Guns, Munitions

The latest in Army guns, munitions and mechanized equipment was displayed at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., yesterday before members of the Army Ordnance Association.

The association members, following their annual banquet at the Mayflower Wednesday night, inspected new equipment and listened to detailed, technical discussions of recent ordnance developments. Discussions were purely theoretical, however, and none of the guns were fired.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, May 13.

LESTER SALKOW, who appeared in "Counselor-at-Law" and now appearing in "Excursion," has had a varied career. Not long ago he became an insurance agent and made an intensive study of that profession, as well as an exhaustive research into the history at Lloyd's . . . For years Salkow has been planning to apply this knowledge of insurance to the actors' theater. And now he's positive that he's found the system—a system of insuring actors against the grief resulting from flop-shows . . . For a percentage of their salary beyond six weeks, Salkow is preparing to issue a policy insuring the stage folk against the possibility of getting less than six weeks' work in any show which employs them . . . This is a policy which Lloyd's of London won't issue. Already his colleagues in "Excursion" are bestowing upon him the accolade of the insurance great. They call him "Salkow of Brooklyn!"

LIBBY HOLMAN is backing Leonard Sillman's new musical, but is still looking for a job in a musical . . . Harry Richman is trying to buy a night club and to open it in the fall as the Club Richman. The spot is on Fifty-fourth street . . . Connie Immerman, mein host at the Cotton Club, decided to visit a swank spot last night. He and his wife went to the Starlight Roof of the Waldorf and mingled with the fancy folk. When Immerman received his check, he proffered a $1,000 bill—and nobody at the swank Waldorf could change it!

JOHN STEINBECK, author of "Of Mice and Men," came to New York recently to work on the dramatization of his novel. The writer, seeking anonymity here, rented a room on lower Eighth avenue—a $5 a week room. The next afternoon he had to go uptown for a few minutes. When he returned he found all hopes for solitude completely defeated . . . For there, screaming from the window of their perfect retreat, was the alarmed Mrs. Steinbeck—shouting: "Fire, fire!"

THE MEMBERS of the cast of "You Can't Take It With You" are suddenly realizing that the Pulitzer award to their play isn't helping their performance. The customers seem to be colder now—colder and defiant, as if they were saying: "So you won the Pulitzer Prize, eh? Well, let's see you make us laugh!" . . . The Cameo Theater is exhibiting a Russian-made movie short, depicting the progress of Soviet trades in Russia. The short has a musical accompaniment and during one sequence the musical background is a very hot arrangement—of "St. Louis Blues."

EUGENE LERI is the head-waiter at the Gardens in the Ambassador. Upon him recently was bestowed one of the rarest awards extant . . . Leri, in addition to his head-waiter's work, is one of the most capable Latin translators in America. Twice each year, when the Pope broadcasts his semiannual messages, Leri translates those speeches for the Associated press. In recognition thereof, Head-Waiter Eugene Leri has received a gold medal from the Pope . . . Johnny Hauser's orchestra has been signed to play at Grossinger's. In preparation therefor, the Hauser bandsmen are practicing—doing without butter during a meat meal.

A GENTLEMAN of long acquaintance confronted Mike Romanoff at the Clover Club in Hollywood, and exhibited a rubber check which Mike had issued to him in London. "I've carried this with me across the Atlantic," he told Romanoff. "Now what?" . . . "Well," Mike consoled, "it should confirm your suspicions—that it was waterproof!"

INA CLAIRE: If you're still mystified as to why that enlarged photo of you was removed from the lobby during the run of "Biography"—now it can be told . . . Thomas Van Damm, who took the picture, had asked the stage manager to scratch some notations on the blank piece of paper atop the piano at which you were posing. "Write anything," Van Damm directed, "so it'll look used" . . . The manager obliged, and the enlarged photo was hung in the lobby. It was removed when some patrons were able to decipher the notation on the paper. The message was: "Ina Claire is a swell actress—but she can't remember my lines!"

Former Ziegfeld Star Bonded on Dope Charge

Mrs. Sally Fine, 30, who told police she once was glorified by Ziegfeld, was held under $500 bond yesterday for a further hearing when arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of possessing narcotics.

Meanwhile, Capt. Ira E. Keck, assistant chief of detectives, said a warrant has been issued for the woman's husband to be returned here from Winchester, Va., where he has been in custody for several days. Mrs. Fine was arrested Wednesday in a downtown hotel. Detective John K. Baker said a quantity of heroin was found in her room.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Midshipman, Believing Himself Better Suited to Civilian Than Navy Life, Asks Guidance.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Something tells me "Navy Wife" either has been disillusioned in her choice of husband or else she has lost most of the romance she felt in her youth. Her letter suggests it would be best for all of us if the Naval Academy would go even farther toward keeping us midshipmen away from the fair sex. Heaven forbid! Most of us feel as you do—that it is better for a naval officer to report to his ship with the assurance that some woman is depending on and standing by him than it is to report with a lack of confidence in his own ability to make someone love him. Confidence may best be placed in a man who has confidence in himself. And man's greatest self-confidence stems from the knowledge that some woman truly loves him.

"Navy Wife" speaks about "the gold braid and those brass buttons." The thought that a girl might love me for my uniform rather than for myself is repulsive. Outward appearance may invite romance but true love comes only with complete understanding. That I know. My fiance and I have found that complete understanding which accompanies true love. I would hate the thought of going out with the fleet without her love. I certainly wouldn't make much of an officer. So much for "Navy Wife." Now I have a question to ask you.

* * * *

Strange as it may seem to many, there are plenty of midshipmen who don't care so much for this "blue and gold." Outsiders, of course, don't really know what life down here is like. All they know is what they see in the movies, and they think our whole life is like that. I, for one, think I would be much better suited to the civilian life. I cannot get out for two reasons. The first: my father, to whom I owe a great deal, would like to see me graduate. The second: if I do graduate I have to serve two years with the fleet and maybe more, if the Navy Department won't permit me to resign after the probationary period.

I plan to marry after graduation regardless of the restriction imposed. Many persons believe I am taking an unfair advantage of the Government; but what else can I do under the circumstances? I am here, and I wouldn't hurt my parents for anything. Just what should I do? Isn't a man's first duty to his family? I think I know what I shall do, but I would like someone else's viewpoint.

With due respect to "Navy Wife," who probably didn't say what she really meant, I remain,

ANOTHER MIDSHIPMAN.

Out With the Truth.

DEAR A. M.: To follow a career which is not to one's taste is to make an empty sacrifice of one's life to a false god, it seems to me. The noblest, best and most honorable service is "not of the letter, but of the spirit; for the letter killeth," where the spirit does not continuously inject new life and vigor into man's endeavor. Let no one tell you otherwise. This self-evident truth must be known, I feel sure, to the wise and seasoned heads of the Naval Academy and the Navy Department, and if the proper personages were acquainted in time with your emphatic preference for the civilian's life, I cannot believe they would obstruct your return to it.

* * * *

A man's first duty is to himself in the matter of choosing his life's work. His obligation to his parents is to see that they shall not want, materially, while he can provide; and to see that he does not bring dishonor upon their heads. And in this regard you must face the question as to whether you are acting honorably—according to the code of the Navy and the code of a gentleman—in accepting intensive education bestowed upon you with the tacit understanding that you are to use it in the service of the Navy, when you have not, in your mind, fully subscribed to this understanding.

* * * *

Aren't you, at this minute, committing a negative deception against your Government and your parents in proposing to marry immediately after graduation in defiance of Navy restrictions? Would it not be more honorable, more courageous to out with the embarrassing truth of your temperamental unsuitability for naval service right now, rather than have it leak out by indirection and insubordinate action when your academic education is completed? Isn't it more manly to say, "No, thank you; it's not to my taste," than to swallow an indigestible hand-out and retaliate by biting the hand that fed you?

* * * *

Though your father might be grievously disappointed and even furiously indignant at your firm determination not to follow the course he has mapped out for you, I am sure he would prefer disappointment to the lasting shame which would be his portion if you commit a sneaking act. I know little about naval life and naval restrictions; but I do know that a gentleman discharges his every obligation to the last farthing, as speedily as possible.

* * * *

If you would return to civilian life, take steps to secure an honorable release from service at the earliest possible date. Talk the matter over with your parents, first, and then with your commanding officers. And if it develops (though this is unlikely) that two years' bachelor service with the fleet following graduation is the price to be exacted for your Naval Academy education, it seems to me you will simply have to pay it without whimpering. Better pay that way than in the coin of a dishonored name and a reputation for impetuously breaking a solemn trust.

* * * *

Remember—in regard to your father's high hopes—that it takes more courage to disappoint than to deceive; and that a man's most priceless possession—the worth of which he never fully appreciates unless and until he loses it—is his reputation for honorable dealing. What course you take now, at this cross roads in your life, will leave a lasting imprint, for better or for worse, on both your character and reputation.

Tomorrow's Problem

After ten years' marriage to a woman who has been everything he could expect of a wife and mother, husband learns she had affairs with other men before marriage. How to go on in the light of this discovery, he asks. His question will be answered here tomorrow. This column appears Sunday as well as daily.

Transparent Brims Are Flattering

Soft pastel pink plastacele fashions this broad-brimmed hat with new transparent brim. The tiny flowers covering the crown are of pink velvet. This flattering model permits the sunlight to filter through—at the same time protecting the eyes.

By Ethel Ehlen,
The Post Fashion Editor.

NEW YORK, May 13.—In line with the "open air" fashions, which have taken over the summer fashion scene, are the hats of transparent brims. They not only flatter the wearer, but allow the sunshine to filter through the brim; paradoxically as it may seem, protecting the eyes from the summer sunlight, at the same time. Contrary to the majority of summer headgear which boasts of slit crowns or no crowns at all, these new transparent affairs are equipped with crowns of self-material or flowers.

For garden parties, sidewalk dining or any of the occasions which demand a picturesque hat to accompany sheers or dressy sheer suits, these transparent-brimmed chapeaux are ideal. They are equally suitable for daytime and evening wear but must accompany only the type of frocks and ensembles which are harmonious in materials. Printed chiffons, marquisettes, triple sheers, sheer cottons and the like are complementary fabrics.

In white, off-white and pastels, these effective large-brimmed hats are smart accents for black and other dark costume colors. For early and midsummer the light touch is smarter and more flattering than the all-black outfit; in this event, the hat and gloves may match in color. For instance, a broad-brimmed hat (whose brim is transparent) of pale or dusty pink or hyacinth and gloves of the same hue; yellow with black is also considered ultra-smart. The same color note of accent may be selected to complement all-white costumes—bright deep tones are usually considered more chic here, however, than the pastels.

New Accessories for Bathroom Include Matched Ensembles

By Rebekah Blake.

BATHROOM DOORS are no longer kept closed to the public eye, for these rooms have come into their own and are now as colorful and full of interest as any other room in the house. The modern bathroom has harmonizing colors and designs that match and are made to go in the same room.

Bathroom brighteners—for that is really what the new accessories are—are made up in ensembles of shower curtains, hampers and utility benches, rubber bath mats, toilet seats and health scales that match or harmonize. Often window drapes and shower curtains may be purchased in matching designs.

Window drapes made of the same material as the shower curtain are effective and practical, as they can be laundered easily and will not spot or stain if rained upon. If you do not wish to buy a matched ensemble, it is interesting to make up your own harmonizing combination.

A great deal of time, thought and money have been spent on shower curtains, to get designs that belong in bathrooms and will add to their beauty. A good bathroom design complements or matches in color all other things in the room and, in addition, it should be interesting, graceful and cheerful.

Some of the most popular designs are marine patterns. A bath naturally suggests water; consequently the designs include compositions of fish, boats, sailors' insignia, anchors, lanterns, lighthouses, water lilies, bubbles, waves and sea gulls.

Floral patterns are big favorites. Nearly every flower in exisence has been copied for these designs. Geometric figures, as stars, dots, plaids, stripes, checks, curves and angles are also popular. Charming names have been originated for all of these.

This year's popular bathroom colors are green, white, yellow and blue. The combination of "orange ice" and "hyacinth" is definitely new and completely French.

Orchid, peach and green are no longer used. When they were first brought out they were overdone, and decorators and homekeepers have grown in their appreciation and use of colors.

The most startling new color for the bathroom is brown. It was used before in living rooms and bedrooms, but never before in the bath. It is now combined with beige or white or pink. Turquoise is a new color. Decorators have been using it for the past year, but only in the last few months have you been able to get this shade in accessories in the stores. The use of turquoise in the bathroom is a reflection of the prevalence of turquoise in clothes. A color popular in clothing one season is apt to be smart in house-furnishings the next. However, this does not always hold true.

A popular pattern is often made up in all of the standard modern bathroom colors. These include green, blue, ivory, orchid, black, maize, white, dubonnet and sometimes rose, coral or peach.

A shower curtain doesn't need to be limited to just two colors. It may be printed in one color on another, in two colors or two tones on another, or in multi-colors on a plain background. Often an attempt is made to create curtains which will match chromium bath fixtures by using metallic figures on plain curtains. It is a matter of taste whether you choose bath curtains in one or two colors or many. An effort is being made to promote curtains with a wide variety of colors. This would harmonize with other things in the bath, for you can relieve the monotony of always emphasizing the same colors in your room. And you can make beautiful ensembles by matching towels to shades in the design.

Some shops have decorators who will paint sets of baskets and hampers to match shower curtains in any colors or patterns so you will have a complete ensemble.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By
Dr. Logan Clendening.

Nature of Hay Fever.

The number of people who are subject to spring hay fever is far smaller than the number subject to the fall type. The season also is shorter, but they have the disadvantage that there is no climatic escape. In most cases the condition is due to the pollen of the grasses, and these are so universally distributed in Northern as well as Southern climates, that even the barren places of the desert do not afford comfortable refuge for the victims.

It is my experience that it is easier to prevent seasonal attacks in these patients by pollen vaccines than it is the fall type. The only thing that prevents success is that the reactions may be more severe. They may be so severe as to cause the discontinuance of treatments. In those who are able to take the treatment without reaction, about 80 per cent can be controlled.

Treatment should certainly begin with the spring type in May and possibly in April. Or to put it another way, it should begin at least six weeks or a month before the time when experience has taught the patient the symptoms begin. Some doctors prefer to give preventive treatments all the year round, and think they have better results in this way.

Most of the spring hay fever, as I say, is due to the grasses, but some cases are due to trees. The earliest of these over most of the United States is the hazelnut, which in an ordinary season begins to shed pollen in March. In April the alder, cottonwood, birch, box elder, ironwood, hard maple, hackberry, oak, sycamore and ash may shed. Some of these go over into May, and in late May begin dock, red sorrel, rye and blue grass. In June the walnut and the chestnut come in, and dock, blue grass, orchard grass, lamb's quarter, wheat grass, timothy, red top grass, buckthorn, sedge, slough grass and sudan grass come in.

Just why certain people should be sensitive to these particles that float in the air is a mystery that I don't think anybody has solved yet. There is some peculiar state of the body which makes the cells, particularly of the nose and eyes and bronchial tubes, react to these vegetable particles which are entirely inoffensive to other people.

Another peculiar thing is that during "the season" the hypersensitive person reacts to many foods which he can handle with perfect comfort the rest of the year. Thus on some fine spring morning a person who has been eating grapefruit for some months will have his usual morning dish of it and immediately come down with an attack of sneezing and coughing. It is a very disagreeable legacy to carry around, and those of us who do not have it should be very sympathetic with those who do.

One of the causes of this condition—heredity—will be discussed in the article tomorrow.

Home Benefits Win Approval In Washington

Many Hostesses Receive Funds for Charitable Organizations.

By Margaret Wallace

PRACTICALLY every woman wants to do her part in carrying forward good work, but in this as in every other pursuit of life the question of good form must be considered. A club member has written to ask if it is ever good form to accept money from guests for entertainment and food in a private house, even though the money is contributed to a worthy cause.

"I am very much interested in a charitable project in Washington," this woman writes. "Our committee decided to give a card party and asked me if it could be held at my house. My husband does not like the idea of selling tickets and says he considers it equivalent to charging our friends to come into our home, and paying for the food we serve them. It has been the habit of this group of women to give such entertainments for the benefit of worthy causes. My husband knew I gave such parties but declares he did not understand I charged the guests. I always furnish all the refreshments and bear all the expenses incident to giving the party so that the money collected is all for the charity."

Under the circumstances outlined the hostess would not be entertaining guests, but contributing her home and other necessities for the benefit. It is a gift to the organization to be utilized in whatever way is seen fit.

One of the chief methods of raising money for projects in Washington is through the use of the homes and gardens of those interested. This applies both to the homes of the wealthy and of those with only modest incomes.

Another woman has a club entertainment problem. She wishes to invite members of a club, of which she is a member, to her house for a buffet supper. "Would it be correct," she writes, "to send invitations to each of the members individually or should I consult the president first to find out if the date I selected will be convenient to her and other members of the club? Shall I invite all the members whether I know them or not? Will it be necessary to ask the club president to receive the guests with me as my mother and daughter are joint hostesses with me?"

It would be very bad form to issue invitations in honor of a club without consulting the club president. While it is permissible for any hostess to invite individuals to her house without consulting any one it is not good form to give a party in honor of the members of an organization without asking permission of those to be honored.

It would be rude not to invite all the members of the club. It is a gracious gesture on the part of the hostess to ask the president of the club to receive with her. It would be proper to have the mother and daughter in the receiving line also or have them assist by talking to the guests and presenting them to other guests after they have been received by the hostess and the president of the club.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, May 13.

LIKE ALL "great world capitals," our tidy little town is noted for its many flocks of pigeons, who strut and beg wherever people gather to sit and brood. Oddly enough, not all people agree on the simple subject of city pigeons. Some profess to despise them as the worst type of moocher, stuffed all day with costly crumbs and peanuts and not even making sweet noises for their suppers. Others are very sentimental about these city birds, and habitually carry trifles to feed them. Many of ours are so fat they couldn't fly at the point of a shotgun—and so lazy that they wouldn't care, either.

ALICE HUGHES.

Probably our most famous pigeon-feeder is Nikola Tesla, the noted inventor, who is now 81 and feeble. For years he used to stuff the various flocks himself, each day, but he has now intrusted this duty to a red-headed messenger boy named Johnny. Twice a day Johnny packs 5 pounds of corn to the hangouts of three of the more famous of our coveys—the Public Library on the Avenue, St. Patrick's Cathedral and Bryant Park, behind the library—and dispenses old Mr. Tesla's largesse to the panhandling birds.

Practically all our little parks have their pigeon flocks and for some reason a large one hangs around the Grand Central Terminal. I don't know just why, though they seem as puffy as the rest. Probably the most famous is the one which roosts in the tracery about the rose window of St. Patrick's. These waddlers are known to every visitor to the city, and they do very well on the offerings of the pious. But Mr. Tesla's three flocks are the largest and fattest. Trust a mooching city pigeon to know a good thing when he sees it!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—It was a great night, let me tell you, when Peggy Hopkins Joyce made her re-entrance into the mad night life of Manhattan, after her tragic experience abroad. It was my good fortune to have a corner in the Stork Club when Peg made her party bow—looking very well, but not dancing yet, on account of the serious injuries to both her legs suffered in the accident which killed her English fiance. Somehow the insane night scene here is incomplete without the dear old gell . . .

* * * *

A more sedate occasion, but one filled with dignity and great charm, was the annual Ladies' Day Reception at the lovely old Players Club on Grammercy Park, founded by the late Edwin Booth and occupying his old home. Completely Victorian, the dear old place—with Mr. Booth's room kept just as it was the day he died. Among the women I saw enjoying the club's hospitality were Rita Weiman, Gladys Hanson, Florence Nash, Chrystal Herne and Inez Haynes Irwin . . .

* * * *

Sufferers from bugs-in-the-highball will welcome a new gadget I saw on a counter here recently, designed expressly for those lawn parties held in the cool of the early evening. It's a bit of burnished brass wire netting which fits tightly over the top of the glass, thus protecting the long, cold Tom Collins from little flying things while the owner is conversing amiably with the curate.

* * * *

The theater, not to mention hundreds of New Yorkers, suffered a dire loss in the death of Mrs. Charles D. Coburn, an actress for 35 years. She and her husband formed one of the country's most remarkable partnerships, both professional and domestic. They were known simply as "The Coburns." And "The Little Church 'Round the Corner" could not hold the crowd of friends who came to Ivah's funeral.

* * * *

Maybe I shouldn't mention it in mid-May, but this is the season the furriers check up on the popularity of various pelts. Right now black Persian coats of swagger type are far in the lead all over the country, with caracul, sealskin, mink and beaver following in that order. It's a strange feeling in the fashion business—this constantly being forced to march a good six months ahead of the pee-rade!

Learn Music Appreciation

MUSIC—made for your pleasure! How much more you'll enjoy it if you understand the composer's ways with melody, harmony and ryhthm—know something of the instrument that gives sweet sound.

Tune in on a symphony concert; a jazz or swing program. Or put a record on your phonograph. Your emotions begin to tingle. You're excited, or led into dreamy contemplation; fearful or mirthful, or filled with thoughts of love. Why?

Because the composer strung a succession of notes together in the right pattern to make you feel as he wished. That's the song or melody. When he combines two or more melodies at the same time, that's harmony. Rhythm is the ordered succession of accents which gives the impression of movement or speed.

The violin—soprano of the choir and sometimes considered the most important instrument in the orchestra—interprets many moods. It sings or chirps or wails in agony. The Piccolo adds glitter; the oboe a bitter-sweet sound. The bassoon, often called the clown of the orchestra, can move you to laughter, or make you warm and sentimental or passionate and sad.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "What You Should Know About Music," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Claire Tilden Dress Pattern

MAKE the most of glorious summer days! You will if you make a gay frock like this dashing two-piecer of Claire Tilden design. What more can you ask of a frock than chic, comfort and easy making? All three are incorporated in the smart lines of this feminine blouse, with its demurely puffed sleeves, round collar and fetching bow. The slim-line skirt flares gracefully, in tune with your breeziest stride. Imagine Pattern 353 made up in soft crepe or synthetic, with jacket of dainty contrasting lace—or the entire frock made up of gay linen or cotton. Easily made with the aid of the accompanying Detailed Sewing Guide.

Pattern 353 is cut in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 blouse requires 1 7-8 yards 36 inch lace; skirt 2⅛ yards 39 inch fabric, 1⅛ yards 4 inch ribbon bow.

Brush ½ pound mushrooms, peel. Line a round glass baking dish with plain paste and partially bake it in a 400 F. oven. Put in a layer of mushrooms, sprinkle with 1 tablespoon flour, salt and pepper, a few drops of onion juice, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1½ tablespoons melted butter and 3 tablespoons heavy cream. Cover with another layer of mushrooms, cream and seasonings and then with strips of plain paste. Bake at 400 F. until pastry is a delicate brown.

Three-Blouse Plan.

Three blouses can make any suit look like three different suits if one follows the trick of Helen Valkis, movie actress. She has collars cut over the pattern of the one on the suit, has them made up of the same material as the blouse. Worn with a matching blouse these collars are snapped on the suit collar and, voila, a new suit.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WHEN A LADY pops out with tulips of a spring morning, she may as well say good-by to her manicure till the end of summer. Because all the gardening gloves and lotions can't entirely protect fingers that dig and weed!

But she'll feel her flowers are worth the sacrifice of romantic hands, and so will family and guests if that garden is really used and enjoyed . . . it's all right to oh over the roses and ah over the perennial borders, but living with them is much more fun.

An outdoor living room is the real reason for a garden, according to our way of thinking. A friend of ours has one that we hope to copy, with variations, to conform to our own particular garden and yard.

Greta's garden has a flagstoned terrace deep in the end of her garden. An outdoor fireplace has been built at one end, while at the other end there's an antique dipping well. (This had to be explained to us. It seems that in old English gardens covering acres and acres the watering problem was quite serious in the days before piped water and rubber hose, so at strategic places in the garden were placed huge dipping wells which were kept filled either by natural rainfall or by hauling tanks of water to them.) While this old dipping well added a lot of interest to this garden, a small fountain, which wouldn't be expensive or difficult to arrange, will be a substitute in our garden "room."

The plantings around the flagstoned terrace were luxuriantly leafy, green shrubs, not so many flowers here as on the path leading here from the house. Then the furniture was white metal, the very comfortable springy kind that moves with your body as you sit in it. Besides chairs, there was a large table with a green and white umbrella and several small glass top tables. (Because our house is stone, we think maybe natural wood or rattan garden furniture would suit our needs best, though, much as we like the white.)

But we hope we achieve the same charm that Greta has in her outdoor living room. Here is a cool sanctuary on a summer day, and a popular gathering place for family and friends all summer.

Black, Navy Silk Coats Good for Street Wear

Every one is interested in the return of silk coats for street wear. It's one angle of the swish and rustle mode to which we're attuning our ears. Poplin, taffeta and bengaline are the favored fabrics and black or navy is the usual color choice.

One of the niftiest coats belongs to Jean Davis, movie actress. Since comediennes always have a trick up their sleeves, Joan's is a two-way number. Of black bengaline, it can button up like a double-breasted model or the edges can be turned back tuxedo style in flat revers. These revers have a vinelike embroidery in black and are held down by a wide bengaline belt.

Mrs. Maud Booth Guest Of D. C. Women's Clubs

Leader of Volunteers of America Speaks at Federation Session at the Roosevelt; Describes Work of Organization.

Mrs. Maud Booth, leader of the Volunteers of America, was the guest of honor and speaker at the morning session of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs at the Roosevelt Hotel yesterday morning.

Mrs. Booth told of the work of her organization, especially her work in prisons. She declared that she was the only woman in this country who is allowed the privilege of going where she pleases in prisons.

Mrs. Booth called on the women of the federation to join in the fight against crime. She described the radio broadcasts of gangsters and crimes. She also told of a proposal of her organization for opening of a home for "white-collar" girl workers in Washington. Dr. Edith Coale introduced Mrs. Booth. Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, president of the federation, was in charge.

Mrs. Ellis Logan, past president of the federation, greeted members. Mrs. Biddle reported the serious illness of Mrs. Virginia White Speel, also a past president of the federation.

Mrs. Biddle called attention to the fact that Susan B. Anthony, pioneer suffragist, is not included in plans for the Rushmore Memorial, although men of her day are to be thus honored. Mrs. Biddle described Susan B. Anthony as the first great woman of America. She also spoke in favor of a woman's building at the New York World's Fair.

A tribute was paid to Excelsior Literary Club, the oldest woman's club in the District of Columbia, which is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary this week.

Mrs. Tilman Parks, president of the Political Study Club, reported that Mrs. Roosevelt has become an honorary member of the club and will be the guest speaker at the luncheon May 19.

Reports were heard from the presidents of the 32 clubs in the District, showing their widespread activity along civic, educational, fine arts, welfare and philanthropic lines.

The University of Michigan Alumnae Association will hold its meeting, May 22, at the home of Mrs. S. H. Weld, 6613 North Washington boulevard, East Falls Church, Va. The meeting will be preceded by a picnic supper. The assistant hostesses will be Mrs. Durward Fisher, Mrs. P. E. Siggers, Mrs. Stowell Smith, Mrs. R. I. Tinkham and Mrs. W. C. Mendenhall.

Alpha Chapter, World Caravan Guild, will hold its next meeting Tuesday, at 8 p. m., at the Raleigh Hotel.

Dr. A. J. Diamond, delegate from Alaska, will give an illustrated lecture on that territory.

At the luncheon of the Zonta Club at the Y. W. C. A., Wednesday, Miss Elinor Gregg, director of nursing, United States Indian Office, gave an interesting address on the history of nursing among the Indians under Government supervision. Miss Gregg was introduced by Dr. Warren of the Washington Club.

The Zonta Club of Miami will receive its charter tomorrow, to be presented by May Moyers McElroy, of Washington, Zonta Club.

The speakers for next week will be Vesta Eales and Beth Altemus, who will give the story of their establishment of an enterprise for the collection of children's books for distribution and exchange.

The Women's Glee Club of West Virginia University will present a concert Monday night, sponsored by the West Virginia Society of Washington and the Washington West Virginia University Alumni Association in the Central High School Auditorium.

The West Virginia Glee Club is composed of 100 voices. The trip to Washington was arranged by members of the West Virginia delegation in Congress. Representative Jennings Randolph is chairman of the committee on arrangements and is being assisted by Col. J. DeGrange and D. S. Davidson.

The Susan Riviers Estzel Chapter, D. A. R., will be entertained at luncheon today at 1 p. m., by Mrs. Edward J. Smith at her home Melwood, near Upper Marlboro, Md. Mrs. William Hill Brooke will be the assisting hostess. Following the luncheon, a business meeting of the chapter will be held, with election of officers. Letters from a mountain girl at Crossnore School, N. C., for whom the chapter gave a scholarship, will be read.

Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, will hold its regular meeting tonight at Moose Hall, 1414 I street northwest. A Mother's Day program has been arranged by Past Regent Mrs. Margaret Deegan, Moosehaven chairman. The program will pay homage to the mothers at Moosehaven, the national home maintained by the Moose fraternity in Florida for its aged members, as well as to the mothers in the local chapter.

The newly organized Instructive Visiting Nurse Association of Arlington, Va., will have a meeting of its board of directors Monday night at 8 o'clock in the headquarters which have just been opened at 1729 North Rhodes street, in Colonial Village.

Mrs. William N. Doak is chairman of the group; Mrs. Jonathan M. Wainwright, of Fort Myer, first vice chairman; Mrs. Henry P. Ames, second vice chairman; Mrs. L. N. Williams, secretary; Mrs. C. L. Ellis, treasurer, and Mrs. Viola Japhet, executive secretary.

Other members of the board include, Mrs. H. L. Brumback, Mrs. T. E. Gilbert, Mrs. H. B. Torrens, Mrs. Cora E. Miles and Mrs. J. N. Roberts.

New Reich Envoy Reaches New York

New York, May 13 (AP).—Dr. Hans Dieckhoff, new German Ambassador to the United States, arrived here tonight aboard the Europa, to predict that "we will go on with dirigibles."

Discussing the Hindenburg disaster, Dr. Djeckhoff said "the German people were deeply touched, not only by the bravery and gallantry of your men, but also by the sympathy of your people and your government."

The new Ambassador, who succeeds Dr. Hans Luther, said returning to Washington was like "coming home again." He served as Counsellor of the German Embassy there from 1922 to 1927. More recently he was acting secretary of state at the Foreign Office in Berlin.

Mrs. Dieckhoff accompanied her husband on the Europa.

Woman's Club Plans Luncheon

Mills College Group Fetes Dr. Reinhardt

President Heads for West Coast Following Celebration.

Graduates of Mills College held a double celebration yesterday—a large tea at the Mayflower for their president, Dr. Aurelia Henry Reinhardt, and in honor of the eighty-fifth anniversary of the college. Dr. Reinhardt returned to California last evening after a brief visit to the East, which included attendance at the tercentennary celebration of Mount Holyoke College, and Mills College dinners in New York and Philadelphia.

Although the college is thousands of miles away, it has close connections in Washington. Several distinguished residents are alumnae. Among them is Mrs. William Borah, wife of Senator Borah, who was at the tea, wearing a smart costume in the new beige and black combination. Another graduate, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, who is now in California, was represented by her daughter, Mrs. Jennings Hackett. Mrs. Hiram Johnson, wife of the California Senator, and Mrs. Vachel Lindsay, whose late husband, the famous poet, lectured at Mills, and who formerly taught there herself, were present.

Oregon also was represented. Mrs. Edward W. Clark, chairman of the national celebration of the eighty-fifth anniversary of Mills, came from her home in Philadelphia for the party. She is a Portland, Oreg., native. Others from Oregon present were Mrs. Charles McNary, wife of Senator McNary, who wore a brown wool suit with a polka-dotted blouse of the same color, and a matching straw hat, and Mrs. Frederick Steiwer, wife of Senator Steiwer.

Representative Nan Wood Honeyman, a close friend of Mrs. Clark, stood with her and President Reinhardt in the receiving line. Mrs. Honeyman's daughter, Judith, was one of the group of young ladies wearing costumes representing the dates marking the founding of America's nine great colleges for women: Mount Holyoke, Mills, Vassar, Smith, Wellesley, Radcliffe, Bryn Mawr, Goucher and Barnard.

Miss Elizabeth Sibley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Sibley, represented Bryn Mawr, wearing a beautiful gown of white brocade, which originally belonged to the grandmother of Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes. Mrs. Clark donated several of the gowns, one a dress in which her grandmother was married. Mrs. Clark was named for Hazel Mills, founder of the college, who was a friend of her mother.

Mrs. Stone to Pour At Mr. Comins' Tea

Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of Mr. Justice Stone, heads the list of those who will pour at the tea to be given tomorrow by Mr. Eben F. Comins, the well known painter. Mr. Comins will exhibit his recent portraits of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States Minister to Norway; of Mr. Justice Brandeis and Mrs. Sydney A. Cloman.

Others who will pour are Mrs. Mahlon Pitney, Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Mrs. George P. Scriven, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Cloman and Mrs. Daniel W. Knowlton.

Pilgrimage to Visit Dumbarton Oaks

Georgetown's second garden pilgrimage this season is to take place May 22, when Dumbarton Oaks, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, will be included on the itinerary. Other gardens that also will be open are those of Mrs. Henry Leonard, 3034 N street; Mr. Bernard Lane, 5327 Conduit road; Mrs. Anne Archbold, 3904 Reservoir road; Miss Belle Sherwin, 1671 Thirty-first street; Mrs. Thomas Bradley, 1601 Twenty-eighth street; Mrs. James Hawfield, 3108 Q street; Miss Bertha Looker and Miss Florence Hedges, 1213 Thirtieth street.

President and First Lady Return to Capital Today

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt and Daughter to Visit White House; Invitations Are Issued for Newspaper Party.

Both the President and Mrs. Roosevelt are returning to the White House today, he from a trip in Southern waters, and the First Lady from New York.

The President will be accompanied by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, and their daughter, Chandler, whom he recently visited at their home in Fort Worth, Tex.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt have issued invitations to their annual informal party for the fourth estate to be given May 28 at 9 o'clock.

Wives of Senators of the Southern cotton manufacturing States entertained wives of delegates to the current convention of the American Cotton Manufacturing Association yesterday afternoon at a tea in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower.

The Senate hostesses included Mrs. Ellison D. Smith, Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Mrs. Pat Harrison, Mrs. Walter F. George, Mrs. John H. Bankhead, Mrs. Hugo L. Black, Mrs. Josiah M. Bailey and Mrs. James F. Byrnes. Others were Mrs. Robert L. Doughton, wife of Representative Doughton, of North Carolina, and Mrs. O. Max Gardner, wife of former Gov. Gardner of North Carolina.

In the receiving line with Mrs. William B. Bankhead were Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Miss Frances Perkins, Mrs. Donald Comer, of Birmingham, Ala., wife of the president of the manufacturers' association, and wives of other officers of the group including Mrs. R. E. Henry, of Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. J. H. Cheatham, of Griffin, Ga., and Mrs. W. M. McLaurine, of Charlotte, N. C.; also Mrs. William J. Vereen, of Moultrie, Ga.; Mrs. Cason J. Callaway, of LaGrange, Ga.; Mrs. George S. Harris, of Atlanta, and Mrs. William D. Anderson, of Macon, Ga., whose husbands are former presidents of the association.

The new German Ambassador, Herr Hans Dieckhoff, and Frau Dieckhoff are expected in Washington today, accompanied by members of the embassy staff, the counselor, Herr Hans Thomsen, and the third secretary, Herr Herbert Blankenhorn, who met them in New York yesterday.

In a short time the Ambassador and Herr Dieckhoff will go to View Tree Farm, near Upperville, Va., which they have leased from Mr. Oscar T. Crosby for the summer.

Herr Hans Luther, the retiring Ambassador, with his daughters and Frau Koerner, will leave the end of this week for Canada and the Western States. He will sail from San Francisco for Germany later in the summer.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., entertained at dinner last evening in their home on R street.

The Ambassador of China, Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, left Washington yesterday for New York where he will remain until early next week before returning to the embassy.

Celebrating the 126th anniversary of the freedom of Paraguay, the Minister of Paraguay, Senor Dr. Don Alfredo Busk Codas, and Senora Codas will entertain at a reception tonight at the Carlton Hotel. Two hundred and fifty members of the Diplomatic Corps and high Government officials have been invited.

Mrs. Ola Powell Malcolm has returned from New York where she attended the twentieth anniversary party given by Miss Anne Morgan at her home, 3 Sutton place, celebrating the starting of the American Committee for Devastated France, which worked in co-operation with the French Minister of Agriculture in restoring France after the war. Miss Morgan was president of the American committee and Mrs. Malcolm headed the Franco-American food preservation unit.

Mrs. Malcolm was accompanied on the trip by her mother and sister, Mrs. Robert F. Powell and Mrs. Ivy Norton.

Maj. and Mrs. George Oakley Totten gave an informal supper at their home, 2633 Sixteenth street, Wednesday evening. Guests were Senator Charles O. Andrews, Col. and Mrs. Frank Elvridge Webb, Col. Wade Cooper, Mrs. Abbie Riker, of New York; Dr. and Mrs. Dello Gianturco, Miss Claire Lynch, Mrs. James Totten and her son, Ralph Totten, American Minister to South Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss are at the Ambassador Hotel while in New York, and Mrs. Edward Hamlin Everett is staying at the Biltmore.

Lee Shrine Benefit Set Wednesday

Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Garner Head List of Patronesses.

With Mrs. Wilson Lee, of Silver Spring, Md., as chairman of the committee on arrangements, plans are nearly completed for the open house at Montpelier Manor, historic home of former Ambassador and Mrs. Breckinridge Long, on Wednesday for the benefit of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation.

In case of rain the affair will be held Thursday. The funds raised will be used for the maintenance of Stratford, birthplace of Gen. Lee, and two signers of the Declaration of Independence, Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee.

That Montpelier Manor, built about 1760, has been the visiting place of the great, is shown by the names of those who have shared its hospitality through the years. George Washington, in his diary, tells of many pleasant hours spent there long before the Revolution. Even had he been less meticulous in reporting his daily life, we would know of another and stranger connection between this ancestral home of the Snowdens, and Mount Vernon.

List of Patronesses.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Garner head the list of patronesses for the opening. Among the sponsors are Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Mrs. Carter Glass, Mrs. Frederick Steiwer, Mrs. Warren Austin, Mrs. Millard E. Tydings, Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Mrs. Harry F. Byrd, Mrs. George Peery, wife of the Governor of Virginia; Mrs. Harry W. Nice, wife of the Governor of Maryland, and Mrs. Stanley Reed.

Some of the other patronesses are Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor, Mrs. Philip O. Coffin, Mrs. Rozier Dulany, sr., Mrs. William McKee Dunn, Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis, Mrs. David Edward Finley, Mrs. Sherman Flint, Mrs. Stephen Gambrill, Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, jr., Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Mrs. Walter Guy, Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton, Mrs. Reginald Huidekoper, Mrs. Oscar Jancki, Mrs. McCook Knox, Mrs. Emery Scott Land, Mrs. Henry Leonard, Mrs. Louis Little, Mrs. Newbold Noyes, Mrs. Chauncey G. Parker, jr., Miss Agnes Peter, Mrs. Camp Stanley, Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, Mrs. Thomas Bell Sweeney, Mrs. Corcoran Thom, Mrs. Richard B. Wigglesworth, Mrs. Henry Williams and Mrs. Theodore S. Wilkinson.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn

If you have ever tried to catch Martha Cammack in the mornings you know how foolish the attempt is. Martha, who wears a long bob with bewitching bangs, dotes on tennis and that is how she spends her early hours. With whom does she play?—Well, with five young, very active sons she never lacks a companion on the courts.

Already looking ahead to the summer months when Washington will be deserted by all who can possibly struggle away from here, Martha is taking herself off to Atlantic City the first of next week to look the situation over in regard to a house for the warmer months.

The Carl Schiffelers have two of the most precocious youngsters, Carl, jr., who is 10 and Melody, his 12-year-old sister. Little Miss Schiffeler is most appropriately named, too. Ever since she was a toddling tot just becoming conscious of what went on about her, she has been interested in music—simply adores it. Now, she not only sits on the side lines, a most appreciative listener, but can add her bit to any musical program, being a gifted young musician.

Whenever the newspapers are late in arriving, be it morning or evening, these youngsters virtually champ at the bit. No, they don't hurriedly turn to the funny pages—on the contrary they peruse the entire paper from the first page to the last and can discuss what they have read with grownups.

Yesterday Mrs. S. was hostess at a delightful luncheon for "us newspaper scribes." The long table with its handsome beige lace cloth was centered with a low green bowl of yellow and rose tulips, wild honeysuckle and ferns. Col. S., whose hobby is his Pall Mall room at the Raleigh Hotel, was still chuckling over a recent session with a supposedly canny florist. It seems that the colonel showed the florist a bunch of artificial forsythia arranged in an effective container. Said the colonel—"How long do you think this will last before the blossoms drop?"

Said the horticulturist, "Oh, that particular cluster will be good for three or four days."

About this time "Mr Florist" became a bit leary of the questioning and then, taking a closer look at the flora, discovered how he had been fooled. Isn't that a feather in the manufacturer's cap?

Senator Arthur Capper is—figuratively speaking—pacing the floor with his hands in his pockets—all because raspberries have not come in yet. You see, for some time now, he has made a habit of having a certain menu for breakfast. In the winter it is oranges, two poached eggs and his favorite paper (how we are restraining ourselves and being modest over the latter) and in the summer he substitutes the berries for the fruit golden. The days are getting warmer now, and he thinks it is high time for his change in diet.

Talk about the luck of the Navy—here Majel Martin and Lorena Thompson (sisters in the Navy)—had finally been stationed here together and now the Martins (he is Lieut. Robert Martin, if you must be formal and official) are about to shove off for the West Coast. In spite of all of the packing that is going on, to look at their attractive apartment at the Westchester one finds it hard to believe, with nary a bit of furniture or even a piece of paper out of place.

Frances W. Poor Will Wed Today

Bridegroom-to-Be Is Barry Brown, in Publishing Business Here.

Of interest to Washington will be the wedding today in Flushing, Long Island, of Miss Frances Wharton Poor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wharton Poor of that place, to Mr. Barry Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sevellon Brown of Providence, R. I. The bridegroom, a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Barry, of Washington, is engaged in the publishing business here, and his brother, Mr. Sevellon Brown, who will serve as best man, recently came here to live after studying in Europe on a Pulitzer scholarship from the Columbia School of Journalism.

Today's ceremony will take place at St. George's Church, the Rev. Hubert Wood officiating. The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will wear a gown of cream colored lace over white satin, and will carry gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Her sister, Miss Frederica Poor, will serve as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be the Misses Ruth Bower, Margaret Veeder, Elizabeth Bonney Brown, sister of the bridegroom, Ella Maris Poor, and Mary Blakiston Beers. They will wear white organdy frocks with bouquets and wreaths of mixed spring flowers.

The ushers will be Mr. Harold Graves, Mr. Lawrence Bran, Mr. Carl Dixon, Mr. Richard Hart, Mr. Ashbel T. Wall 3d., and Mr. Richard H. Eggleston, jr.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents will follow the ceremony. Mrs. Charles Bradley, of Washington, aunt of the bridegroom will be among the guests from the Capital at the wedding.

After a trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside in Washington. The bride was graduated from Smith College in 1936 and Mr. Brown was graduated from Princeton the same year.

Design by Pope For Memorial Likened to Egg

Hudnut, Harvard School's Dean, Assails D. C.'s Classic Style.

A dean of a graduate school at Harvard University last night likened the John Russell Pope design of a memorial to Thomas Jefferson to "an egg on a pantry shelf" in the middle of a "geometric Sahara."

"And I don't think this particular Pantheon ever will be built," Dean Joseph Hudnut of Harvard's Graduate School of Design told the American Federation of Arts.

Addressing the banquet which closed the federation's twenty-eighth annual meeting at the Wardman Park Hotel, the speaker did not reserve his barbs solely for the memorial design, but flailed away at classical architecture in general.

Without calling it by name, he criticized the Fine Arts Commission for its fostering of Washington's new Greco-Roman buildings, notably in the downtown triangle, and charged that the American Capital is inferior to other world capitals from an architectural standpoint.

Calls Style "Static."

Washington, he said, is "losing the most precious thing you could have" because its public buildings are an imitation of the ancients instead of being a reflection of contemporary deeds and thoughts. The architecture of the Greeks and Romans, he said, was admirable for their period but——

"How can our present-day life be expressed in an art that is static, that belongs to the academies?"

The Harvard dean, formerly a member of the faculty of the University of Virginia, founded by Thomas Jefferson, admitted to no passionate devotion to the memory of the third President.

"Rather," he asserted, "my interest is in our young architects who could design a memorial with genuine and eloquent expressiveness."

Hudnut said there are three fallacies about classical architecture and then proceeded to dissect them. They are (1) the idea that it is identified with the American tradition, (2) that no other type should be adopted for public buildings, especially those in Washington and (3) that it has certain mystic qualities that make it good for its own sake.

Fallacy No. 1 is chiefly the product of propaganda, the speaker said, pointing out that Bulfinch and Latrobe, among the earliest architects of the Capitol, never accepted the neo-classical tradition entirely.

U. Va. Charm "Colonial."

The buildings of the University of Virginia owe their charm to the Colonial imprint rather than to the classical element, he said. And their architects, Thomas Jefferson, "who hated sham and sought the truth, does not deserve to be the recipient of a make-believe memorial."

The idea that only classical architecture is proper for public building dates from the first part of the present century, Hudnut said, and probably owes its birth to the Chicago World's Fair of 1893. If this conception holds sway, architecture as a plastic art will disappear, he warned.

As for the idea that classical design is precious for its own sake, Hudnut said none of the Capital's new buildings — Supreme Court, those in the downtown triangle and the Federal Reserve—possesses life, and all are cold, even though their designers were the best in the profession.

Greeks Had "Personality."

The work of the Romans and the Greeks had personality, reflecting the civilization in which they were built, while the twentieth century product now on exhibition here is wholly out of tune with contemporary life, the speaker said.

More mellow in his criticisms, but no less specific, was the other banquet speaker, Frank Crowninshield, prominent author, editor, critic and art collector. His targets ranged from the bad taste of Americans and the lifelessness of art museums to the "copy cat" methods of portrait painters and political regimentation.

A temple memorial to Jefferson would be absurd because such a form is out of sympathy with the age, he said. The man who edited the late magazine, Vanity Fair, deplored the fact that America has yet to produce a great woman artist, chided the Metropolitan Museum of Art for prudery and charged the Federal Government with paying too much attention to balanced budgets and foreign affairs and not enough to painting, music, architecture and dancing.

HouseMembers Oppose Change In ABC Ruling

Liquor License Sale, Transfer, Upheld by Committee.

A House sub-committee gave little encouragement yesterday to the proposal of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board that the sale or transfer of liquor licenses be prohibited.

Holding the first of a series of hearings on several bills relating to liquor control, Representative Palmisano (Democrat), of Maryland, and his colleagues on the sub-committee indicated they would not approve the bill.

Favoritism Charged.

Palmisano, who recently criticized the A. B. C. Board for penalizing retail licensees for failure to pay bills promptly to wholesalers, yesterday charged the board with showing favoritism because of "Congressional influence."

He cited an instance in which a license had been granted improperly, through a mistake, to one property owner within 400 feet of a church, but denied an adjacent property holder. The board permitted the license to remain in effect, Palmisano said, but required the licensee to move the location of his establishment.

Racketeering Scored.

Mrs. Agnes K. Mason, acting chairman of the A. B. C Board, told the sub-committee that a "racket" had developed in the sale of retail liquor licenses.

Mrs. Mason, Isaac C. Gans, another member of the board, and Corporatoin Counsel Elwood Seal all opposed Palmisano's bill to permit appeals to the United States district court from rulings of the A. B. C. Board. Appeals now are limited to the District Commissioners.

Mt. Vernon Ladies Hold 71st Session

The seventy-first annual session of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association opened at Mount Vernon yesterday. A routine business meeting was held after arrival of 27 vice regents.

Following the procedure inaugurated at the first council meeting, the members placed wreaths on the sarcophagi of Gen. and Mrs. George Washington.

Sunday will be "Regents' Sunday," when members will receive communion in Pohick Church. Wednesday has been announced as "Governor's Day," and at that time the Governor of Virginia and the board of visitors will make their inspection.

Pete DeAnna Wins Art Prize At Convention of Boys' Clubs

Pete DeAnna, 16-year-old member of the Boys' Club of Washington, was awarded first prize in the art exhibit at the convention of Boys' Clubs of America, Inc., which was held this week in New York. His winning picture is "China Boy," an oil.

Young DeAnna received his primary art training at the Boys' Club of Washington. He also took art at Central High School, which he attends, and last year won a scholarship at the Corcoran Art Gallery, where he is studying.

In addition to continuing his studies with the class at the Boys' Club, DeAnna also acts as part-time instructor for younger boys. He designed the cover for the convention number of the International Optimist Magazine last year, and has had his drawings published in several local magazines and papers.

News of DeAnna's victory was telephoned yesterday by Charles M. Fyfe, managing director of the Boys' Club who, with Charles Reynolds, athletic director, and Clarence Richardson, director of the Georgetown branch, attended the convention.

Bishop to Break Ground for Gym

Bishop James E. Freeman will break the ground on June 5 at commencement exercises of St. Albans School for the school's new recreation building, it was announced yesterday.

For many years, Canon Lucas, headmaster at St. Albans, has striven for such a building; now that two donations totaling $70,000 have been received along with other contributions, the construction work will shortly begin.

The recreation building has been designed by Wauldron Faulkner, architect for the Cathedral building committee, and famous school architect.

It will be a three-story building. Among principal rooms will be a large basketball floor, an elaborately fitted out manual training shop, up-to-date fencing, boxing and wrestling rooms, an immense playing "arena" surrounded by bleachers, and a trophy room. There will be a received, along with other contributor for the athletic director, and a large office for the school's publications.

Deals Legitimate, Says Du Pont Aide

New York, May 13 (AP).—Ralph T. Ellis, an office assistant in Wilmington who handled Pierre S. duPont's end of the cross-sales of stock with John J. Raskob, following the 1929 Wall Street panic, testified today he knew of no agreement between the two industrialists for repurchasing the same blocks of securities.

The Government, contending the sales back and forth were fictitiously made and accompanied by a repurchasing understanding, charges duPont and Rascob with unwarranted deductions on their 1929 returns and seeks to collect $617,316 and $1,026,340, respectively.

National U. Alumni To Hear Dr. Byrd

Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the National University Alumni Association in the Mayflower Hotel tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

The dinner was canceled last year because of the death of Dr. Hayden Johnson, chancellor of the university.

Mrs. Judy Piehl, 27 Kills Self With Gas

Mrs. Judy Crounse Piehl, 27, of the West Clifton Terrace Apartments, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling gas in her rooms. Her body was discovered huddled over a gas stove by her maid, Rebecca Davis, when she came to go to work. Mrs. Piehl left no notes.

HUBBELL'S 21st VICTORY BREAKS MARQUARD'S RECORD

First Baseman's Feat Ties League Record

Nationals Break Three-Game Losing Streak and Hex That Thornton Lee Held Over Them; DeShong Allows Chicago Eight Hits.

By Shirley Povich,
A Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, Ill., May 13.—Lee surrendered to the Washington forces today—in the seventh inning—and the Nats broke their three-game losing streak with a terrific 14-hit bombardment against the White Sox.

They also broke the hex this fellow Lee—Thornton Lee, tall, stringbean left-hander—had held over 'em last year, when he beat the Nats four times without a defeat, the only four games he had been able to win in the league. He couldn't beat anybody else, but he could beat the Nats. In fact, he owed his job to the Nats.

They also broke the Sox jinx over Jimmy DeShong, Washington's leading pitcher, who could win only one game in five starts against Chicago last season. But DeShong was out there working manfully himself to pitch the Nats to a 10-to-2 victory.

Kuhel's Slugging.

At that, DeShong didn't exactly pitch the Nats to victory this cold, rainy afternoon. A fellow named Joe Kuhel was out there slugging in the runs all day with a batting exhibition that tied an American League record only two other gents in league history had been able to equal.

Kuhel had a fair day at bat. He started off moderately with a single and then roused himself from that comparative slump by hitting a three-bagger. Then he hit another three-bagger and then he hit another three-bagger. His three consecutive triples, all against the left centerfield fence, tied the league record, which was first established by Earl Combs, of the Yankees, in '24, and later equaled by Charley Gehringer, of the Tigers, in '29.

Kuhel, at that, may own some kind of a record all by himself. It is not record that Combs and Gehringer hit their three triples in consecutive times at bat, as Kuhel did.

DeShong pitched an eight-hit game for himself and one of the two runs he allowed was really not allowed by DeShong, eventuating as it did from a passed ball which eluded Johnny Riddle's mitt.

Lee was quite a puzzle to the Nats—for one inning. Then they began to cuff him about in a very businesslike manner. They picked up a run in the second inning when Johnny Stone sliced a two-bagger into leftfield by way of getting a hit for himself. Then Buddy Myer very coyly dropped a bunt down the third base line and beat the surprised Tony Piet's throw to first, moving Stone to third. Ossie Bluege invited Stone home with a long fly to rightfield, and Stone came home.

Luke Appling, the league's leading hitter last year and the league's worst fielder today, inspired another run for the Nats in the second inning when he permitted Jesse Hill's tame grounder to outwit him and skip into leftfield. The run scored very simply—on Buddy Lewis' well-spanked single into right and Joe Kuhel's equally well-hit single to left.

That 2-0 lead of the Nats leaped into 5-0 figures in the sixth when the hapless Lee had a very rough time getting the Nats out. He had an especially rough time with Joe Kuhel and Al Simmons. Kuhel blasted an awful sock against the right center scoreboard for three bases and Simmons banged a two-bagger against the leftfield scoreboard to bring him home.

But that wasn't all. Buddy Myer poked a single through shortstop and Simmons came romping home. When Steinbacher's return throw to the infield was mishandled, Myer galloped to second where he was in a position to score if the erratic Appling let another ball go through

Snead Is Leader In Metro Tourney

Bloomfield, N. J., May 13 (U.P.).—Sam Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Jimmy Hines, of New York, shot 2 under par 68s today to lead the field in the first round of the Metropolitan Open Golf Championship over the Forest Hills Field Club here.

Hines just missed shooting a 67 when his putt on the eighteenth hung on the lip of the cup. He shot 34 out and in. Snead played the first nine in 33, having a birdie on the first and an eagle 3 on the fourth. He was one over on the sixth. He came back in par 35, 1 under on the fourteenth, and 1 over on the eighteenth. Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., was third with a par 70.

Georgetown Nine Wins Over N. Y. U. by 9 to 1

Unbeaten Hoyas Earn Tenth Straight Victory Behind Barrage of Extra-Base Hits; Petrosky Surrenders 13 Hits, But Gets Great Support.

By the Associated Press.

New York, N. Y., May 13.—Georgetown University's baseball team defeated an old rival today walloping New York University 9-1, behind a barrage of extra-base hits.

The victory was the tenth straight for the unbeaten Hoyas, who will meet Fordham at Fordham Field in their second Gotham engagement tomorrow.

Mike Petroskey, the Georgetown pitcher, was clubbed hard by the Violets, who banged out 13 hits, but received brilliant support from his mates.

The Hoyas belted two New York hurlers for 14 hits, including three doubles and two triples. Petroskey and Harry Bassin got three hits apiece, with Petroskey including a double and Bassin a three-bagger among the assortment. Every one in the Georgetown line-up excepting Bodine and Canavanne hit safely.

Harry Bassin tripled and stole home in the first inning to account for two Georgetown runs. Four blows brought four runs in the third and another hit by Bassin helped send home a tally in the fourth. A triple by Tony Barabas was the payoff blow that brought two more runs in the sixth.

American U. Grid To Be Used by Pros

After trying unsuccessfully to obtain a suburban location the Washington Redskins pro football team will use American University's gridiron for preseason training, The Post learned last night. Georgetown Prep was approached for the use of its facilities, but school authorities rejected the offer because of early classes.

The arrangements made with the university athletic officials are ideal, for the Eagles will do most of their preseason training at Coach Gus Welch's camp for boys in the Virginia Blue Ridge Mountains. The squad will not return to Washington until the latter part of September.

The Redskins will begin work the middle of August, continuing through the first two weeks of September.

5-2 Win Over Bucs Tops 25-Year Mark

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 13.—King Carl Hubbell, defying a dark jinx day and the power of Pirate bats, stretched his National League Victory string to 21 today by whipping Pittsburgh 5-2 with a six-hit pitching performance.

The victory, netted by a fifth-inning uprising on the veteran Waite Hoyt, who retired after 3 runs had crossed the plate, broke the latest Pirate streak that had run to five straight victories. It was the fourth defeat for the Pirates this season.

Hubbell did more than make the Pirates walk the plank as he collared them with perfect control of his screwball. In the second inning, he doubled off Lefty Brandt, who started on the mound, and in the noisy fifth, he singled to drive home the final run.

Off the combined pitching of Brandt, Hoyt, Bauers and Brown, the Giants belted 13 hits whereas Arky Vaughan led what there was of the Pirate attack with two successive homers into the rightfield seats in the second and fourth innings.

Homer for Bartell.

Dick Bartell shoved Hub into a lead in the first inning by hitting Brandt's second pitch for his eighth homer of the year into the leftfield stands. Hubbell's double and Bartell's single netted the second run in the second inning. In the fifth, the Giants batted around, with Gus Mancuso driving in two scores and Hubbell the third.

The defeat, fourth of the season, as against 14 victories for Pittsburgh, sent the Pirates home in defeat to meet the St. Louis Cardinals tomorrow. It gave the Giants a season's record of 11 won and 9 lost. For Hubbell it was his fifth victory of the season without defeat.

All available big league records show that Hubbell's string of 21 straight wins, begun last July 17 against the same club, has never been accomplished before. The best previously listed was 20 straight, compiled by Rube Marquard, another Giant great, with 1 victory in 1911 and 19 straight in 1912.

BREATHLESS MOMENT—

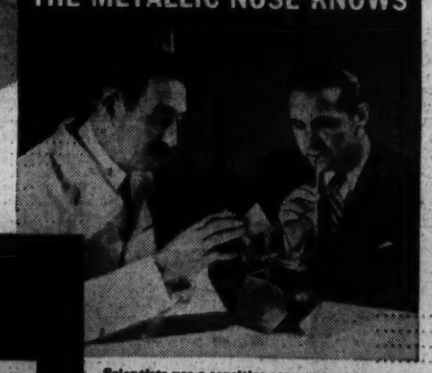
THE METALLIC NOSE KNOWS



Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

Smokers' test shows that White Owls are at least 25% easier on your breath

New scientific discoveries have shown that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is exceptionally low in the substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—only organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for White Owls.

This Morning

WITH SHIRLEY POVICH

The Nats turned homeward tonight after a sour jaunt through the West where they were cuffed about pretty severely and emerged with only 5 victories in 11 starts, but for a pair of roommates on the team it was an eminently successful tour.

POVICH.

Jimmy DeShong, who couldn't win a game in two starts in the East; who couldn't last over three innings, in fact, saw his fortunes turn with surprising suddenness when the Nats hit the road. Three of those five games the Nats were able to win in the West were the handiwork of DeShong, the early season flop.

* * * *

James' luck began to do an about-face in Philadelphia when he was pounded from the box in three innings and retired to the shower room with another defeat apparently recorded against him. But Washington tied the score in the eighth and came up with five runs in the ninth to win the ball game and relieve DeShong of the stigma of another defeat.

* * * *

Then Jimmy, as if in gratitude for that reprieve, began to pitch some swell baseball. He shut out Cleveland in a six-inning relief job, allowing only three hits, and won that one. He went down to St. Louis and pitched himself a one-hit game to win that one, and today, against the one club he couldn't beat last year, the White Sox, he recorded an eight-hit victory.

* * * *

They were a pair of depressed roommates, DeShong and Jesse Hill, when the Nats shoved off on their road trip a couple of weeks ago. DeShong had had his fling and couldn't win a game, but Hill had never been able to break into the Nat's lineup, except in the negative role of a pinch runner. They had the blues.

* * * *

Up there in Philadelphia when Manager Harris decided to bench Al Simmons, Hill had no reason to feel pleased with himself. Because Harris gave Hill the go by and chose Freddie Sington to relieve Simmons, leaving the fleet Hill to languish on the bench.

* * * *

And a few days later when Sington lost his place in the lineup, there were no cheers from Hill's sector of the bench, because he got the go by again and Simmons was reinstated in the left field post. The guy felt pretty low.

* * * *

But down in St. Louis, Hill finally got his chance. Without warning Ben Chapman came up with a sore arm and there was a vacancy in the outfield. This time Harris let his gaze wander past Sington and motioned Hill to get in there and play.

* * * *

Jessie didn't waste much time making good. He whammed the first pitch Van Atta threw up there for a clean single to left and later contributed a knobby sacrifice bunt that figured in another run. He was in there the next day at Chicago, walloped a double against the centerfield fence and beat out an infield hit with the abundance of speed that he carries and so he was doing pretty well.

* * * *

Today, they had an awful time getting him out. His speed made Shortstop Luke Appling hurry a throw, and Appling missed the ball. He sent Mike Kreevich back to the centerfield fence for a terrific line-drive and then he upped and hit a line-drive home run into the seats in leftfield. He topped off his exhibition with a clean single to center.

* * * *

Thus De Shong and Hill have found traveling quite broadening—to their averages. DeShong, who had a record of one defeat and no victories now boasts three wins and one defeat and Hill is sporting a .385 batting average for the Western trip.

* * * *

Conversely the Nats' road trip was a distressing experience for Pete Appleton who was the victim in three of the Nats six defeats. Appleton failed to win either of his starts and lost one game—at St. Louis—in a relief role. Buck Newsom won one and lost one in the West. Weaver was charged with one defeat and Linke was a winner on one occasion as a relief pitcher.

* * * *

The Nats pitching, summed up, was not of the type to delight Manager Harris or cause any relaxation in his search for more hurling talent, but the Nats' batting averages weren't so impressive, either. The team hit only .270 for its 11 games on the road.

* * * *

	At Bat	Hits	Ave.

Pompoon's Race Plans Are Revised

Trainer Instructs Rider To Get Horse Out in Front at Start.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, Md., May 12.—The Pompoon that marches postward here Saturday to oppose War Admiral and the others in the forty-seventh running of the Preakness will have the same four legs, the same four hoofs and the same large heart. Naturally his objective will be the same as in the Kentucky Derby—to lead the field to the wire.

However, at a meeting of his handlers following the Derby, it was decided to make a different sort of Pompoon out of the son of Pompey. When Jockey Harry Richards had cooled off from his disappointment at not catching War Admiral at Louisville last Saturday, Owner Jerome H. Louchheim and Trainer C. F. Clark heard what the rider had to say and then determined to change tactics.

Richards told them that Pompoon did not have a chance to come from behind and collar the son of Man o' War. He had been instructed to keep within striking distance but to reserve his charge for the final bid. All who saw the race will attest to the fact that Richards followed instructions.

Because of his contract, Richards must ride Walter M. Jeffords' Matey in the Preakness. Wayne Wright will have the mount on Pompoon and his instructions will be much different from those given Richards a week before.

This time Pompoon even if he finishes last is going to try to run War Admiral into the ground. Wright will be told to hustle the son of Pompey every inch of the way. Pompoon's best efforts have been as a sprinter and his handlers believe that he may even go to the top of War Admiral.

If Charlie Kurtsinger is lured into over-extending War Admiral in the early part of the running there may be a very interesting finish to this race. Most of the others due to face the barrier including Matey and Over the Top are of the "come from behind" type.

As the hours preceding the $50,000 added test pass there has been no change in the probable field although the official entries will not be known until tomorrow morning. The same eight which have been prominently mentioned loom as the starters. They are War Admiral (Kurtsinger) Matey (Richards), Pompoon (Wright), Merry Maker (Woolf), Over the Top (Westrope), Flying Scot (Gilbert or Arcaro), Jewell Dorsett (D. Dubois), and Mosawtre (Le Blanc).

It was definitely determined today that Melodist, a Derby "also ran," will not see action.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAREBACK, $9.90, $5.50, $3.70; INDIANA, $9.60, $5.50; WHITE HOT, $3.50.

BAREBACK, sent to the front at once under hustling tactics, was rated along to the stretch and was kept to a drive to the end. INDIANA had good speed from the start, saved ground and closed willingly. WHITE HOT, shuffled back at the break, came wide for racing room entering the stretch and closed full of run. MAHOGANY went to the leaders with a sharp move in the early stretch, but weakened. BALKONIAN tired after going forwardly. GREY CHIEFTAIN had good early speed. GAY WATER refused at the break and was left.

SECOND RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Country Life. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:51. Off at 2:52. Winner, E. K. Bryson's b. g. (5), by Chicle—Flying Witch. Trained by H. Baker. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:48 2-5, 1:14 1-5, 1:40 4-5, 1:45 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISTER GANDER, $4.70, $3.50, $2.90; COUNT TETRARCH, $3.70, $3.20; SKYRIDE, $3.20.

MISTER GANDER, away sluggishly, went to the outside along the backstretch to take command with a bold rush and held away thereafter under a drive. COUNT TETRARCH, pocketed going to the far turn, moved up sharply, but lugged in behind MISTER GANDER when placed to drive. SKYRIDE ran ITSIE BITSIE into defeat and then tired gradually. DONA DULCIN could not keep up. DROLL STORY could not reach contention. ITSIE BITSIE stopped.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Constitution. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:17. Off at 3:19½. Winner, B. F. Christmas' b. f. (4), by Galetian—Masking. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:14.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MASKED GAL, $7.90, $3.10, $2.90; SAGE GIRL, $2.80, $2.60; RESURRECTION, $5.90.

MASKED GAL, steadied along within striking distance of the leaders from the beginning, came around TIMBER LADY and TRUE TUNE to take command and was drawing out easily at the end. SAGE GIRL, lacking early speed, closed willingly, but was no match for the winner. RESURRECTION came gamely for the final test. TRUE TUNE was used up chasing TIMBER LADY. The latter stopped after setting a brisk pace. POSTPONEMENT closed some ground.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $39.30.

FOURTH RACE—Three miles. Purse, $1,000. The Billy Barton Steeplechase for hunters holding certificates from the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association or those eligible for the same. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:45. Off at 3:46½. Winner, W. J. Strawbridge's b. or g. (4), by Tetratema—Golden Corn. Trained by M. H. Dixon. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 6:07 1-5. (19 jumps.)

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ARGONAUT (Kline-Strawbridge entry), $17.70, $3.60, out; CROONING WATER (Weir-Brady entry), $2.30, out; SOLDIERS FATE (Weir-Brady entry), out.

ARGONAUT, forwardly placed while under restraint and landing uncertainly at several fences, came to the inside of leaders at the final fence, took command while under drive on the final flat to win going away. CROONING WATER, not hurried for a mile and a half, moved up menacingly during the final turn of the course and closed stoutly. SOLDIERS FATE ran QUICK VERDICT into defeat, took command after making bad landings at the sixth and fourteenth fences and weakened. QUICK VERDICT set the early pace and tired. BRIAR BLUE lacked speed throughout. DARK FOREST ran out approaching the fifteenth fence.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,500; claiming. The Culpeper. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:17. Off at 4:17. Winner, E. K. Bryson's ch. f. (3), by Misstep—Pot Au Smore. Trained by H. Baker. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:14 1-5, 1:41, 1:46.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS MARLBORO, $5.90, $4.00, $2.60; JELLY ROLL, $6.30, $3.40; UNCLE LESTER, $2.40.

MISS MARLBORO, taken up going to the first turn when in tight quarters and then forced to the outside for racing room, gained sharply approaching the stretch and wore down JELLY ROLL gradually after being shaken up in midstretch and was up to take photo decision. JELLY ROLL came wide to go to the front with a rush nearing the stretch and fought it out courageously. UNCLE LESTER disposed of NEVER NEVER to set to the front and tired badly. TONIANNA faltered. NEVER NEVER was through after a half.

WEATHER, CLOUDY. TRACK, FAST.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The John Edgar Howard. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates for all but Upper Berth. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:47. Off at 4:49½. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's ch. g. (3), by Display—Grandma Lapp. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 1-5, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRAND PLAY, $3.30, $2.30, $2.40; LITTLE SHAVER (entry), $2.50, $3.00; COSETTE (entry), $3.00.

GRAND PLAY, closest to the pace of COSETTE from the beginning, came to the outside of the pacemaker entering the stretch, was bumped by COSETTE and then bumped COSETTE and drew away to hold LITTLE SHAVER safe after regaining stride. SETTE opened a good lead going to the far turn, swerved out at the stretch turn to interfere with GRAND PLAY and then was knocked off stride by GRAND PLAY. ALEXANDRINE saved ground entering the stretch, but Kurtsinger took up behind in LITTLE SHAVER came with good courage at the end after running forwardly. COterference. TITANICAL could not keep up. UPPER BERTH dwelt at the start and was a distant trailer.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, FAST.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Delaware. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:21. Off at 5:22. Winner, Miss Sadie Johnson's br. h. (5), by Waygood—Winged Bob. Trained by D. P. Veneman. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:15, 1:42, 1:48 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PLAYOFF, $11.90, $5.20, $3.70; TIEMPO, $4.80, $3.60; TAMBOV, $4.10.

PLAYOFF, sent to the front at the first turn, alternated in setting and pressing the pace with TIEMPO, took a brief lead in midstretch and barely lasted. TIEMPO, steadied along behind the pace of PLAYOFF, took a brief lead entering the stretch, dropped back and came again. TAMBOV, close to the leaders from the start, weakened in the final sixteenth. JAMES BOY, fractious and started from outside the gates, moved up menacingly entering the stretch and gained gradually thereafter. SUN WAY saved ground entering the stretch and faltered. SALLANDRY could not reach contention.

EIGHT RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Tred Avon. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:51. Off at 5:52. Winner, Jay McNamara's ch. g. (a), by Pennant—Bridlewise. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 2:03 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TACK, $11.20, $6.90, $4.30; POST BRIGADE, $4.60, $3.20; DRASTIC DELIGHT, $2.80.

TACK, going in much improved form, disposed of STAR SPECIAL to take command and drew out to hold POST BRIGADE safe under a drive. POST BRIGADE, reserved for a half, came around horses to gain contention and closed willingly. DRASTIC DELIGHT, badly outrun for a half, came wide into the stretch and closed with a belated rush. ROLLICK moved up menacingly leaving the backstretch, but weakened. ITALIAN HARRY had early speed. STAR SPECIAL stopped after setting the pace.

Billy Barton Steeplechase To Argonaut

By the Associated Press.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, May 13.—W. J. Strawbridge, Philadelphia sportsman, watched Argonaut, his ancient gray gelding, win the ninth running of the Billy Barton Steeplechase, a grueling test of 3 miles for hunters holding certificates from the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association. Capably handled by M. H. Dixon, who is also trainer of the gelding, Argonaut defeated James Cox Brady's Crooning Water by two and a half lengths, with Campbell Weir's Soldier's Fate third, another length farther back.

Argonaut turned in the second fastest time since the race, named for the United States horse that finished second in the Grand National in 1928, was inaugurated that year. He was clocked in 6:07 1-5. The record of 6:04 for the event was made by Nicias in 1930.

Quick Verdict was first to show in front as the field broke and maintained the lead for a turn of the course. Soldier's Fate and Argonaut were under stout restraint close up. Despite several bad landings, Soldier's Fate and Argonaut ran Quick Verdict into defeat.

On the final swing, Crooning Water moved up to join the front-running pair. Approaching the final fence, Argonaut was in third place, but Dixon was steering to the inside to save ground. In contrast to his two rivals, Argonaut took the fence in stride and was in front when he landed. In the run to the wire, Argonaut outstepped his opponents.

Bareback, recently disposed of by the A. G. Vanderbilt stable, carried the colors of the Liberty Lane stable to victory in the first race. Leading virtually from flagfall to finish, Bareback bounced out of the maiden class to the tune of a $9.90 mutuel. The Bud Lerner gelding led Indiana to the wire by a length and a half while the photo gave White Hot third money over Mahogany. Time for the six furlongs was 1:14 4-5.

Mister Gander, one-time hope of the C. V. Whitney stable and away from the races for a long time, triumphed in the role of a $4.70 favorite while running in the red, white and blue silks of E. K. Bryson in the second race. Count Tetrarch was second and a length and a quarter behind the son of Chicle. Third money in the group of six went to Skyride. Mister Gander, famous for being left at the post, was away last but took command with a rush after a half and held sway thereafter. Time for the mile and 70 yards was 1:45 4-5.

Levi Yoder Faces Burke, Pitt Meets Allen at Chevy Chase

Overton, Brownell Lose to Hoya Star

Harry Pitt Plays Fine Golf in Downing Nolan and Hollebaugh; Yoder Only Five Over Par for Route.

By Merrell Whittlesey.

A Georgetown student's prediction that Johnny Burke would win the Chevy Chase Invitation tournament without passing the fourteenth hole looked favorable at the end of the quarter final rounds yesterday, as the Hoya frosh star turnde in 5 and 4 victories over Spencer Overton and Bobby Brownell, with near par performances.

Harry Pitt, three times winner of the Taft Trophy, brushed aside a pair of tough opponents, Parker Nolan and Russ Hollebaugh, with 1 up and 2 and 1 triumphs, respectively, to also enter the semifinals.

Levi Yoder, winner of the Woodmont Invitation last week, meets Burke this morning, Yoder making a twin killing, over Ralph Quinter in the morning and Luther Steward in the afternoon, and was 5 over par for the route, including 3 stymies on short putts.

Frank (Shanty) Allen, former Georgetown Prep School luminary and the only out-of-town man in the running for the title, will play Harry Pitt in the semifinals. Allen was, 3 and 2, and 2 and 1, over Gene Pittman and Billy Shea, playing in the low 70s each round.

The morning round was void of upsets, Bobby Brownell's par on the twentieth hole defeating Volney Burnett in the feature after the latter had 3-putted the last green for a vicory and missd a 6-foot birdie on the nineteenth hole that would have also won the match.

Burke Out by 36.

Burke played the first nine in 56 and was 4 up against Overton in the morning, halved the next three hole, won the thirteenth with a par and halved the next to win, 5 and 4. A 6 on the eleventh hole sent him 3 over par on the back nine and he was 4 over for the route.

Against Brownell the red-headed Rhode Island champion won the first two holes, saw the match squared on the fifth, but won the seventh, eighth, ninth and eleventh, to settle the issue. Burke needed par for a 75.

Pitt made a gallant comeback in his initial match, 3 birdies aiding in overcoming Nolan's 4 up lead at the end of six holes, and winning on the last hole when a 4-foot putt found the cup after Nolan was in trouble on his drive and finished with a 5.

Against Hollebaugh, Harry was virtually unbeatable. All square at the turn after shooting the first nine in 36, Harry won the eleventh with a par, halved the next four, won the sixteenth when Hollebaugh chipped over the green and nearly holed a shot from a bunker on the next hole to clinch the verdict.

Yoder "On Stick."

Yoder was "on the stick" in his first-round match against Quinter, needing a par for a 70, then it was over. Quinter made a determined stand after losing four of the first seven holes to come within a hole of squaring the match, but Yoder continued his string of pars at this point for the verdict.

In the afternoon Yoder was not playing as well, but won three successive holes after holding a 1 up lead at the thirteenth, and won by a 4-3 margin.

Burke, again supported by a large following of Hilltop students who have trudged every hole with the dark horse contender, will have his hands full this morning as Yoder is evidently playing the best golf of his career, and is in the throes of a winning streak of six consecutive first-flight matches.

Pitt is apparently hitting the ball with the skill that has won this title in three previous performances, but will face a tartar in Allen, who made an impressive record in the Florida winter tourneys.

The finals are scheduled this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Nats Smother White Sox in 10-to-2 Cleanup

him. He did—Bluege's drive toward shortstop—and Myer came home.

Little Italo Chelini was in there pitching, supposedly, for the Sox in the seventh and he got a tremendous greeting—a tremendous home run by Jesse Hill that bit through a small gale and disappeared among the leftfield bleacher seats.

Boys Get Hot.

With DeShong doing so nicely out there for the Nats, there wasn't much sense to Washington's three-run uprising in the ninth, but the boys were out of control today. Jesse Hill singled to center, Buddy Lewis singled to right, and then the Kuhel fellow pumped that third successive three-bagger of his into left center to score 'em both. Al Simmons singled to left and Kuhel came home.

In fact the whole team started for home a few minutes later when DeShong set down the Sox in the ninth. They took a 6:15 train for Washington.

Green, DeAngelo Meet at Arena

Joe Green, local lightweight, and Frankie DeAngelo, also of Washington, will do battle in a six-round preliminary to the Buddy Scott-Hobo Williams main event at Turner's Arena next Monday night

In another local "natural" on the all-local card for the benefit of the firemen's fund, Billy Bullock, a Washington lightweight, will oppose Benny Kessler

Rowdy Rudy Pins Baxter In Tame Bout

Wins After 25½ Minutes of Work; Reb Russell Tosses Fischer.

A disappointingly small crowd of not more than 1,500 watched the two most roisterous members of the mat profession indulge in the session of burping which fell far short of expectations in that both men stayed in the ring all the time, there were no bloody noses, no broken bones and even Referee Benny Bortnick lost only half his shirt.

The boys slapped each other about in the customary manner for a while, then fell into the bad error of applying legitimate holds. This was somewhat of a shock to those who had come expecting to see no end of carnage, but the crowd suffered in silence.

The lads at last got around to butting each other and one by one they bounced off the ropes into each other's midriffs, much to the delight of the assemblage. After a bit of this, Rudolph decided to end it all. He did so by dropping Baxter neatly over his shoulder and sitting on him until the official three count had been completed.

The customary post-bout brawl in the ring was eliminated, but Baxter did manage to make one pass at a ringside customer as he wended his way back to the dressing room.

In a semifinal scheduled for 30 minutes, Reb Russell flopped Eli Fischer, and who hasn't? Other 30-minute time limit bouts found George Kondylis tossing Al Billings, Willie Davis flopping Mayes McLain and Wally Dusek working to a draw with Mike Mazurki.

Central 'C' Meet Lures 31 Schools

Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, D. C. Entered.

By John R. Vosburgh

For the nineteenth straight year, Central High stadium will be the scene tomorrow of the schoolboy "Little Olympics" of North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland and the District. Some 350 athletes from 31 schools stand ready to race, jump or throw for the "C" Club meet's team title now held by Episcopal High, of Alexandria.

Washington's six high schools, overshadowed by far more powerful entries, appear sadly outclassed.

Tome Institute, of Port Depisit, Md., rates virtually on even terms with Episcopal, defending champion, with Woodberry Forest High and Staunton Military Academy, of Virginia, a pair of other formidable contenders.

So far as the local schools are concerned, the meet gives some indication of the coming inter-high track and field champion. For the first time in five years, Tech High appears ready to lose its title and Eastern, Central and Roosevelt are all set to succeed to the throne.

Thus, their showing tomorrow will give a line on next week's developments in the inter-high meet.

Individuals on the local teams, however, are likely to stir up considerable confusion among opposition ranks. Roosevelt's sprint relay team, incidentally, looms a big threat in this event. Lou Chacos, of Central, has been a steady winner in the sprints all season. Leslie Cooksey, of Eastern, has surprised his most faithful followers with his steady gains in broad jumping.

Central's chances of finishing well up among the leaders also rest on Kahn, a hurdler who placed next to the winner of the Maryland Interscholastic high hurdlers; Ferguson, who was runner-up to the winning Cooksey, and Hoadley, third in the high jump.

Scholastic Trouble Worries Wilson.

An English examination prior to Woodrow Wilson's decisive inter-high game with Eastern High at Eastern today may decide the 1937 schoolboy baseball championship. The examination confronts Kilmer Bortz, Wilson's brilliant right-hander. Kilmer must pass the examination to pitch today.

Less imposing than the Wilson-Eastern fracas, a Tech-Central performance will also be enacted in Central Stadium today. In the event that Mr. Bortz should get through his test and bedazzle Eastern with his strike-out ball, Eastern, Wilson and Tech will be deadlocked for first place in the series—providing Tech topples Central as expected.

Coach Carl Heintelloff Wilson is upset considerably about the state of affairs at his school. Bortz, who has fanned 71 men in five games, is his trump card, but the coach isn't even sure whether he'll be in the pack or not.

For that matter, the coach is not sure that his infield will be eligible.

On the other hand, over at Eastern, Coach Charlie Guyon is troubled by no classroom worries at all. In fact, the chief predicts an Eastern victory, as he did last week against Western's champions. Richard (Rip) Carver, pudgy right-hand sinker ball pitcher, is his likely mound choice.

A victory for Eastern will clinch the title to all intents and purposes. Roosevelt, an also ran, is the sole remaining obstacle in the Light Blue's path after today. Wilson's next foe is Western.

Anacostia 'High' Loses Debut, 2-1

Anacostia High School, newest entry in scholastic sports circles, was nosed out by Congress Heights, 2 to 1, yesterday in its first reported athletic venture. The Southeast team, unofficially representing the high school, was held to two hits by Grant, while the winners got but three off Hammond and Clark.

Hardhead fishing in the Bay, a week or two earlier than usual, looks one day as though it is on in earnest, only to fall flat on the next. It is well worth trying, though, and at any point which your fancy might dictate.

The first boat out of Deale, on Herring Bay, gave them a whirl on Tuesday and returned with seven nice ones, all weighing better than three pounds. Similar big ones were caught at Benedict on Tuesday. Wednesday at Solomons Island, J. C. Lore had three parties out, but the only catch in sight was that of Ollie Atlas and George Huber, who had been fishing with George Bowen in the Honga River since early morning. Between 50 and 60, but small, as Eastern Shore catches have been running. A weakfish weighing about a pound and three quarters was the one high-light of the trip, if no mention is made of the sunburn acquired by everyone in the party.

ACKERMAN

Boats at all the above places are in shape for the summer and ready to go, for anyone who would like to try it this week-end.

Attention, stream fishermen who might expect to fish West Virginia streams during the next week or two—notices issued by the Monongahela National Forest headquarters closed 69,190 acres along the main branch and all tributaries of the Williams River to the public because of the forest fire hazards prevalent at this time.

This precaution will prevent fishermen from trying the trout streams above White Oak Run up to and inclusive of Little Laurel Run on the Williams River. Other streams closed include the North Fork of the Cranberry, its tributary, Tumbling Rock Creek, both forks of Leatherwood Creek, Bergoo Creek and all national forest land within their drainages.

The national forest service will patrol all entrances such as roads, trails, stream and railroad grades, and in addition signs will be posted, warning against trespass, until such time as the fire hazard is past.

The first two weeks of Pennsylvania's trout season could by no stretch of the imagination be termed even fair. Torrents of rain, cold weather that closely verged on snow, were only added insults to anglers who stood by and watched the muddied waters swirling down streams swollen above their banks.

That is over now and anglers are appreciating the waters that are fast approaching top shape, and which this year for the first time are open to them on Sundays.

If plans now in progress do not go astray, there will be some real competition at Nova Scotia sport fishing ports late this summer when the tuna and broadbill are in those far northern waters. It has been proposed to hold a match between sport fishing teams from New Zealand, Australia, Germany, France, England, Canada and the United States. Each team will consist of ten big-game fishermen, and the winner will be picked on the basis of time required to land their fish, size of fish and weight of the tackle used.

Signs many and varied are part of the daily diet of the inhabitants of this fair country of ours. Some are works of art and very much to the point, while others show the dire necessity that causes them to be posted. As a rule, the stream angler rarely meets anything in the way of a sign beyond an occasional notice, so it is easy to understand the astonishment of all who come upon the two following—"Fishermen Welcome—Picknickers Keep the Hell Out" and "Yes—Go Fish. Don't Bother Me."

The more artificial flies and the more barbless hooks used the better will trout fishing become as the years go by. If your reach exceeds your grasp, remember—the limit fisherman doesn't always have the most fun.

Rookie Helps Tigers Win Over Boston

Recruit Hurls Detroit to Shutout Victory Over Red Sox, 4-0.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, May 13.—George Gill, recruit right-hander making his first major league start, pitched Detroit's first shutout of the season today, beating the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 0, with a five-hit performance. It was the Tigers' first victory in five games, and permitted them to displace Boston in third place.

The rookie from Beaumont, Tex., outpitched Wesley Ferrell, although Ferrell also allowed but five hits. Gill issued no bases on balls, none of the Boston safeties went for extra bases and only one Red Sox runner reached second base. Gill had appeared in relief roles twice before starting today's game.

Navy's Nine Beats Terrors

Annapolis, Md., May 13 (AP).—Navy's nine piled up 15 runs in two big innings today to defeat Western Maryland, 16 to 8, in a loosely played game.

Trailing 2 to 1 in the fourth, the Middies blasted Barktoll, Western Maryland's starting pitcher, for seven hits, including a double by McFarland and a triple by Ingram, and took advantage of a hit batter and two errors to score eleven runs.

New Southern Conference Marks Expected at Big Meet

Duke Team Favored to Retain Title

Games Scheduled Today and Tomorrow; Md. Is Dark Horse.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A wholesale assault on existing Southern Conference track records is expected this afternoon and tomorrow at Duke University, where one of the bset fields in the 14-year history of the meet has been assembled for the annual championship games.

Preliminary heats will be disposed of this afternoon, with tomorrow reserved for the finals, and new records in no less than half of the 15 events are expected.

Maryland's squad, a potent factor even though it is conceded little chance of carrying off the team honors, left yesterday for Durham, 11 strong. The Terps may not win the title, but will have a lot to say about who does, for they are strong in certain events.

Ed Miller, high-jumper, bettered the official conference record by a full inch last week against Richmond, winning with a leap of 6 feet 3¾ inches, and a similar effort tomorrow should bring victory and a new mark. Bill Guckeyson, in the javelin throw, is a possible winner, although his best toss has been far short of the existing 211 feet 1½-inch record.

The Old Line has a dark horse entered in the 2-mile run in Ken Belt, a slender but rugged hoofer, who has improved consistently this spring. The duel for this championship is expected to be pretty much of a private party between Richmond's Bill Lumpkin and Duke's Bill Morse, both of whom have bettered the present mark.

Other new figures are expected in the high hurdles, in which the defending champion, Jim Rogers, of Washington and Lee, is the favorite. His teammate, Harvey, is expected to battle it out with Bob Gardiner and Graham Gammon, of North Carolina for the laurels and possibly a record in the 880-yard run.

Experts look to Merrill Pasco, of V. M. I., for a record century sprint, and possibly another in the 220. His teammate, Dick Strickler, has done better than the current record of 47 feet 7½ inches in the shot put this spring and is an outstanding favorite in this event.

Duke, defending champion, is a slight favorite to retain his crown, but strong opposition will come from North Carolina's 40-man team, which the Blue Devils whipped by 25 points in a dual meet this year.

Yanks Shift Bat Order, Beat Browns

St. Louis, May 13 (AP).—The New York Yankees shook up their hitting order today and with Joe DiMaggio getting three hits while batting in the clean-up spot instead of Lou Gehrig, defeated the Browns, 4 to 2.

Bucky Jacobs, the University of Richmond's sensational pitcher who has two no-hit-no-run games to his credit this season, is expected to work this afternoon when the Spiders meet Maryland at College Park at 4 p. m.

The game features a slim collegiate card, George Washington meeting Mount St. Mary's nine on the East Ellipse at 2:30 o'clock in the only other item listed. Georgetown's team, meanwhile, will be trying for its eleventh consecutive victory against Fordham in New York.

Tomorrow Georgetown's trackmen engage in their lone dual meet of the year, running against St. Peter's College, of Jersey City, while Maryland's team is competing in the Southern Conference games. North Carolina plays the Terps in baseball at College Park, while Navy will be the Old Liners' host in lacrosse.

Paul Dean Ready To Leave Hospital

St. Louis, May 13 (AP).—Dr. Robert Hyland, surgeon for the St. Louis Cardinals, said Paul Dean, the team's ailing pitcher, was sufficiently recovered from an operation on his right shoulder to leave a hospital today.

Dr. Hyland removed a piece of torn cartilage from the shoulder socket May 5 in an operation designed to restore Dean to his former pitching efficiency. The surgeon, however, would not venture an opinion on the success of the operation.

McDonald, Tow Signed For Benefit

Commission Approves Bout for Police Show; Two More Sought.

Bob Tow, the Alexandria heavyweight, and Sandy McDonald, of Texas, have been signed and a ten-round bout between them has been sanctioned by the Boxing Commission for the police benefit card, scheduled to be held at Griffith Stadium June 2.

The Tow-McDonald contest will be one of three ten-round bouts on the card. The commission had previously refused to sanction a meeting of Lou Gevinson and Ray Ingram, local featherweights. The Gevinson-Ingram decision will be appealed by Promoter Joe Turner at a meeting of the commission today.

Tow, who was on the sidelines for many months because of a hip injury, made an auspicious start up the comeback trail by flattening Mader, a New York heavyweight who is highly regarded here, in the fifth round.

McDonald surprised the local fans by holding Marty Gallagher to a draw a few weeks ago. Regarded as no more than a warm-up opponent for Gallagher, McDonald boxed beautifully to earn an official draw, although many thought he had earned the decision by his efforts.

Dixiana Horses Win.

Pawtucket, R. I., May 13.—C. T. Fisher's Dixiana horses gained their sixth purse or stake victory in the 11 days of the Narragansett Park meeting today when Rollin' Home and Erin Torch ran one-two in the 6-furlong Dexter feature.

Marionettes Headline Bill For Shoreham

Roxy Gang Tenor Also There; Warren May Go to Hotel Lincoln.

By Chanticleer

You shouldn't be surprised if you walk into the Hotel Lincoln later this month to find Maestro Warren, of the Wardman Park's metronome room, making music in the room Isham Jones and his music now occupy. No official word is forthcoming as yet but Wardman is making some changes preparatory to the summer season and it is expected to include the music as well as other phases of summer-time frolicing.

Be that as it may, the winter's maestro likes Washington and its people and if he should move on to the Lincoln he'll give the customers plenty of grand stunts before he finally leaves.

* * * *

Carl Simpson and his Marionettes headline the floor bill at the Shoreham this week—little wooden animals and people who can do almost anything that humans can do and they're as funny—or almost as funny. Of course a wooden man can do some far more sensible, or on the other hand funny, things than some of us who are gallyhooping around after dark. Henri Therrien, original tenor of Roxy's Gang, and tenor of "Swing Time" and "A Night in Paris," begins a Shoreham engagement in the ballroom Monday. You'll be there, no doubt.

* * * *

That new international dance team at the Lotus is Felicia and Del Re, introducing something entirely different in the way of a musical comedy fox trot and their intrepretation of "The Slums of Paris." Peter and Peggy Mathews are there, too, with a tricky table dance and their "Barnacle Bill, the Sailor."

If you happen to be in Baltimore this week, drop in at the Lord Baltimore's cocktail lounge. Hawaiian music by Lani Kuhn and his Paradise Islanders.

The Cork and Bottle is with us, newest of the sit-and-sip spots. It's all done up very nicely in robin's egg blue. The opening is set for Friday and Saturday, with champagne cocktails as a special at the very modest rate of 25 cents. The Cork and Bottle is in the Commodore Hotel.

Blondes, brunettes and redheads at the Cocoanut Grove—Broadway lovelies in the Grove's ensemble of dancing maidens. Dinner from $1 and three floor shows nightly—8:45, 11 and 2. A cast of 15.

* * * *

Every one at the Raleigh Pall Mall Room received a little flag of Britain at his table—all in honor Wednesday night of the coronation. Ray Benson and his orchestra for your dancing. Ask at the door at the Pall Mall Room about the pair of I. Miller shoes for some one.

Regrettably the Russian Troika closes its doors once again for the summer. The finale is to come oft Saturday night. And in case you're negligent about making arrangements, a closing night at this spot is about as well patronized as a big fall opening.

Dancing in the pine-scented breezes. Ah, that's spring. And particularly at Boulevard Farms, down the Memorial highway below Alexandria. Incidentally, they dance down there Sunday nights from 9, now. Chicken dinners a specialty. And won't that 1,800 square feet of dance space come in handy tonight. Almost 500 guests will be served—the Washington bowling clubs are banqueting there.

Seems that Johnny Shaw, the Madrillon maestro, and Arthur Warren, of the Wardman, are feuding a bit. On the level. Only the weapons will be golf clubs and not batons. Before Arthur leaves town the golf title will be settled.

* * * *

Maybe the Mayfair will turn out to be Washington's Brown Derby or Trocadero. The Merry Macs, of the Earle's current bill, and Leota Lane, of the Follies, have been entertaining at the Mayfair this wek. Otis Manning, the magic gentleman, is in rare form and will amaze you no end right at your table with his niftles. Lady Anez will tell you about any tall dark men or little blondes about to enter your life.

Fairbanks Facing Flood, Ice Menace

Fairbanks, Alaska, May 13 (U.P.).—Fairbanks was threatened with inundation tonight as the Chena River, overloaded with great chunks of ice, overflowed its banks.

Parts of the city of 3,000 already were under several feet of water. All traffic was at a standstill. The water undermined several sections of the Alaska Railroad.

The Chena was jammed with the most ice and debris it has held for years, old-timers said. The stream is a tributary of the large Tanana River, whose thick ice broke up Wednesday night and started a jumbled rush to the great Yukon and the sea.

Chicago Saloon Murder, A la McGrew, Recounted

Chicago, May 13 (A.P.).—The story of a barroom shooting—Dan McGrew style—was told today on the witness stand in Criminal Court. The chief characters were Harold Rambert, now on trial on murder charges, and Francis Parker, the man who was killed. The scene was a saloon on the North Side. The time was 3:30 a. m. January 10.

Walter Spasojevich testified:

"Rombert was singing 'Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life.' Parker accompanied him on the piano. Rambert came to the bar and picked up a pistol. I turned my back. I heard a shot and saw Parker on the floor."

Agents Say Pa. Man Threatened President

Harrisburg, Pa., May 13 (A.P.).—Secret service agents last night arrested a man docketed as William S. Amberson, 59, of Waynesboro, Pa., on a charge of sending two threatening letters to President Roosevelt.

Manassas Alumni Meet.

Manassas, Va., May 13.—The Manassas High School Alumni Association met last night at the school auditorium to plans the annual banquet. The banquet will be held this year on June 5.

About the Town's Night Clubs

Helen Hamilton announces, regretfully, that another season has rolled around for her Russian Troika. Which means a gala closing Saturday night. Curt C. Schiffler (right) is responsible for the grand personality of the Raleigh's Pall Mall Room. You see, he is the Raleigh's manager, too.

On the Air Today

The U. S. Office of Education's Radio Project is coming forth today with another experiment in educational broadcasting. At 11:30 a. m., over a large N. B. C. network, will be held a nation-wide "graduation exercise" for young America. It will be called the National School Assembly By Radio, and everyone, from Commissioner John W. Studebaker down, would like to see it so successful as to merit repetition yearly.

Speakers for this first hour will be Secretary Ickes, Mr. Studebaker, Dr. Walter B. Pitkin and Edward A. Filene. The subjects range from "Conserve America—Its Resources and Its Ideals" to "How to Make Full Use of Your Life."

Youth will be represented by spokesmen from four youth organizations: Arthur Northwood, National Student Federation of America; Clark Nicholson, Future Farmers of America; Rose Terlin, Y. W. C. A., and a CCC representative. They will question Pitkin from the viewpoint of youth.

The purpose of the broadcast, I am told, is to provide school assemblies over the country with the most sensible and sane graduation advice possible

* * * *

Anniversary—One hundred and fiftieth anniversary of signing of the Constitution, from Philadelphia, with 13 tolls of the Liberty Bell, WMAL, at 1:30. With Gov. Earle, of Pennsylvania.

Pre-Preakness Program—Clem McCarthy presents Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, trainers and jockeys, from Baltimore, WMAL, at 9:30. McCarthy also will describe the race tomorrow. (Broadcasting from Pimlico tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 6.)

John L. Lewis—First of three speakers in a series on new social trends and industrial policies, WJSV, at 9:45. Later, Gov. Murphy and William Green.

Bob Feller—N. B. C. microphones bring graduation of brilliant young major league pitcher, from Van Meter, Iowa, where he graduated from high school tonight, WMAL, at 9:45.

* * * *

Aside to "Marie:" I have no suggestions on how to get clippings about Arthur Godfrey from New York papers. Perhaps Arthur himself has a few duplicates.

* * * *

All of which reminds me that Uncle Arthur himself is, in truth, receiving considerable space not only in the New York papers but all over the country. Uncle Arthur graduated into the ranks of radio's celebrities, you know, when he took over the chore of reading a few lines of commercial copy in the "Prof. Quiz" show Saturday nights on the Columbia net. The pay from the "Quiz" show plus his other income locally places him at the top of the class in announcing work revenue. Thus far no one has stepped forth to challenge that statement as made by Uncle Arthur's new press agent, Bob Taplinger. As a matter of record, Godfrey receives top pay for a commercial announcer both at home and on the national chains. When they are put together the result is positively staggering. You see the network announcer has no opportunity to earn the local money Arthur does, and vice versa.

* * * *

Now about the failure of WMAL to play the recording of the coronation ceremonies Wednesday night as advertised. Local N. B. C. officials received, as promised, the recordings from the New York office. The transcription ran exactly seven hours! Even though they were rushed to Washington by airplane, it was impossible for the WMAL staff to sort out the pertinent portions in time for the 10 o'clock period. Rather than present the full seven hours, with awkward interpolations and explanations, the whole broadcast was called off. I don't blame them, either. What a job it would have been. J. H. H.

Staunton Area Officer Lauds Scout Cartoon

Cites Character Building Feature of New Post Comic Strip.

"It is my pleasure to add my indorsement and to congratulate The Washington Post for having such a splendid feature," said J. Wilford Fix, Scout executive of the Stonewall Jackson Area Council, Staunton, Va., after reading the first releases of "Roy Powers, Eagle Scout," on the comic page of The Post.

The remainder of his letter follows:

"It has been my pleasure to review the first four releases of the narrative feature strip bearing the title 'Roy Powers, Eagle Scout,' which is appearang in The Post daily.

"The National Organization of the Boy Scouts of America, which will review and approve every one of these releases, is in itself a guarantee that it will be possessed of the highest type of entertainment, character building and citizenship values that have made this movement the greatest boy organization in the world.

"To those of us who are interested in Young America it is a distinct relief to note that in 'Roy Powers, Eagle Scout,' there will be no gangsters, no machine guns, no crime, but rather clean adventure, healthful living and outdoor experiences will be shown. The characters portrayed will show the Scouts to be physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

Marine Chairman Picks Schell as His First Aide

Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy, of the United States Maritime Commission, yesterday announced the appointment of Samuel Duvall Schel as assistant to the chairman.

Prominent here and in Frederick, Md., where he is well known as a member of the Maryland Bar, Schell served in the Army Engineer Corps during the World War, and spent more than a year in France with the A. E. F.

For nearly 18 years he has served in various capacities in different Government shipping organizations, has been acting director of the Division of Transportation of the Maritime Commission. He will assume his duties immediately.

$2,500 Ickes Limousine Rolls Over Opposition

By the Associated Press.

A new $2,500 automobile for Secretary Ickes figuratively rolled through the House yesterday over the protests of Representative Ditter (Republican), of Pennsylvania.

Urging that money for the car be eliminated from a pending appropriation bill, Ditter declared Congress had done enough for the Interior Department when it provided a "luxurious" office building.

Representative Johnson (Democrat), of Oklahoma, replied that an expensive limousine, of dimensions to accommodate the silk hat of former Postmaster General Brown, had been requested in a Republican Administration.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Robert Howe Harmon directs the George Washington University Glee Clubs in the tenth annual spring concert Thursday night in the Willard Hotel ballroom, with Margery League, soprano, as guest soloist.

Evidently the friends of the young men and women constituting the glee clubs of George Washington University merit the metaphor of legion, for they almost taxed the capacity of the Willard Hotel ballroom last evening when the organizations presented their tenth annual spring concert. The large audience was cordial, interested, and prompt in approbation of each number, and the collegians sang with obvious enjoyment of the occasion.

The men's club began the concert with the traditional "Prayer of Thanksgiving," proceeded with gusto through the vigorous measures of Robertson's "The Jolly Roger," Protheroe's "Marching Men" and Bartholomew's "Old Man Noah," and closed the group with the university song, "Buff and Blue Forever," by Warren W. Grimes. The results of Dr. Harmon's training showed in the precision of attack and the well-balanced volume of voices.

Margery League, the assisting soloist, essayed Elizabeth's entrance aria from "Tannhaeuser" with an excess of vibrato that detracted from the surety of her tones. There was more satisfaction to the sensitive ear in her readings of Salter's "The Cry of Rachel" and Woodman's "A Birthday."

The girls' club took its turn on the platform to do some pleasant singing in Shuetky's "Emitte Spiritum," Ethelbert Nevin's "Venetian Love Song," the "Berceuse" from Godard's "Jocelyn" and Harvey Gaul's "List! the Cherubic Host." The incidental soli were taken by Miss League and Randolph Hughes, barytone.

At its second appearance, the men's club changed from the robust style to the shadings of mezzo and pianissimo in Parker's "Lamp in the West," Schumann's "The Lotus Flower," the choral adaptation "Dear Land of Home" from Sibelius' "Finlandia," and Jungst's "Dearest, Farewell."

The combined clubs closed the program with songs by Warren, Bortnianski, Wagner, Donizetti and Rubinstein. To the surprise of the audience, Dr. Harmon announced that "The Pilgrims' Chorus" would be directed by Dr. Hans Kindler, who has utilized the university chorus in concerts with the National Symphony Orchestra. After Dr. Kindler had put the students through a spirited performance and had returned to his seat in a box, he was presented with a club pin and admitted to honorary membership in the organization.

Hamilton Asserts G.O.P. Permanence

St. Louis, May 13 (A.P.).—John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, declared today shifting political alliances may result in changing the name of the Republican Party, but its organization must be the nucleus of any new anti-Administration movement.

"Political alignments should normally be based upon political beliefs and not upon mere party names and symbols," he said in an address before the John Marshall Republican Club.

"I will not dispute with anyone the beliefs he may hold as to what should be done. If he speaks of new alignments, if he talks of the change of party names, if he believes in formation of a new party—I can only say it may be so. But * * * the Republican Party constitutes the only foundation that complies with necessary specifications."

New Secretary Named By Episcopal Diocese

Hampton, Va., May 13 (A.P.).—Dr. W. A. Brown, of Portsmouth, will serve as secretary for the coming year of the episcopal diocese of southern Virginia.

Wheat Prices Decline With Stock Break

Rally at Close, With Good Export Business From Canada.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 13. — Jolted by breaks in prices of securities, the Chicago wheat market ruled decidedly lower most of the time today, though rallying somewhat at the last. Acting as more or less of a curb on selling of wheat here was relative firmness of values at Winnipeg, where export business in Canadian wheat today was fairly good, totaling about 750,000 bushels.

May delivery of wheat in Chicago underwent the widest fluctuations, falling from a top of $1.22⅞ to a low of $1.20⅝.

At the close, wheat was ¼ to 1 cent down, compared with yesterday's finish, May 1.21¼@1.21⅜, July 1.15⅛@1.15¼, September 1.14⅛@1.14¼; corn ⅜ off to 2¾ up, May 1.26¾, July 1.15⅞@1.16, September 1.06⅝@1.06¾; oats at ⅛ decline to 1¾ advance, May, 47⅛@47¼, and rye unchanged to 1¾ lower, May 1.09¼. Provisions results varied from 2 cents setback to bulge of 22 cents.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

The flow of funds in foreign exchange turned in favor of the dollar yesterday, causing a minor decline in leading European currencies.

The British pound yielded ¼ of a cent at $4.94⅞. In London the dollar closed at $4.93⅞ to the pound, the same as the final rate in New York Wednesday.

The Holland guilder held unchanged at 54.99 cents after a shift of capital to Amsterdam had lifted the rate steadily in preceding sessions.

The French franc dipped .00⅜ of a cent to 4.49⅛. In Paris it finished at the equivalent of 4.47⅜ cents, compared with an overnight New York rate of 4.485. The German mark, the belga and Swiss franc also moved a little lower.

Excess Funds Up in Week to $940,000,000

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that excess reserves of Federal Reserve bank members rose on May 12 to $940,000,000—nearly double the figure aimed at when the board issued its January order to increase reserve requirements.

The January order, which became fully effective May 1, was accompanied by a statement saying the objective was to cut excess reserves to $500,000,000 and explaining the step was necessary to prevent undue credit inflation.

Board officials indicated today, however they are not alarmed by the size of the excess reserves and said their estimates were revised privately several weeks ago to meet developments.

It was learned the $500,000,000 figure was abandoned when it became necessary for the board's open market to spend $100,000,000 to support the prices of Government securities and an agreement was made by the board and the Treasury to permit the Treasury working balance to decline.

In the week ended May 12, member bank reserve balances increased $61,000,000 to $6,943,000,000. The $940,000,000 of excess reserves included in this figure was an increase of $50,000,000 over the preceding week.

The board said the higher balances were caused by an increase of $44,000,000 in gold stock and decreases of $21,000,000 in money in circulation and $49,000,000 in non-member deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts. These were offset in part by increases of $43,000,000 in Treasury cash and $9,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks and a decrease of $2,000,000 in Treasury currency.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Drop to New Low Levels in More Active Trading; Bonds Decline.

New York, May 13.—It may have been the coronation blues, but whatever the causes, among which the steel industry strikes were suggested, the markets had the worst time seen since the bad breaks of more than a week ago. Stock turnover rose to around 1,800,000 shares, and closing prices were near the bottom, with declines of 1 to 12 points. July wheat dropped ⅝ of a cent to 115⅛ cents a bushel.

Looking merely at surface causes for market weakness, the old question of which came first the chicken or the egg, might be asked. Commodities had a bad fall, and their weakness undoubtedly was an influence on stocks, but a litle vice versa may have found its way into the mixture. As usual, London was blamed both for some stock selling and for some commodity liquidation, in which field the break in cocoa prices was a feature. Doubtless the debris from the last commodity market and gold share bust in London has not been entirely cleaned up, but no new crisis is expected to develop on this side or across the water.

Stocks were weak from the start and by the second hour of trading the selling orders came so fast that the stock exchange's facilities were swamped. The ticker tape ran five minutes or so behind the market, and the inadequacy of the reporting probably helped to dry up the volume of sales. After that the tone was a trifle steadier, but no rally could get far. Most of the afternoon was given over to half-hearted advances and timid retreats.

New Low Levels.

At their worst a number of leading industrial stocks were down 5 points or more. In the list were United States Steel, American Agricultural Chemical, Case (down 10), Cluett Peabody and Sloss Sheffield, which fell more than a dozen points. Motor and public utility shares sold at new low prices. The utility list sank into the lowest ground occupied since 1935. Virtually every issue made a new low.

New low prices were set for more than 200 issues, or 30 per cent of the list. Leading stocks affected were American Tobacco, Anaconda, Atlantic Refining, Chrysler, General Motors, Cerro de Pasco, Chesapeake Corporation, Western Union, Woolworth and Montgomery Ward.

More Spending.

While liquidation proceeded in the markets, from Government bonds through to commodities, it was far from a deflationary time in Washington. With the Chief "speeding to quell a revolt" in Congress, as the press headlines put it, the revolt appeared to melt away. The committee on appropriations overruled the cut of a third made in the relief budget as proposed by the President, and restored the full $1,500,000,000 to the bill.

In doing so the committee gave full swing to the views of the high spenders, including Hopkins and Wallace. Mr. Hopkins said that even with the huge appropriation now to go before the House, it would be necessary for industry to absorb half a million into the employe ranks. It did not make it clear why that would be necessary, but unless some drastic deflationary program be adopted, as, for instance, higher taxes to balance an ever-mounting budget. Industry could do that all right. Hopkins said industry in the last year has absorbed a million workers.

Tax Barrage.

On his part Secretary Wallace contributed to the economic discussion by saying that ill effects "might follow a sudden balancing of the budget." Whether those effects would be worse than those which are beginning to appear as a result of an unbalanced budget, the Secretary of Agriculture failed to say; but the Government bond market acted far from enthusiastic over the sudden melting away of the recent congressional economy snowball.

What the real leaders of industry fear more than anything else is not higher costs, as shown in wages and commodities, or a reduction in public purchasing power because of higher living costs, but the demolition of profits from the taxation guns. Those guns are doubly loaded. The harm is coming partly because of the shots fired and partly because of the uncertainty of the size of future shots.

Gold.

While the circumstances of the resignation of Prof. O. M. W. Sprague from his former post as adviser to the Treasury suggest that his views on monetary and fiscal policies do not always coincide with those of the Administration, what he says is worth attention. In an address in Berlin today Prof. Sprague said that to lower the gold price would be unwise, but that there is a great need for use of the increasing world supplies of gold. One use suggested was the building up of central bank reserves. Our reserves already are perhaps too high, so that our position is special. It may yet turn out that the best thing we can do to strengthen faith in our currency, to solve the problem of gold sterilization, and to give the world an example of return to sound monetary principles, will be to resume circulation of gold coin. A return to "gold bonds" is out of the question; but the public would still have faith in a gold coin which it could put into its pocket.

More Coming.

The price of gold in London has fallen again to a level at which there is a profit of around 5 cents an ounce to banks which bring the metal over for sale to the United States Treasury. If offerings in London are large probably imports here will rise, increasing the demands upon Treasury cash to make payment for the imports. The British equalization fund lately has done some yeoman work in buying large sums for delivery to the Bank of England, building up the bank's reserve and providing the fund with sterling available for the purchase of more gold. Since the gold recently bought by the Bank of England, about $25,000,000, is valued in old style pounds, the actual purchase was nearer $40,000,000. The well-informed London correspondent of the Sun notes that the recent purchase of gold by the Bank of England was done to take care of higher note circulation, and not as a means of supporting the gold market or relieving our own Treasury.

First to Report.

As usual the Alton Railroad led with the monthly reports. Alton had a deficit in April, which is not unusual for the road. Most Class I carriers probably made more money than they did in the same month of last year. Freight carloadings in April increased 16 per cent over a year ago, and the month brought no special drain on revenues for operating account. Net railway operating income for the first three months was 41 per cent greater than for the corresponding period of 1936. Estimates given by the Pennsylvania this morning were nevertheless on the other side. While the road's gross revenues in April rose 10 per cent, net operating income was about the same as a year ago.

Margins.

A number of Wall street persons think a Federal Reserve Board rule on margins one that either will lift the requirement or put the market on a strictly cash basis, is more likely now than it was when the market was rising. Since prices already are down and speculative activity is low, a new rule might have less immediate effect than otherwise would be the case. The market looks as though it had discontinued a great deal of bad news.

Private Building 4 Times a Year Ago

New York, May 13 (AP).—Private construction awards in the week ended Tuesday were more than four times the comparable figure last year and total awards about double the 1936 week's showing, the "Engineering News-Record" reported today. Private awards accounted for $30,464,000 of the $62,701,000 total compared with $5,440,000 out of $30,151,000 in the 1936 week. It was the second highest weekly figure this year. The total for the previous week was $59,451,000, including $28,274,000 private.

Insurance Men To Celebrate National Week

Observance to Start With Annual Breakfast Next Monday.

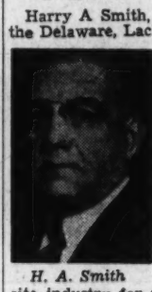
By Thomas M. Cahill.

Plans for celebration of national life insurance week, next week, have been announced by Earl W. Sapp, chairman of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association committee. The association has arranged to have the annual "life insurance week breakfast," Monday at 8 o'clock at the Willard Hotel, mark the opening of the week throughout the country. George L. Hunt, of Boston, national association chairman of life insurance week, will be the speaker at the breakfast and official representative of the national group to accept the co-operation of the Department of Commerce.

In 300 cities where some 30,000 members of the National Association of Life Underwriters are located there will be similar breakfast gatherings, which will be addressed by business, civic, insurance and social leaders. Honored guests will include several of the oldest policy holders in their respective communities. Hundreds of churches throughout the United States Sunday will open the week unofficially with sermons on life insurance. These will stress the economic, moral and social values of life insurance to the individual and the Nation.

D. L. & W. Coal President.

Harry A Smith, vice president of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Co. since 1918, has been elected president of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Co., of New York, and also president of the Blue Coal Corporation, of New Jersey.



H. A. Smith

Mr. Smith has been associated with the Pennsylvania anthracite industry for the past 40 years. During this period, he has been with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Co. and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, in its coal division. Many progressive ideas beneficial to the trade and also to the public have been sponsored or fostered by Mr. Smith.

General Credit, Inc.

The annual report to the board of directors of General Credit, Inc., an automobile finance concern, covering the fiscal year just closed, discloses an increase of 50 per cent of business done over the preceding period. Volume of business done by the corporation during this period was well in excess of $1,000,000 and has disclosed several significant factors, in the opinion of A. Burks Summers, president.

Brooks Studio.

A. B. Summers

Mr. Summers states the influx of new residents to the District and its metropolitan area, the lowering of finance rates to the purchaser and the enlargement of facilities within his own company are factors which contribute most to the increase shown. As a significant index to the higher average income in the District of Columbia, as compared with the national income, Mr. Summers points out that for the year just closed there was an average increase of 14 per cent on outstanding balance on used cars and 7 per cent on the new cars. General Credit is a Washington institution operating exclusively in the District and its metropolitan area, with offices in the Hill Building.

Life Underwriters.

At the regular monthly meeting of the District of Columbia Chapter, Chartered Life Underwriters, this week, Albert W. Atwood, author and lecturer, addressed the chapter on "The Forgotten Investor." Extensive studies by Mr. Atwood reveal that the individual investor has not yet emerged from the eclipse of 1929, when he occupied the limelight of economic activity.

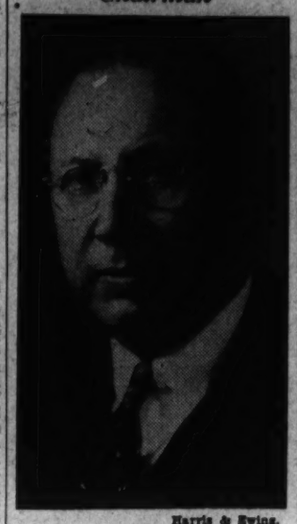
While the investor has come out of his "cyclone cellar," his activities have been largely directed toward the income features of investment, which means he has used such indirect forms of investment as savings banks and other co-operative or mutual savings institutions and the institutions of life insurance and annuities.

He further found that due to the increased need of these "indirect" investment agencies, the individual investor finds himself confronted with a "bull" market in real income securities. Such rising prices tending to reduce the rate of income to such a low figure as to be unattractive, the individual investor turns again to the speculative features of stocks for his investment dollars, believing that a rising market will give him income in addition to dividends.

Banking Notes.

William H. Laughlin, elected president of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, last night, is a collection teller at Washington Loan & Trust Co., and has been in its employ since 1924. He enrolled as a member of Washington Chapter in 1925, and received its standard and investment course certificates in 1928 and 1929, respectively. He was elected a consul of the chapter in 1931; chief consul, in 1933; treasurer, in 1934; second vice president, in 1935, and first vice president, last year. Mr. Laughlin has attended the institute conventions at Chicago, Omaha and Seattle.

Chairman



Harris & Ewing.

EARLE W. SAPP.

Anacostia Bank celebrated its twenty-seventh anniversary this week. The institution was founded May 10, 1910. The late George O. Walson was its first president. He was succeeded by Maurice Otterback and the present chief executive, J. Frank Campbell, followed to the presidency on the death of Mr. Otterback in 1934. When the bank was organized, its capital was $25,000. This has grown to $50,000 and deposits have increased to $1,500,000.

Arthur J. Linn, comptroller, Hamilton National Bank, will deliver an address, "Reports to the Board of Directors," before the Midwestern regional conference of the National Association of Bank Auditors and Comptrollers in Chicago today. Mr. Linn is first vice president of the association.

Prisoner Accuses Ellis Parker, Jr.

Newark, N. J., May 13 (AP).—A man under sentence of from 20 years to life in prison for the abduction of Paul H. Wendel testified in Federal Court today that Ellis H. Parker, jr., directed the seizure and subsequent torture which allegedly caused Wendel to confess he kidnaped the Lindbergh baby.

The witness, swarthy 29-year-old Harry Weiss, quietly told of his own part in the affair and declared he believed at the time that Wendel was the Lindbergh kidnaper. Young Parker told him, he said, his work would aid him in becoming a New Jersey State trooper.

Parker and his father, 4-year-old chief of Burlington County detectives, are charged with conspiracy in the seizure and torture of Wendel, whose "confession" caused a three-day delay in the execution of Bruno Hauptmann for the Lindbergh crime.

America Speaks through the columns of The Sunday Washington Post. Next Sunday, the American Institute of Public Opinion reports American sentiment on two questions of vital national interest. The questions are:

Unions, Jobless Subjects of Poll

What should be done, in the opinion of the voters, to relieve unemployment in the Nation?

Should labor unions be regulated by the Government?

Thousands of American voters in all parts of the country have been interviewed by the Institute to present this cross-section of public opinion on labor and unemployment. Do their views conform with your own on these important questions? You can compare notes in "America Speaks."

Exclusively, in The Sunday Post

Closing Session Is Advised $10,000 More Dispatched to War Sufferers.

The American Red Cross convention closed here yesterday with the announcement that an additional $10,000 has just been sent to Spain to relieve suffering of soldiers and civilians on both sides. The organization previously had contributed $26,000, the 2,000 delegates were told by Ernest J. Swift, vice chairman in charge of insular and foreign operations.

The Red Cross official described the "unbelievable bitterness" of the Spanish imbroglio and the terrible plight of thousands of children who can get no milk and only short rations of food in the rebel-ringed Spanish capital.

Will H. Hays, president, Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, paid tribute to the work of the society when he spoke later at a luncheon session at the Willard Hotel.

Work Praised By Hays.

"The American Red Cross is a most significant example of how that thing works which is commonly known as 'We, the People,' " he declared. This goes away back to the hearthstones of the Nation—back of government, even; it is the essence of how folks function naturally and effectively to meet the common need. It is a great demonstration of the glory of the American democracy."

Other speakers at the luncheon were Harold H. Burton, Mayor of Cleveland; L. R. Lohr, president, National Broadcasting Company, and Frank B. Noyes, president, Associated Press.

Noyes, speaking for the American press as to the support given to the Red Cross by the country's newspapers, quoted the words of Clara Barton, America's first Florence Nightingale.

Press Understood Part.

Miss Barton, in special reference to her mission in Asia Minor, said in 1896: "Among the dark hours that came to us in the hopeless waste of work and woe on every side, the strong sustaining power has been the press of the United States."

"I think the press understood Miss Barton," Noyes said. "It knew and indorsed the so-called "American Amendment" which she introduced at the Geneva Conference in 1884, stipulating that "when extraordinary calamities occur in times of peace the Red Cross (will) engage in humanitarian work analogous to the duties developing upon it in periods of war."

At yesterday's morning session, the invocation was given by Dr. Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, and at the luncheon session by Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, pastor of All Souls Church.

Music was furnished by the United States Navy Band Orchestra, under the leadership of Alexander Morris.

Atlas Tack Climb Laid to Customer

New York, May 13 (AP).—Jacob Gruber, counsel for the Securities and Exchange Commission, today sought to show that odd-lot purchases of the stock of Atlas Tack Corporation by a customer of W. E. Hutton & Co. on January 22, 1936, had served artificially to boost the price of the shares.

The SEC has charged the stock exchange firm and others attempted to manipulate the Atlas stock and has ordered the firm to show cause why it should not be expelled from the stock exchanges.

The Hutton customer, according to testimony, was Edmund Copeland, of Detroit. Records produced showed on January 22, 1936, he bought several blocks of Atlas through the Hutton firm and the New York firm of De Coppett & Doremus. On that day the stock rose from $24 to $25 a share.

Cosmopolitan Club Hears E. J. Gainor

Universal prosperity is the one panacea for balancing the budget, according to Edward J. Gainor, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers. Speaking before the Cosmopolitan Club at the Carlton Hotel yesterday, Gainor declared that "we have reached the point in American development that you can't be really prosperous unless your neighbor is prosperous also."

Discussing the budget, Gainor declared that it was no secret that revenues anticipated by the President had fallen more than $600,000 short of anticipated figures. He said there were only two ways that more money could be raised. The first is to increase taxes and the second to cut expenses. He declared that a recent newspaper poll had shown 71 per cent of the people against increased taxes.

Supply Regiment Seeks Additional Manpower

A new company for the 104th Quartermaster Regiment, District National Guard, has just been authorized, and recruiting activities have been started by Private Otto H. Gage.

The new company will try to equal the record of Company A, in the 104th Quartermaster Regiment, which has been praised for its efficiency and morale. Recruits should apply to Private Gage, at the National Guard Armory, on Tuesday evenings after 8 o'clock.

Operate on Bishop.

Gary, Ind., May 13 (AP).—Bishop Edgar Blake, of the Detroit (Mich) area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, undewent an exploratory operation today at the eMthodist Episcopal Hospital here. At its conclusion his physician, Dr. H. M. Baittinger, described his condition as "fair."

Sen. McAdoo to Speak.
